Lawyer Whedon's Answer to the Federal Jurisdiction Plea.

THE NEEDS OF NEBRASKA TRADE.

Secretary Mason Explains the Situation to the Inter-State Commission-A Rich Flud-The Westphalen Family-Brevities.

[FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN BUREAU.] In the question of state jurisdiction over the Union Pacific railroad, argued a few days ago before Judge Dundy, Mr. C. O. Whedon, the attorney for the board of transportation, has supplemented his argument with a brief that deals in very pointed facts in regard to the question. Among other things the brief recites that there is nothing in the charter of the Union Pacific which reserves to the United States the exclusive jurisdiction over the company or emancipates it from state control. There is in the charter no contract between the general government and the corporation that it shall not be subject to the legislation of the state. The state is not seeking to interfere with the reserved rights to the government, but the brief holds that the state has the power to regulate all its internal commerce and that is all it is seeking. A state is not sovereign without the power to regulate its internal com-

To the plea advanced that the act by which the road was created reserves the right for congress to reduce the rates after certain earnings have been reached, the brief says:

This is a question of importance and permanent concern to the state of Nebraska.

The cost of the construction of the road is a anatter of history, and if the allegations of the bill that the regulation of rates and con-trol of the road by the state board of trans-portation will bankrupt the company are true, nothing but extortion, of which history furnishes no parallel, will enable the com-pany to reach the limit at which congress may reduce the rates. * * * Can it be may reduce the rates. * * * * Can it be that the federal government has called into existence a private corporation, a common carrier, whose rates for the transportation of persons and property it cannot regulate because it has voluntarily deprived itself of this power, and that this act of deprivation also prohibits the state from regulating the rates! If it has accomplished these results, then this complaint is over and above the law; there is no power to prevent and punish extortion or unjust discrimination. The rates charged may be both unreasonable and unjust, and there exists no corrective power; just, and there exists no corrective power; for the wrong there is no remedy.

The brief recites that the complainant, the railroad, has not shown itself entitled to relief through a permanent injunction. It affirms that the state has the right and power to regulate rates within the state citing the recent court decision to that effect. It cites that the state in the case is not seeking and does not attempt to regulate commerce at all; it is only seeking to regulate the instru-ment of commerce. The principal creditor of the company, the United States, says the brief makes no claim that its surety is in danger of being im-paired, as the attorneys of the road at-paired, as the attorneys of the road at-tempted to show the court. Concluding his argument Mr. Whedon says:

The railway company does assert that if the board of transportation is permitted to proceed, it will be unable to pay the interest upon its funded and other debts. Its solici-tude for the rights of the government is somewhat remarkable; had it evinced it earlier in its history the "Thurman act" men-tioned in the bill might not have been necestioned in the bill might not have been neces-sary. The defendants disclaim all power and ity to regulate the rates be states; they disclaim any intention of at-tempting to regulate the same. But, acting for the state, whose servants they are, they do insist upon the authority and jurisdiction not only to require the change in the embankment mentioned, but also to fix and regulate rates within the state of Nebraska, and to determine what are just and reasonable board of transportation.

To T. M.Cooley, Chairman Inter-State Commission, Washington, D. C.—We urge the continuance of car load rates. Their abolition will destroy the jobbing interests of the west. Our distributing honses at Omaha, Lincoln and Fremont are of great benefit to the retail dealers of the state, affording them convenience and credit. The present system of differential rates builds up trade centers within the state. Their destruction means that Chicago, St. Louis and eastern cities will monopolize and centralize our trade and drain our sources. Mebraska State Board of Transportation O. P. Mason, Scoretary.

DIAMOND RINGS IN PEACHES. A gentleman furnishes the BEE the following interesting bit of news coming from Ord Valley county. A resident of that place named Lindon purchased at the grocers a can of peaches, and and when the can was opened and dispensed around the board for the evening meal, a diamond ring was found in the fruit. It was taken to the jewelers the next day to determine its value. He offered $80 for it. This is a parallel to the good luck of Cogia Hassan of old. Just what Baltimore belle lost the ring In handling the fruit remains yet to be determined. STORM RETURNS.

Superintendent Clarendon, of Dodge, gives further particulars of the death of the further particulars of the death of the two little Westphalen girls. He says the widow Westphalen lived on a small farm with these two children, all she had. The family has been peculiarly unfortunate. A few years ago Peter Westphalen with his own family and that of his brother, moved to Kansas. In the Indian massacre which occurred there, the brother and an unspection of the same of the protection of the same occurred there, the brother and an unmarried sister, with some other rela-tives were killed. Peter hastened back to Dodge county, but the trouble through which he had passed, added to the loss of his relatives, afflicted his mind and he committed suicide. Now the mother is entirely alone.

When the storm came up, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the older girl applied to the teacher for permission to go home, saying that her mother would be afraid and would need their help. She was allowed to go with her little sister and both lost their lives in the

QUESTIONABLE PROCEEDINGS. A business man in this city has been persecuted of late by receiving through the mails dunning letters purporting to come from a collecting agency in Chi-cago. These duns are in the form of printed circulars, and the envelopes are marked in bold type, "Bad Debts." The circular in this instance fixes the debt at $9, which the business man wholly disclaims owing, and the circulars threaten a black list and to continue sending the duns at the rate of one a week if the debt is not paid. The black list part has not as yet been carried out, or if so, has not reached his notice, but the duns come with great regularity, the envelope and legend, "Bad Debt," increasing in size with such one sent, until the proceeding is the capital stock $100,000.

Mr. J. H. Ayer, of the state board of transportation, is in the city. He states that the citizens of Ord presented, a few days ago, a handsome gold watch to Miss Freeman, as a testimonial of her friends at home to her bravery.

It is apparent that under the recent supreme court decisions foreign railroads will be obliged to incorporate under the state laws. How they can do this is now the question, and the attor-ney general is of the opinion that legislative action will be necessary.

READY FOR FIGHT. Uprising of the Lumber and Coal Interests of Omaha.

The lumber interests and the anthracite coal interests of the city have determined upon separate presentations of their grievances in the matter of freight rates and their discrimination in favor of Chicago, and have instructed the freight bureau of the board of trade to at once prepare and forward a bill of complaint to the inter-state commerce commission.

It is believed a hearing with reference to these two great interests can be obtained on the occasion of the visit of the commission to the occasion of the visit of the commission to this city. Certain it is no branch of business is in greater need of the protecting influences of the national law. At present the railroads are indulging in outrageous discriminations against these industries and are literally forcing the business to Chicago.

A Narrow Escape.

There was a narrow escape from a serious fire at the residence of J. H. Downing, 1701 Capitol avenue, Thursday evening. Just after supper Mr. Downing stepped into the parlor to light the gas. He ignited a match, turned on a jet, and applied a light, when without any explosion the room was almost instantly filled with flames. For his own safety, Mr. Downing fled, but soon rallying, he called his family to his aid, and they fortunately succeeded in subduing the flames before much damage was done. Gas Inspector fore much damage was done. Gas Inspector Gilbert says this rather remarkable occurrence had its origin in a condensation of the carbon in the gas, which constitutes one of the most dangerous and inflammable substances in the world. This condensation takes place during the passage of the gas from the cold underground pipes into the warm rooms and apartments of residences and stores. People using gas should always be exceedingly careful in lighting it in rooms where it is seldom used.
