

THE CENTRAL CITY FORGER.

Rev. D. B. Browns Arrives in Nebraska Heavily Ironed.

BAKER IN A VERY HOT OVEN.

Hauled Up in the United States Court For Mailing Obscene Matter—Swindled By a Confidence Man—City News.

The Forger Heavily Ironed.

The Rev. D. B. Browns, alias E. H. Morgan, alias George W. Reed, alias H. S. Morroe, alias Joe Calvert, alias "Boston Joe," alias Edwin C. Servis, passed through this city yesterday en route for Central City, where he will be tried for his forgery by which the First National bank of that place was "done up" for $1,500. The notorious forger was heavily ironed, and was handcuffed to the Pinkerton operative who accompanied him.

Central City, Neb., Dec. 16.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The man Servis arrived here this evening in the company of the detective who captured him. There was a large crowd at the depot, the news of his expected arrival having spread over the city. He was warmly welcomed by the large crowd, but Baker, Persinger and more or less lighted to meet his friend than any of the others present. Many of those who witnessed his arrival had listened to Servis when, as the "Rev. D. B. Browns," he preached his eloquent sermon here which helped him in defrauding the First National bank out of $1,500, and all doubt that he was the man wanted were evidently removed. Servis has lost some of the sanctified bearing of "Browns," but he is the same slick individual nevertheless.

BENCH AND BAR.

The United States Court.

BAKER IN A BAD BOY.

United States Deputy Marshal Stewart came in from McCool Junction, Neb., Thursday night with one A. W. Baker in his custody. There is a nasty case against Baker. He is charged with sending obscene literature through the mails, and the alleged facts in the case are about as follows: During the last session of the grand jury Miss Mamie Brown, a beautiful young girl, came here with friends from her home in Hiawatha, Kan., and laid complaint against Baker for writing vulgar, indecent and lascivious letters to her from McCool Junction. Baker had been a former suitor for the girl's hand at her Kansas home, but she had recently become engaged to a man from his brogans and emigrated to Nebraska. He at once began a systematic persecution of her, and she was obliged to leave her home and flee to her friends in this city. He wrote her only made love, threatened and calmed, but made open avowals of his desires and intentions in language that would bring the blush of shame and mortification to the face of any true woman. The reading of but a single one of these complimentary epistles was sufficient to warrant the indictment of Baker, and the grand jury was prompt in returning a true bill. An order of arrest was immediately issued, and on yesterday were the authorities enabled to get their clutches upon the accused party. He was arraigned, pleaded guilty, and a fine of $500 was sent to jail in default of $500 bail.

MISS SAEG'S CASE.

The case of Miss Saeg against the City Steam Laundry for personal injuries, continued all day yesterday. In the forenoon the examination of witnesses was finished, and the rest of the day was consumed by the jury. The case went to the jury. Shortly before 6 p. m. the case went to the jury.

District Court.

Thomas Price began a suit against C. P. Treat yesterday asking for $16,154 damages for breach of contract. The plaintiff alleges that he and the defendant made a contract whereby the former was to grade a certain division of the Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley railroad and that plaintiff failed to complete the work on account of the unlawful seizure of his tools.

TO-DAY.

Today Judge Groff will listen to arguments for new trials in the case of Morse, convicted of grand larceny, and Sam Stevenson, of assault with intent to commit rape. Shields and Crowell are the attorneys for the prisoners in both cases, and the interests of the county will be looked after by County Attorney Simeral.

Police Court.

H. C. Daniels and wife, drunkenness and disorderly conduct, five days over the bill. Just before the departure of the patrol wagon, however, the husband succeeded in getting an audience with the court. His story of how his little children would suffer and go to the bad during the absence of both father and mother, how he had never been arrested before, was a hard working, honest citizen, and got off yesterday by accident, accomplished the desired end with the compassionate judge, who said that he might go, but Mrs. Daniels must go up. Then the husband tapped another tank of the most pathetic eloquence, and beseeched the court to cast him into a dungeon deep and let his wife go. His quavering voice and lachrymose optics were again too much for the mellow-hearted magistrate, and he let them both free as the birds of the air, with the parting intimation, however, of dire results if they ever showed up before him again.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Holiday numbers of all the leading pictorial papers of this country have been received and surpass anything ever attempted before.

Jason B. Markham, a wealthy and influential citizen of Buffalo, N. Y., passed through the city yesterday with his invalid daughter. They were on their way to California.

