Deplorably Unclean.

Omaha's sanitary condition at present is, to say the least, anything but creditable. The main thoroughfares themselves are deplorably unclean and the by-streets and alleys are absolutely filthy. O' course a continuation of such a state of affairs into the spring and summer, would only result in disease, sickness and death. The authorities are in daily receipt of communications from complaining citizens imploring that some action be taken immediately looking toward an amelioration of the city's sanitary condition, and inasmuch as the city council has yet failed in any way to respond to there solscitations, the chief of police yesterday sent a long communication to the mayor urging upon him the necessity of laying the matter before the municipal legislature with the request that they at pal legislature with the request that they at once bestir themselves in this regard. The chief advises a thorough renovation of the whole city, and recommends, to insure the accomplishment of this end, that the garbage force, both men and wagons, be largely increased and set to work without further delay. The chief's letter also embodies many valuable suggestions, and urges upon the mayor the necessity of prompt action in

The ladies who managed the charity ball which was held in the Exposition hall on last Tuesday have applied a French word to the Institution which they are endeavoring to obtain funds to erect. They call it "The which anglicized, means a manger or crib. The plans have been made by Mendelshson, Fisher & Lawrie, and comprise a frame building, 5234 x37 feet, of two stories and a basement. The ground floor is divided into a reception, drawing-room, kitchen, bathroom, and several other necessery apartments, while the second will contain a sick room, nursery, children's playroom, nursery, children's play-room and store rooms. This will open on a beautiful balcony facing south and west. Exteriorly, the structure will be nicely orna-mated, having generally the apperance of a large, ample and comfortable residence. In in it will be cared for children who may be kept with the matron while the mothers are attending to work which will not permit of attention to their offsprings. District Court. TRIAL OF "BIG FRANK."

The trial of Frank Jones, better known as "Big Frank," was completed before Judge Groff yesterday. Jones was charged with committing the crime of highway robbery upon the night of December 1, 1887, the pros ecuting witness being a man named Frank Field. The entire panel was exhausted and at least fifteen bystanders pressed into service before a jury was selected. The defense took advantage of the eight peremptory challenges accorded it. At 10:40 the trial begun. County Attorney Simeral stated the charges against the prisoner, and Mr. Ma-loney, representing the defense, intimated loney, representing the defense, in that the evidence would prove an alibi for the Jones asked him to direct him to a house o ill-fame, and when he replied that he was un acquainted in the city Jones asked him to go with them, to which proposition he gave con-sent. They went three or four blocks east toward the river, when suddenly Jones placed a revolver to his head and told him to throw up his hands. Witness complied and Jones' companions went through his pockets taking therefrom watch of small value and a little over $20 i money. He saw Jones next day at the city prison and identified him as the robber. Of cross-examination prisoner admitted that he could not identify the watch or the pistol which were found on Jones' person at the time of his arrest.

Policeman William Cullen next testified that he made the arrest and on searching Jones found the revolver and watch which was produced by the state in open court. The court then took a recess until 2 o'clock In the afternoon a number of other wit nesses were sworn, and after the case was presented by the respective attorneys the jury retired. After a deliberation of less than ten minutes the jurymen returned with a verdict of guilty as prescribed in the information. The prisoner was remanded to jail to await sentence.

THE ATCHISON EXTENSION.
OMAHA, Feb. 18.—To the Editor of the BEE I note your article in last evening's issue with reference to the probabilities of the Atchi-son, Topeka & Santa Ferallroad 'looking toward Omaha," and suggesting the subject was well worthy of the attention of our board of trade. The matter was submitted to the Freight bureau on the 23d January last, and a thorough investigation made, resulting in the conviction that we need not expect the railway extention in question to be consum mated this year. Our information is definite and positive W. F. GRIFFITTS.

Samuel Compers. This able speaker, the president of the American Federation of Trades. will deliver a lecture on labor at Exposition hall this evening, under the auspices of the Trades unions of Omaha. Everybody cordially invited. No ad-COMMITTEE. mission fee.

Wishes the Guardianship. Mrs. Rounds filed an application with County Judge Shields last evening praying that she may be appointed guardian of Wat terson Rounds Rothacker, two years of age, and Douglas Dustin Rothacker, eight months old, both children of the late Mamie Rounds Rothacker. Applicant states that the minors are possessed of $7,500. Mrs. Rounds deposited a bond in the sum of $15,000 for the faithful performance of her duty.

Judge Shields will not announce the time of hearing yet, as he wishes to know if Mr. Rothacker, father of the children, will contest the case. Reinstated.

Sheriff Coburn syesterday reinstated Joe Miller as jailer. Mr. Coburn considers that the grand jury has completely exonerated Mr. Miller of all charges affecting his knowledge of jail abuses.

JUDGE WEISS.

Angust Weiss was born in Breslau, Silesia, February 28, 1838. He was educated in the preparatory school, or gymnasium in his native place, for the university, but did not evter upon the course of the latter, preferring to enter at once upon the business of his life which he had decided was to be otherwise than beauty of the present than the present the present than the present the present than the present the p life which he had decided was to be other-wise than pouring over university text-books or listening to university lec-tures. He accordingly took to the sea, and as a merchant marine in the service of England had experience in all parts of the world, especially in Chili, Peru, Panama, during which time he was in the employ of the Pacific steamship company. He reached Omaha in 1867, and soon after entered the commission and grocery business with a man commission and grocery business with a man named Brandes as partner. They remained ogether sometime when the latter died and was succeeded by the brother of the decased, the present ex-Judge Brandes of this city. Their store was situated on Farnam near Tenth street, almost upon the same site as that which has just been abandoned by Peycke brothers. This business was con-Peycke brothers. This business was conducted for six years, when the firm was dissolved, Mr. Weiss entering the insurance business and establishing his office in the Karbach block on the souteast corner of Fifteenth and Douglas street, a place which he held up to the time of his death.

