Ex-Conductor McDonald , of the B. & M., Brought Back From Mexico. D. R. McDonald, formerly a conductor on the B. & M., is in jail charged with forgery. He was captured in the City of Mexico, and the United States government issued requisition papers. Four months ago McDonald while in the employ of the B. & M. as a conductor of a construction train, met with an accident in which he was badly crushed. Some weeks prior to this a registered package of paymaster's checks valued at $800 had disappeared from McDonald's train. Immediately after his accident McDonald came to Omaha to receive the salary due him from the company. On this same day three of the lost paymasters checks, endorsed over to various merchants in this city were pre-sented for payment. They proved to have been "raised," and the work done very skillfully.

Detectives were at once employed to work up the case. They found that other raised checks had been negotiated in Lincoln, Hastings and other towns. While the investigation was being prosecuted. McDonald disap-peared, and by so doing directed the suspicion of the officers towards himself. He was followed through the southern states in Old Mexico and was found there in the employ of the Mexican Central road.

McDonald strongly asserts his innocence and has no theory to offer as to who committed the crime.

The boys say that the innocent but offensive sparrow is the game they are after. This, however, does not seem to prevent their indiscriminate shooting at the dogs and cats. A stray bullet came near hitting a man, and the way in which bullets come humming around the houses makes it extremely dangerous, not to say unpleasant for the immates. TAMPERING WITH TRANSCRIPTS. David Van Etten Charged With Felony by Henry J. Abrahams. In all probability "something will drop" ere many days that will cause a decided sensation and perhaps land a few heretofore respected citizens of Omaha in the penitentiary for forgery. A judicial investigation was ordered by Judge Wakeley yesterday morning in the district court into the charges made by Henry J. Abrahams against David Van Etten and others. What may prove a noted criminal case grew out of a suit for $174.50 brought by Van Etten against Abrahams in Justice Frank Crawford's court, and on September 30, 1887, the plaintiff was granted a judgment for the amount and costs.

Abrahams, in an amended petition filed in Abrahams, in an amended petition filed in the district court, states that on September 13 he filed an appeal bond which was duly approved by the justice. On the 19th of September plaintiff caused a transcript of the proceedings to be filed in the district court. That afterwards it was discovered that said transcript was incomplete and Judge Hopewell ordered that, it be sent back to the lower court for correction. This was done and the amended transcript was returned to the district court before the 1st day of November. Some time after and before November 3, some person or persons fraudulently and feloniously changed and altered said amended transcript so as to make it appear that the judgment was rendered on September 2 instead of on the third.

Plaintiff further alleres that the alteration was made by David Van Etten or some person for him and for the purpose of fraudulently ousting this court of jurisdiction in the appeal and that tVan Etten fraudulently caused the judge to believe that the 2d of September was the date of the judament and to dismiss the appeal, which was done on the 3d of November. Afterward Van Etten caused Judge Crawford to issue an execution, which was placed in the hands of Constable Gibert Rue, who threatened to imthe district court, states that on September tion, which was placed in the hands of Con-stable Gilbert Blue, who threatened to im-mediately execute said writ. Plaintiff states that Van Etten is utterly irresponsible and insolvent and plaintiff will be irreparably injured unless Van Etten and Blue are restrained from executing the writ. Therefore the plaintiff prayed for a restraining order and that the dismissed order be set aside and appeal made to stand. The motion came up for argument yesterday

The motion came up for argument yesterday morning before Judge Wakeley, who granted a temporary injunction as prayed for and pending an investigation into the plaintiff's charges. The motion to set aside the dismissed order was overruled. The court created a decided sensation by stating that the amended transcript had undoubtedly been changed and could be easily seen by the use of a magnifying glass. Affidavits are also filed as to the truth of Abraham's charges. The court said that such an alteration was a felony and if the guilty party or parties could be conif the guilty party or parties could be con-victed it meant the penitentiary. The county attorney was instructed to investigate at once and if warranted so to do to file imfor-mations against the parties. LATER.

David Van Etten was arrested at his home at 3 o'clock yesterday. The information filed against him charges him with fraudulently and feloniously altering public records This is only another name for forgery. It is stated that absolute evidence of the alteration is ready. Several books of public record have not been changed as relates to the case and are the most important witnessess to the

The Lutherans.

