

STRANGE STORY OF A CRIME.

Arrest of a Western Stock-Raiser by New York Officers.

SACRIFICED HIS TWIN-BROTHER. Supposed to Have Been Dead for Six Years, James Laffer's Hiding Place Discovered by the Detectives.

The Dead Come to Life.

Morrison Wilcox, deputy sheriff of Cattaraugus county, New York, passed through the city yesterday en route to Olean, and had in custody James Gregory Laffer, a prominent stock raiser whose ranch is located near Watrous, New Mexico. The prisoner was handcuffed, and huge steel shackles were clasped about his ankles. The crime for which Laffer is being held is robbery and assault with intent to kill. The story of the terrible affair as told to a Bee reporter by the officer is a strange one and is as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Massey Laffer, parents of the prisoner, are respectable farmers living near Olean, New York. Twin sons were born to them and when they grew to manhood the resemblance between them was so great that few people could tell one from the other. Both of them were sent to college, James choosing Cornell and his twin brother William went to Yale. Both of them, after three years' left their alma maters and returned to their home. William took the management of the farm and James began the study of law in the village of Olean. It was the habit of the latter to spend Sunday at home and on the evening of that day the brothers invariably spent a few hours at the house of a wealthy neighbor, John Clifford, a rich lumber manufacturer and who had two lovely daughters.

One Sunday night, about a year ago, a gentleman called on Mr. Clifford and paid him nearly $8,000 in cash. This was done in the presence of both the Laffer brothers. Shortly after the twins departed for home. Between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock next morning, Mr. Clifford was attacked by a masked man who hid himself in the room. The $8,000 which was hidden between the mattress of the bed was taken and the robber started to make his escape. He was met in the hall by the youngest daughter, Miss William Laffer's sweetheart, and the girl with unusual bravery, snatched the mask from the robbers face and exclaimed, "My God, Bill Laffer what have you done?" The would-be murderer struck her and then fled.

Next morning William Laffer was arrested and held without bail charged with burglary and attempted murder. Mr. Clifford finally recovered and William was placed on trial. The main witness was his old sweetheart who swore positively to identifying him as the man. She was sure it was William and not James as the robber was dressed in the same clothes William had worn the night preceding the crime and which in material and style were radically different from those worn by his brother.

In his own behalf William testified that he was innocent and all he knew was that he had retired one hour after leaving the Clifford mansion on Sunday night. He had awakened in the morning with a terrible headache and felt queer for two or three days. The jury had brought in a verdict of guilty as charged and the prisoner was sentenced to ten years hard labor at Sing Sing.

While nearly every one believed William guilty there was one firm friend who doubted it and set about to discover the truth. His investigation lasted nearly a year. His contract in brief were as follows: James at Cornell contrived many debts which were paid shortly after the robbery, that he had sent $2,000 to a Mrs. Coates in Illinois and had money for his ruining her daughter. That on the Sunday night preceding the robbery James had purchased an Olean drug store with which he undoubtedly drugged his brother. A hundred minor things were found by the investigator, and James Laffer, before this investigation was completed James left for a trip to New York. About two months later a report reached him that he had been drowned off Long Branch while yachting, and that his body could not be recovered. A week afterwards a respectable looking man giving his name as Alfred Thomas appeared at the Laffer farm and confirmed the news. He brought with him certain papers that bore out his statement, and James was given up as dead.

One day, about three years later, Olean and the surrounding country were electrified by the action of Governor Hill, who issued a pardon for William Laffer, and James was convinced of the convict's innocence, and that he was positive that the crime was committed by his dead twin brother. The years passed on and James continued to live a memory ere long but for the appearance of a man in Olean five weeks ago who had a secret interview with the county or district attorney. He informed that official that the man who had brought the news of James' death to the family six years before and that he was paid by James to do it. He said that James was living and was a ranchman, located near Watrous, New Mexico. A warrant was issued and the fugitive apprehended at the latter place. James denies his guilt and says that he will be able to prove his innocence.

THE DOG ORDINANCE.

Chief of Police Seavey Determined to Enforce It.