Mr. Weiss was in the first years of his life here an active and encreptic worker. He here an active and energetic worker. He had still a longing for the military life which he had experienced on ship-board, and this led to his organization of a military com-pany, known as the Omaha Guards, of which he was captain, and which flourished for nearly three years. It was an expensive or ganization, and its uniform was considered ganzation, and its uniform was considered very rich, and there are still in this city a number of the members who speak with pride of the dashing appearance they made in their gay regimentals.

Mr. Weiss was also president of the Schuetzenverein, which was organized in 1000. This society had a shooting range out where the white lead works are near sit.

where the white lead works are now sit-uated. It had a membership of thirty-five, under the leadership of Captain Urlau, now dead. But this organization, also, with the lapse of years, has long since gone out of existence.

In 1881 Mr. Weiss was elected justice of the peace, defeating Mr. Riley, and in 1883 he was re-elected, defeating Mr. Wright, who subsequently reached the bench. His constituency was in the Third ward. Between times he attended to his insurance business, which had always been very profitable, especially among his German friends. For three months in 1884, while Judge Beneke, the months in 1884, while Judge Beneke, the police magistrate, was in Europe, Judge Weiss occupied the seat. His incumbency was not without criticism, but the judge considerable the search of the search soled himself that he was right in all the trouble, and he could not be convinced that he hadn't been.

In 1885 he was nominated for police judge In 1885 he was nominated for police judge by the democratic party and was defeated by Judge Stenberg. A year later he was again nominated by the same party, for justice of the peace in the Third ward, under the new law restricting the justices of Omaha to one for each ward. The republican nominee was Lee Helsley, who was elected but who has now about and who was elected, but who has now abandoned the office and gone into journalism. For the last two years of his life Judge Weiss has been devoting himself studiously to his insur-ance business, and was so occupied when dis case prostrated and death finally claimed

DEATH OF PAUL PEITCH Paul Feitch, a nephew of Mrs. Fred Krug and Ed Wittig, died last evening at St. Jo-seph's hospital, after an illness of two years from dropsy. The deceased was well known, and leaves a large circle of friends who re-spected and admired him for his many fine qualities. The remains were removed to the undertaking establishment of Drexel & Maul, from where the funeral will be conducted, Mr. Wittig defraying all the expenses of burial. Mr. Feitch was for six years a cierk in the grocery house of Henry Fundt.

A FUNERAL FAKE.

A Fleeced Victim Causes the Arrest of

"Mourners." The Union Pacific depot and Tenth street seem to be infested with a number of confidence men who ply their cunning trade on unsuspecting travelers who stop in the city a few hours while on their way east or west. The last known victim is Fred Schmidt, a young German who stopped in the city last Tuesday while on his way to the western part of the state. While on his way up town he fell in with the usual couple of affable fellows, who in a short time completely wormed themselves into his confidence. This time the "affable fellows" needed only 890 to pay a funeral bill and had nothing in change less than a $500 bill. If Schmidt had the money they would borrow it for a few minutes, drop in and pay the undertaker, and then re pair to a bank where they would get the bill broken and return the money to Schmidt, the credulous German had only $70, but turned it over to the sharks very willingly. The three repaired to a stairway near the corner of Sixteenth and Douglas, where they left him standing at the bottom telling him they would be down again in a minute, as soon as they turned the money over to the undertaker. After Schmidt had stood for about a half an hour waiting for them, he slowly began to realize that he had been confidenced. He hunted the police up and put the matter in their hands, resolving to stay in Omaha until the sharks were brought to justice. From the description given, the police succeeded in arresting them yesterday afternoon, when they gave their names as L. C. Taylor and Myron Cronkite. names as L. C. Taylor and Myron Cronkite.
They were astonished when they were confronted by Schmidt at the police station, supposing, doubtless, that he, in common with their other victims, had quietly gone on his way home. They were tried, convicted and sentenced each to sixty days in the county jail, twenty days of that time to subsist on a diet of bread and water.

The City Physician. OMARA, Feb. 9 .- To the Editor of the BEE: Referring to your editorial in the BEE of the 8th inst., touching a proposition to pay the city physician a salary of $2,400 per year, it does look as if the city physician had somebody who is very solicitous for his welfare, for unless his duties are greatly enlarged he certainly wouldn't earn one-fourth of that amount. For it is the county not the city physician, who attends to the sick poor-and the only really professional labor the city physician is called apon to perform is an occasional call to the jail. His duties merely consist in keeping a record of births and deaths, a clerk to an imaginary board of health. This is, as

I understand, the present duty of the city physician.

If it were desirable that the city assume the care of its sick poor there would certainly be more than one man could attend to injus tice to the patients he would have under his Care.

Ultimately this city will have to follow the example of the large cities in the east in this respect, viz.: sub-divide the city into districts and appoint a physician for each district, who shall be a resident thereto, and to swhom the sick poor of the district shall apply; said physician to report to and be under the direc-tion of a board of health having general supervision of the whole city. Under some some such scheme as this the health and hygiene of our city would be well attended to, and the people would be assured that for the outlay they were receiving something in return. Very respectfully your ob't servant, E. E. Womensley.