The English speaking Lutherans assembled in the Emanuel Evangelical Lutheran church, corner Nineteenth and Cass streets at 10:30 yesterday morning, in a union Thanksgiving service.

All the pastors took part in the services Rev. J. S. Detweiler, pastor of Kountze Rey. J. S. Detweiler, pastor of Kountze memorial church, preached the sermon. Mr. Detweiler spoke of the mercies that the American people have enjoyed as a nation, of those rich temporal blessings which have been showered upon us all, and especially upon the citizens of our own state and city, the bright future before the Lutheran church and other christian churches in this land of freedom and plenty, and closed with an eloquent appeal to all christians to consecrate themselves to the Lord's work, After the services, a liberal thank offering was received for the newly founded Lutheran orphans' home of the Evangelical Lutheran phans' home of the Evangelical Lutheran emanuel charity association.

A New Library. A meeting was held Thursday evening at the Castellar Street Presbyterian church, in the interests of a public reading room and library. A large part of the programme was devoted to the subject of Thanksgiving. Rev. J. N. Boyd, of the Christian Hour, spoke on the needs and advantages of the companionship of good books and periodicals. The pastor read the constitution adopted by the session of the church, and called on those who wished to become active members to curoll their names. Forty persons responded. Besides active, there are honorary members who may use the reading room at the discretion of the board of managers. Work will be begun on the basement of the church as soon as possible to fit up a room for the associa tion. The reading room will be supplied by membership fees, and the library will be built up mainly by donations of books and by part of membership fees. Already a num-ber of books have been promised. The pas-tor and people hope in this work to counter-act somewhat the baleful influence of the saleon, furnish good reading for the members and strengthen their church. If any one has good books, secular or religious, to spare let him correspond with the pastor, Rev. J. M. Wilson, and if satisfactory cata-logue them in this new enterprise.

SAD FATE OF ANNIE NELSON.

Her Mysterious Disappearance and Forebodings of Her Relatives. Otto Nelson, of 1033 South Twenty-second street, together with his step-brother, Mr. Andreseen, and W. C. Martin, of Shenandoah, Ia., were at the police headquarters yesterday morning to implore the assistance of the police in ferreting out the fate and whereabouts of pretty Annie Nelson, who has been missing since November 14. Annie is a young Dane, with light brown hair and blue eyes, and only arrived in this country from Denmark five months ago. Although a bright and intelligent girl, she has as yet but poorly managed the English tongue. She has rela-tives in Shenandoah, Ia., and on arriving in this country that was her first destination. Reaching Shenandoah she went work as a waitress in the restaurant of W. C. Martin, with whom she remained until two weeks ago, when her brother Otto wrote for her to come to this city and live with him. She started the day following the receipt of her brother's letter, some two weeks ago, but has never arrived here, nor cau any trace of what became of her or where she went be obtained. The brother and step-brother are much perturbed over the mysterious disap pearance of their sister, and have been aspearance of their sister, and have been as-siduous in searching for her ever since they became convinced that she had gone astray. They fear she has been induced or forced to deviate from the paths of virtue and recti-tude, or kidnapped or entrapped for disreputable purposes. Mr. Mar-tin, of Shenandoah, was informed of the girl's non-arrival, and so interested did he become that he, too, began an arduous search for his former fair employe. He arrived here this morning. At Shenandoah he went the number of the check given to the girl for her trunk, with the hope of being able to trace her by this. But his efforts have proved futile. At the transfer denot at Council Bluffs the officers in charge informed him that the number was outstanding and they could possess him of no information whatever. Martin then sent here for Otto Nelson, and they applied to the police across the river for assistance in their search. This was freely given them, and every questionable house in the city visited, but with no result. What might be considered a clue was finally run down at the Denmark house, a hostelry extensively patronized by railroad men. Here Messrs. Martin and Nelson met men. Here Messrs, Martin and Nelson met several brakemen and depot attaches, and two of them, Wilson Rankin and Arthur Rhodes, said that a week ago yesterday the saw a flashily dressed man in conversation with a green looking girl on the platform at the transfer. They suspected that the collo-quy beded no good, at least to the female, and they made it their business to place them selves in a position where fragments of the man to convince them that he was offering her inducements to go somewhere and work for him. The two finally stroiled back into the depot, and that was the last seen of them. This girl, young Nelson thinks, was his sister, and the man with her one of those vile procurers that haunt depots for just this purpose.
