W. W. Chapman closed a contract yesterday with the Union Pacific officials for framing 500 time cards. They are to be in oak frames and distributed at the usual points.

The details are being arranged for an eloquent and musical entertainment, which will be given at the Broadway Methodist church on the evening of the 29d instant.

Miss Jennie Shoemaker, a twelve-year-old eloquent of phenomenal powers, has been engaged to appear.

Opinions differ as to the electric lights. They are being watched closely, and their power tested in various ways. The expectations have been almost as high as the mass, and it is a question in the minds of some whether both have not been put too high.

It is a little early yet to pass judgment, for in all such enterprises it takes a little time to secure the best results.

It is suggested that the time draws near for the Caroleanian club to be making some move for the observance of Burns' birthday. The last celebration was quite a success, and proved an enjoyable affair. It was enthusiastically received by the participants that there should be a life occasion each year, but so far as is known there seems to be no rekindling of the enthusiasm, which seems to have died out.

The order of the mayor requiring tight boxes, with such boards to be used by the dirt haulers, is not voluntarily obeyed, nor is obedience enforced. Ricketty boxes with low end-boards are used by some and the dirt is distributed along the streets tracked. There is already upon the pavement of Broadway the accumulated filth of the past year and this is being added to by the carelessness referred to. If the mayor's order was intended to be enforced, why is it not done?

Bully Scalded.

Stewart's packing house has been an unfortunate place for employes this week.

Yesterday the second accident of the past few days occurred. An employe named Martin O'Hare, who works in the vat room, opened the lid of one of the vats before the water had all drained off through the escape pipe and was instantly deluged with boiling water. He was badly scalded and was conveyed in the patrol wagon to his home on Avenue E, two blocks from the Eighth street school house, and attended by Dr. Barstow. He is badly blistered, but is able to resume work in two or three weeks.

Sick Children at the Home.

The condition of some of the little ones at the christian home for the friendless is very pitiable. There are fifty-nine homeless ones, all under nine years of age, now being cared for in that institution, and sixteen are suffering with the measles. One is dangerously sick with a brain disease, and another with lung fever. Mrs. Dakin, the matron, has more than her hands full, and is denying herself of much needed rest in caring for them.

THE NEWS IN THE BLUFFS.

A Packing House Employe Badly Scalded But Not Fatally. WORK OF A LONG-FACED FRAUD.

The Dubuque Decision Rather Discouraging For the Saloons—A Choice Musical Programme—A Tenth Avenue Injunction.

Rather Chilly For Saloons. Judge Shiras, of the United States district court for the northern district of Iowa, has remanded all the brewster and saloon cases before him to the state courts, and Judge Love, of the southern district, has received similar instructions. This ruling of the federal court is of vital importance to liquor dealers throughout the state. A BEE reporter yesterday called upon Attorney Haldene, who has been defending the Council Bluffs cases, to get his opinion in regard to the final effect of the decision upon the saloon men and brewers.

"Mr. Haldene, what is this ruling of the federal court going to do with the liquor cases?" asked the reporter. "Why, it just lets them all in again. It is a foregone conclusion with the saloon cases in this and other cities, but that is what we have been expecting all along. This decision cannot affect our brewery cases, however, for we fought the law on altogether different grounds in this case than in the saloon cases. The ground taken in these other cases was sure to result in this way, and it has been so prophesied for some time. We were making our case on an issue that seemed to us to offer a much greater chance of success than this one, but it may be that it will meet with the same fate. Our case has not yet been passed upon. Notice has been given, but the case has neither been argued nor submitted."

"When will Judge Love render a decision in this case?" "Well, that is something that I can't say. He is not quite as abrupt in such matters as some, but he will have to make two rulings to cover both the saloon and brewery cases of this city. Of course the saloon cases are practically settled, but we cannot yet tell whether Mr. Greiss's valuable property in the eastern part of the city will be rendered a useless load on his hands or not. This question interests both producers and consumers, and the final ruling will be watched with much interest. The 'back stairs' system will not be solely depended upon as long as the front ones are open. When a man wants a drink he is bound to have it, federal courts to the contrary notwithstanding."

"These decisions will not prevent cases from being carried to the federal court, but it will cut off all possibility of evading the final issue by delays and appeals, for they will be immediately remanded to the state courts. It looks as though the long looking enforcement of the prohibition law is near at hand. The lines are narrowing so that either the law must be repealed, or the saloon men go to jail. The violation of injunctions is a risky business, and the chances of escaping the consequences are very limited. Two more decisions by Judge Love, one of them already known, and the liquor business of this city will be finally settled."

"The past two days," said the county recorder to the BEE man, "have been the liveliest two consecutive days in real estate transfers that I have ever witnessed. Why, call at this." Before him was a pile of deeds which represented many thousand dollars. Here is the substance of a few: Frank S. Pusey to John T. Stewart, fifty-five lots in Brown's subdivision, $1,250; Spencer Smith to Charles T. Officer, twenty-nine lots in the Gregg tract, $3,000; Spencer Smith to Joste K. Smith, thirty-four lots in the Gregg tract, $3,000; E. A. Benson to A. K. Riley, two lots in Benson's second addition, $1,000; E. A. Benson to E. T. R. Rice, part of lot 2 in Jackson's addition, $2,500; D. E. Gleason to Sarah M. Burns, four lots in Pierce's subdivision, $1,300.