The city ordinance regulating the running at large of dogs is a dead letter and has been since its original inception. The tax, provided for the enactment, is $1 a year per dog, but the law or any part thereof has never been enforced or any tax collected. Chief of Police Seavey, however, declared that he has determined that hereafter, commencing with the 1st day of March, the letter and the spirit of the ordinance shall be carried out and executed. He estimates that there are no less than $100,000 uncollected dog running at large in the city, and he intends to either depopulate the community of these useless and annoying canines or see that the city realizes the lawful revenue. The months of June, July, August and September it is again the law to allow any unmuzzled dog to run at large in the streets of the city of Omaha. Any dog caught thus violated the law requires shall be killed, and the owner, if he be convicted of allowing such dog to run at large, shall be fined in a sum not less than $100. Any party allowing a dog, known to be vicious to run at large at any time unmuzzled is liable to a fine not less than $25 or more than $50. Chief Seavey is making preparations for a rigid enforcement of this ordinance and all owners of dogs are hereby forewarned against any violation of the same. The dog tag attached to a collar will be furnished for each dog licensed, and which exempts them from molestation while at large, or during the current year of the payment of such tax.

THE UNION PACIFIC'S ATTITUDE.

The Company Has Decided Not to Join in the Freight War.

The Union Pacific will not take part in the great freight war, at least for the present. In view of the fact that both the B. & M. and Chicago & Northwestern are actively engaged in the strife and that these two roads enter a considerable portion of the territory covered by the Union Pacific the decision of that company has occasioned much surprise. The points in Nebraska the rates of the B. & M. and Northwestern are much lower on all classes of freight and the stand taken by the Union Pacific, is to say the least a very strange one. In conversation with an old railroad man yesterday a Bee reporter was informed that in all probability the unusually strange attitude of the Union Pacific was due to an agreement with the warring roads, whereby the freight rates would be so raised and the Union Pacific would receive its share whether they carried a pound or not. This it is hoped would break up the war at an early date, assuming all dealers west of the Missouri river are delaying giving orders for goods hoping to get a very small freight rate. They are anxiously watching the movements of the Union Pacific managers and will hold off as long as possible before ordering any freight shipped. Of course this will affect all the roads and they, seeing that consignments, even at reduced rates, are very low, will list their goods to be shipped early in the spring.

BENCH AND BAR.

District Court. ON TRIAL FOR ROBBERY. William Keiff, the hackman charged with robbery, was placed on trial yesterday before Judge Groff. The preponderance of the testimony was much against the prisoner.

A CRUEL HUSBAND. Minnie A. Henkle in her petition for a divorce, filed in the district court, charges that her husband, yesterday afternoon says that she was married to defendant June 9, 1883, at Swagway, Ia., and has always conducted herself as a good wife should. Completely disregarding his vows at the altar, Abraham, by constant use of intoxicants has become a habitual drunkard and has used her with extreme cruelty. He has struck her and otherwise mistreated her.

MORTUARY.

JUDGE WEISS. The funeral of this well-known gentleman took place Sunday afternoon from his late residence on Eighteenth street near Leavenworth. It was largely attended by friends and acquaintances who had known the deceased in life. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. A. Copeland, of the Unitarian church. The pallbearers were A. P. Nicholas, Henry Bolin, Henry Scavers, Geo. E. Strathman, Herman Mover and W. A. Henkle. The remains of the deceased were buried, J. B. Houck delivered an eloquent and forcible address at the grave.

BENKIN. Edward Benkin, whose death was announced in the Bee of Saturday was buried in Forest Lawn cemetery, under the auspices of the Carpenters and Joiners union. The funeral took place from the residence of the deceased, Fifth and Pierce streets and was preceded by the Union Pacific band, to the northern part of the city.

FEWTH. The remains of Paul Forth, nephew of Mrs. Fred Krug and Mrs. Ed Witt, were buried Sunday afternoon, in Forest Lawn cemetery, the funeral cortege leaving Drexel & Maul's, where the remains of the young man had lain since his death, two days before in St. Joseph's hospital.

WENCESLAUS. The remains of the unknown, whose remains have been lying in state at Barrett & Healy's, were buried yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock in St. Mary's cemetery. Funeral services were held at the Bohemian church on South Fourteenth street.

