N. Y. Plumbing Co. New spring goods at Reiter's. To-night there will be a special meeting of Harmony Chapter No. 25, O. E. S. By order W. M. A marriage license was issued yesterreceipts of country produce, and corn has gone up from 38 to 39 and 40 cents at the city market.

It is now confidently stated that the motor line to Lake Manawa will be ready to start full operations by the 15th of April. If ready thus early a successful opening of the season is assured. The vinegar factory started up yesterday. Within a day or two everything will be running smoothly and the estab lishment will then be run to its full

P. H. Wind, one of the directors of the new State Savings bank, is fitting up the rooms of the institution and getting them in readiness for the opening of business about March 1st. J. Gilbert is engaged in putting down drive wells to supply water to the air compressor engines operating at the new bridge. Four of these wells are now in successful operation, which gives a bounteful supply of the aqueous fluid. C. H. Kellogg, of Sioux City, the owner of considerable realty in the city, is preparing to build a two-story brick block just south of the present store of Odell & Bryant, on Pearl street. When completed this firm will occupy it. Work upon it will begin about April 1.

Another phase is to be put upon the occupation of the lands near the rives by the so-called squatters. Injunctionr were secured yesterday against these occupants of the land, restraining them from in any way interfering with the owners, and forbidding them from cultivating the land, or even trespassing

An overcoat belonging to John Rey nolds was stolen from the third story of the Bloomer school Monday afternoon. It was found in an Omaha pawn shop, where it had been "scaked" for $2.50. The coat cost $30. The smooth-faced dude who stole it will probably be somewhat cautious hereafter in making his visits to this side of the river.

Mrs. S. S. Nash died of heart disease vesterday morning at her home, 210 Knepper street, at the age of forty-six years. The funeral will be held to-morrow, with interment at Fairview. Samuel Day, formerly of this place, but now of Sioux City, a brother of the deceased, and another brother from Grinnell. Ia., will be here to attend the obsequies.

The path of the boarding-house keeper is not strewn with roses, as Mrs. Almy has found out, and she yesterday invoked the aid of the law to bring a delinquent boarder to time. Justice in the case was dealt out by Squire Schurz in double-handfuls at the customary price. The name of the delinquent was Kehoe, and his brother promptly squared the matter.

The Episcopal ladies' supper last evening was largely attended and well patronized. A comparatively small part of the viands were disposed of, and a lunch will be served to-day and another supper this evening. The supper was pre-Templar, but as that was indefinitely postponed the perishables had to be disposed of, and the ladies took this method of doing it.

Mayor Rohrer seems to be the leading choice of the democratic party for re-election. He states that he is willing to accept the nomination, but that he is not yet a retired millionaire, and it will be necessary for the salary of the mayor to be increased considerably in order to allow him to devote the ne essary time to the office. It is inti-mated that he places the figures at about $2,400 per year. A live mayor can hardly be procured at the present meager salary, anyway.

The contestants in the Fairmount park case continue to give evidence that they are still alive, although they do not appear to be doing much. Yes-terday the non-resident defendants filed a showing of authority, entitling the attorneys for the city to appear for them. Mr. Haldane filed an objection to the showing on the grounds of its insufficiency. It is impossible to say when the case will come to trial, but it certainly will not be until after the attorneys have exhausted all the motions and cross-motions known to the legal fraternity.

Judge Aylesworth did a good cash business in police court yesterday. Wil-liam Jones and Bill Beath were each assessed $7.60 for imbibition. Mary and Kittie Jackson, two of the members of the Omaha demi-monde, were charged with being gloriously drunk. They were arrested at George DeLong's saloon, and he was also charged with drunkenness, but discharged. The frail Omahans were assessed $8.10 each and assigned to "room 24" in the city jail. The members of the force entertained their company in read style.

their company in good style. The Uniformed Knights of Pythias are making extensive preparations to go to the grand emcampment at Cincinnati next June. It is predicted that several hundred will go from western Iowa, and hundred will go from western Iowa, and as many more from the other side of the river, so that the slope will be represented by a thousand or more. Bluff City division meets this evening for their first drill. It is intended to so perfect themselves in the drill as to make a commendable appearance in the grand review. Colonel C. W. Hicks, of the Third regiment, has appointed as adjutant, Colonel E. J. Abbott.