A man named Gustave Smierchom fell headlong down the long flight of stairs that leads to the viaduct at Leavenworth and Eleventh street yesterday morning. His left arm was broken in two places.

A runaway team caused a panic on Sixth street yesterday. They started to run at the south end of the viaduct, and were not caught until Vin-ton street was reached. In their mad flight the wagon to which they were attached was broken into splinters. The owner's name could not be learned.

L. P. PRUYN OPENS TO-DAY.

Omaha's Enterprising Capitalist Again at His Old Stand.

Larmon P. Pruyne reopens business today at his old stand, Twenty-third and Izard streets. It is at this place, it will be remembered, Mr. Pruyne built only a short time ago, the largest carriage repository ever erected in Omaha, and stocked it in a manner never equaled west of the Missouri. His enterprise was the marvel of even the most enthusiastic Omahans. His contribution to Omaha's property as also the comfort of hundreds of her people is well exemplified in the factories he has established and the houses which he has built, which now afford happy homes to hundreds of thrifty families. Mr. Pruyne was one of the recent originators of Omaha's great boom. He stands to-day ready to strengthen and extend his word. Despite reports of an impaired financial condition, Mr. Pruyne recommences business on a foundation so solid as to be beyond all criticism. In connection with this, he unites perfect knowledge of business and an honesty that has never been questioned. He has survived all the attacks made upon him, more than paid every claim foolishly made upon him, and to-day, with an honest record of dollar for dollar, he announces to his old friends and the citizens of Omaha in general, that he will be pleased to meet them at the old stand, corner of Twenty-third and Izard streets. Friends of Omaha and friends of every reputable and enterprising citizen will greet Mr. Pruyne's purpose, energy and determination with pleasure, and they will find at his place of business anything in the line of carriages, sleighs, harnesses, robes, sleigh-bells, whips, and in fact anything required to be used in connection with horse either summer or winter.

PEISONATING J. E. BOYD.

A Confidence Man Does It With Success to a Man's Cost.

One of the boldest of the most recent confidence games practiced in this vicinity secured a gentleman named John Fleming for his victim. The latter is a stereotyper and a short time ago resided here for a year. He is between fifty and sixty years of age and an expert stereotyper, having worked for Pestner & Son, where his boy is still engaged. On last Saturday he was traveling on a train from Chicago to Deaver and was passing through Iowa when a wily gentleman sat beside him and introduced a pleasant conversation. He learned that Mr. Fleming had resided in Omaha, ascertained his business also, and then imparted to him the information that he was James E. Boyd, the late mayor of this city. This announcement tended to make Mr. Fleming very comfortable, the view presenting itself of having so distinguished a companion on a long and weary ride. "Mr. Boyd," however, said that he would be compelled to get out of the train at Hamilton, and he would secure a parcel by express which he knew was awaiting there. He got off and soon returned with the startling announcement that he had lost his pocketbook and was reluctantly obliged to ask if Mr. Fleming would accommodate him with some money until they should reach Omaha. Mr. Fleming obliged, giving "the mayor" a fifty-dollar bill. His honor again left the train, but forgot to come back. Mr. Fleming has since seen the "mayor" and has been obliged to give him a fifty-dollar bill. His honor again left the train, but forgot to come back. Suspicious Characters.

Yesterday between 11 and 12 o'clock a man was seen rapidly passing down 16th st., apparently in an excited condition. He was seen by a man who was questioned as to his strange movements it was learned that he had been to the New York Storage Co., and was anxious to tell his friends of their immense stock of pianos, organs, furniture and stores which were being sold at a great sacrifice on very easy payments.

A Sudden Death.

Harry A. Russell, a partner of D. C. O'Keefe, employment agency, 309 South Eleventh street, and a young man well known about town, died suddenly of heart disease at his boarding house yesterday afternoon. He was apparently in sound health and in the best of spirits in the morning, but in the afternoon, without premonition, almost, he sickened and died. The deceased was a young man of decided business qualifications; upright, industrious and of the most genial disposition, he was a great favorite among all his associates. He was but twenty-six years of age and unmarried. This morning his remains, in the charge of his brother, W. C. Russell and D. C. O'Keefe were taken to the home of his parents at Custer Park, Illinois.

They Deny the Charge.

A number of those who attended the charity ball at Masonic hall Monday night deny that there was any drunkenness on that occasion, save on the part of one individual who entered the hall without invitation. They claim that the charge that the guests frequented the saloons was entirely without foundation and that the affair was not marred by any boisterous demonstrations.