BRADY. The first special policeman who acted on the sixteenth street residence of his family, 1421 South Sixteenth street. He was a quiet unassuming man, esteemed by all his acquaintances. Some months ago a change took place in his position, since which time inactivity and a complication of diseases worked upon him with the result above mentioned. The funeral will take place this morning at 9 o'clock, the services being held at St. Patrick's church.

FREDDY MACKAY. The death yesterday of Freddy, the five-year-old nephew and adopted child of Mrs. Mackay, 1615 Chicago street, was from a curious and unusual cause. About a year ago one of his play-fellows in sport thrust a piece of chalk into his ear. The piece was so firmly fixed in the orifice that it could not be removed, and as a result an abscess formed, which was treated in vain by physicians. There was no suppuration in the case, profuse, and only a few hours before his death the boy was out at play. The death was sudden and is thought to have been caused by the abscess bursting in the brain, causing the same effect as apoplexy.

OMAHA ALWAYS AHEAD.

Albert, the Champion Pedestrian, a Former Resident of This City.

It may not be generally known, but it is a fact that Albert, the winner of the recent six day and set about to discover the truth. His investigation lasted nearly a year. His contract in brief were as follows: James at Cornell contrived many debts which were paid shortly after the robbery, that he had sent $2,000 to a Mrs. Coates in Illinois and had money for his ruining her daughter. That on the Sunday night preceding the robbery James had purchased an Olean drug store with which he undoubtedly drugged his brother. About two months later a report reached him that he had been drowned off Long Branch while yachting, and that his body could not be recovered. A week afterwards a respectable looking man giving his name as Alfred Thomas appeared at the Laffer farm and confirmed the news. He brought with him certain papers that bore out his statement, and James was given up as dead.

Charged with Robbery.

Frank Hampton, a traveling man, appeared before Assistant County Attorney Gurley yesterday and made complaint against Nellie King, charging her with robbing him of $100 in her house Sunday night. Hampton called there in a state of intoxication, and yesterday discovered that he had been robbed. Miss King denied the story to a Bee reporter, and renounced Hampton as a dead-beat and a hulk. She said she counted his money after he had been in the house an hour or so and that he had but $85 in bills, and two or three dollars in silver, and that he lost one of it nor left none of it in her place. She was arrested later on and her husband was taken into custody. When the case came up Miss King was dismissed, as Hampton failed to appear. She is very indignant at the charge made against her, and has since sworn out a warrant for the arrest of the complainant on the charge of perjury.

What the Mother-in-Law Says.

Mrs. Ellen Kinsey, mother-in-law of William Kinney, whose domestic troubles have received some prominence lately, states that she is in no wise responsible for the trouble in the Kinney household. Mrs. Kinsey says she does not court the prominence in which this affair has brought her name, yet it is a fact that she feels called upon to make this denial. She regrets greatly the misfortune of her daughter, yet is satisfied that she has done all in her power to avert it.

Lectures to Men.

On next Monday evening, at Trinity cathedral, Dean Gardner, who has distinguished himself as one of the most effective pulpit orators in this city, will commence a series of lectures, which will continue during the week and are intended solely for gentlemen. These lectures will partake largely of the nature of a mission and will be both interesting and particularly appropriate as an introduction to and the inauguration of the penitential season of Lent.

Mrs. Patton's Friends.

The friends of Mrs. Patton, wife of the street car driver who attempted suicide Saturday, state that the charge that the act was due to improper conduct on the part of Mrs. Patton is absolutely false. They state that the real cause of Patton's foolish act was due to the fact that he was out of employment and in depressed spirits. The friends of Mrs. Patton were shocked at the intimation of any wrong done on the part of Mrs. Patton, whom they describe as a model wife and a lady in every respect.

Fell on His Cheek.

G. W. Thayer, the newspaper messenger on the American express between Omaha and Hastings, on Saturday jumped off a train at the latter place and was thrown heavily upon the ground, cutting and bruising his face in a painful manner. At the depot, trains No. 1 and No. 2 meet, and it was his custom to go down on one and return on the other. He was attempting to reach the latter when he met with the accident, Thayer will be laid up for several days.

C. C. Belden, of Thompson, Belden & Co., left yesterday for New York city, on a purchasing tour.

Belden accompanies the Chicago firm of Mallory & Son, who will visit friends, Mr. Belden will return in about ten days.