Council Bluffs has never witnessed such activity at the same season of the year as this, and the prediction is made—and it will surely come true—that as soon as the business incident to the holiday season is over the full attention of the people will be directed toward the development of the city and such activity as we never yet have seen will pervade real estate and building. Foreseen and planned for the development of this future for the city, but in their anxiety, prophesied it all to come to pass within a single year. Matter of fact importance and magnitude cannot be accomplished in a month or year, but a grand future for the city is assured, and the things that will make it so are here with us and will be developed as rapidly as can be done with safety to all interests involved.

No Need of Alarm.

There has been some sharp newspaper criticism of Mr. J. J. Shea for having enjoined the Union Pacific on Tenth avenue until the company should take steps to settle damages to lots owned by him. There has been a great anxiety on the part of citizens to have this enterprise go ahead, and the injunction evidently nettled some, especially zealous republicans who saw a chance to drive a sharp point against the democratic county clerk. The newspaper has had a personal grudge against Mr. Shea, which doubtless gives it the needed inspiration for a lengthy and leading editorial. The injunction is not a very serious matter, for it is only a temporary obstruction to the progress of the work of laying the track. It was hoped by many that there would not even be this much of a hitch, but there is no real likelihood of the injunction as a terrible blot to the future of this city. The simple fact, as viewed from Mr. Shea's standpoint, is that the Union Pacific company has not taken any steps to fix the amount of its damages. No appraisers had been appointed, and as the work was proceeding the company sought to force the company to have the damages passed upon in the usual manner, by appraisers, as the law provides. He has made no demand for any special appraisers, but has followed the usual procedure for deciding whether there are damages, and if so how much they are. It was on this ground that he got the injunction. This is about all there is to the affair over which there has been such excited talk.

At the Hospital.

One of the sisters in charge of St. Bernard's hospital is suffering from a violent hemorrhage of the lungs. During a part of the time that the man Vance, who was struck over the head with a shovel, was laid up there he was delirious, and it required the united efforts of several of the sisters to prevent him from hurting himself. On the night of the 8th inst. he was worse than usual, and the strain upon the sisters' strength resulted, as stated above. The sister had been in poor health some time previously, and her present condition is very serious. The working force of the hospital has been increased by the arrival of four more sisters, who will relieve those formerly in charge of some of their work of love and charity.

Confiding Clergymen.

A meek visaged, pious-looking sort of a fraud has been victimizing the clergymen of this part of the world lately. Those who wear the clerical cloth should especially be on their guard against him. At Missouri Valley he called on Rev. Mr. Westwood and borrowed $3 on the strength of a pathetic story about having a dying mother at Dennis, whose bedside he must reach at once. He was next heard from at Logan, where he borrowed a like amount of Rev. Mr. Thornburn, with the same sort of a story, with variations. At Carroll he was trying to make another loan to enable him to go to the bedside of another of his numerous but dying relatives. On his former visit he had to appear on the scene and the schemer was forced to put up collateral for his loans and then allowed to depart.

Finishing the Court House.

The court house grounds are being graded, and the rubbish that has been accumulating during the past two years is being removed. The north and south entrances of the building will soon be in condition for use. The handsome black walnut doors have been hung, and the greater number of the offices and court rooms have been cased and paneled. Although the work is being done at a particularly slow one, it will be pushed to enable Judge Thornell to open the January term there on the 1st of next month.

The Man Who Routed Vanderbilt.

R. B. Cable, president and general manager of the Rock Island road, sits at a big desk, which, if he is absent from it two days, is covered a foot deep with letters and telegrams. He is one of the most approachable of the great magnates. The door of his office opens without let or hindrance to every caller, and the visitor, be he great or little, is sure of a polite welcome. He is a typical westerner in appearance, this tall, broad-shouldered man with firm face adorned by a moustache and short chin beard, now nearly white, keen eyes, and quick, decisive speech. Cable has been a railroad for twenty years, but not until his memorable contest with William H. Vanderbilt for the control of the Rock Island was he much known outside of Illinois, Cable and H. H. Porter, directors, had the temerity to differ with Vanderbilt as to the policy of the road, and the latter decided to get rid of them. This seemed an easy process for the plutocrat. His will had never been crossed, and up to this time the directory of the roads in which he held stock had been made up at his dictation. But Cable and Porter were not made of yielding material. They prepared for a fight in the annual election. While Vanderbilt contented himself with advertising for proxies depending on the prestige of his name to attract the stockholders, Cable and Porter went actively to work upon them personally, visiting the smaller ones, the widows and orphans and trustees whose funds whose funds were invested in the great low line. When the election day came off, to their utter astonishment, the king was routed. It was his first defeat. This gave Cable a national fame. He is a very hard worker, spending seven or eight hours a day at his desk, and on his feet for the rest of the time. A Night in a Tree.

San Bernardino Courier: C. H. Wilkins and Edward Somers lived in the White camp, San Antonio canyon. Returning to their house about the time of midnight that was the dividing line between the 19th and 20th of the present month, they were very disagreeably surprised to see by the light of their lanterns a mountain lion in the act of going under the building. Having no arms with them, and knowing that the floor of their domicile was a flimsy affair and easily torn to pieces by the dangerous animal, they considered a tree near by their only refuge, and upon such consideration, they climbed the tree with that dexterity which frequently accompanies the danger of a high fall. They spent the night waiting for the daylight. It came, but it placed the occupants of the tree in even a more dangerous predicament than before. The lion still possessed the premises, and, when formed by the dwellers among the branches of the state of affairs Mr. Wilcox killed the lion with a ball from a rifle and announced that the gentleman might descend in safety. Ed. Huce is now tanning the hide of the animal, which will be presented to a gentleman well known in this city.