To Be Cleared at Last. The city council is in correspondence with several firms that manufacture street sweepers, with an eye to purchasing one. The cost of these machines ranges from $300 to $800. It is understood that a deal will be closed before very long, and that the streets will then be put in first class order. Such being the case, this is the last season when mud will reign supreme on the paved streets of Council Bluffs. The King's Daughters, of the Presbyterian church, will entertain a sociable Thursday evening at the residence of Mrs. Stevenson, corner of Park avenue and Pierce street. A fine programme has been arranged in which several of Council Bluff's choice musicians will take part. The daughters will receive you cordially at the door.

The Bridge Company Satisfied.

The leading" members of the Broadway bridge company were asked yesterday what they thought of the official report made by the secretary of war, and published in yesterday's BEE. They replied very promptly and emphatically that they were satisfied with it. "Do you anticipate any further trouble about the matter?"

"Why, no. We don't see how there can be, or how there ought to be. One of the chief complaints made by those who have opposed the enterprise has been that we were not building such a combined bridge as was contemplated. You see the official report pretty squarely settles that point. It says: 'The bridge is being constructed as a combined railway and wagon bridge, and in this particular is believed to be in accordance with the provisions of the act of March 3, 1887.' It seems to remove all doubt as to what is being done, and whether the bridge will be such a one as the law requires."
"But what about the plans not being the ones which were approved by the secretary of war?"

"There is some difference in the plans, but our present plans have advantages over the first plans. It is simply a technical difference, mainly in regard to the length of the spans. stead of having three spans 300 feet each, we have the main span 400 feet and the two others 250 feet each. Of course there can be no real objection to this change, and in fact it is pronounced in the official report a better plan than the original. If we are doing better than the law required no one can com-plain. The report of the engineer says: "The design met my approval, as I considered that with a 400 feet span over the main channel and two 250 feet spans adjacent thereto better accommodation was afforded to navigation than by the three 300 feet spans required by law, while the waterway would be the same."

"What about the change suggested by the engineer?" That is simply in regard to the carriage-way trusses of the two last river spans. Those two spans are not over the hannel, and the river may never be in such condition as to ever permit the passage of boats there, in which case the trusses as now planned would be all right, but if the channel should ever change, those trusses could very easily be lifted right up out of the way. The change of those trusses in no way affects the grade line. We have planned for just such a possible change as this, and t is a comparatively unimportant mat-

'You are therefore satisfied with the finding as it is?" "Most certainly we are."

"But what about the change from Dodge to Douglas street?"

There were some insurmountable objections on Dodge street—the crossing of Union Pacific tracks, and the smelling works property-but the worst feature was the engineering difficulty to over-come a hump in the bed rock of nineteen feet opposite Douglas street that did not exist opposite Dodge street. By placing a 300-foot span, leaving this nineteen foot lump projecting upward, might have caused an obstruction of the channel, and probably would, throwing the channel on to the east side from the west, where so much has been spent in

The Trial of Coffman. The Coffman case was at last reached yesterday. Most of the day was spent in the dreary task of securing twelve men as a jury. Most of the examinations were uninteresting, but the court room was well filled with those who seemed anxious to hear even this. George Drake was about the only juryman called who broke the monotony. He frankly declared that he always had an opinion about any matter in which he was interested to any degree, and that whatever prejudices he had were always in favor of his friends. He could not tell whether his opinions and prejudices in this case would prevent his giving a fair verdict or not. "I mean just this, that if one witness swore to one thing, and another just to the opposite, so that it was about even, I would stick by my friends." He was at last excused, and the jury was soon after completed, the state having exhausted its peremptory challenges and the defense having three left. At torneys Ware and Mynster are prosecuting, while on the defense are Colonel Daily, Colonel Sapp and N. M. Pusey.

I It was near the hour for adjourning when the jury was secured. Attorney Ware objected to the jury being allowed to separate during the progress of the trial, and asked that a bailiff be placed in charge of them to keep them together, and separate from the rest or the world The attorneys for the defense objected The attorneys for the detense objected to this, on the ground that it was a needless inconvenience upon the jury, and that the jurymen could be trusted without being thus locked up day after day. In other cases it was not customary to thus keep the jury locked up, and when this case was tried before this was not done.

Judge Lockburgow decided that under

Judge Loofbourow decided that under the statute he could not do otherwise than to direct a bailiff to keep them in charge, if either party objected to their being separated. After the opening addresses to the jury Deputy Sheriff Cusick took charge of the twelve and marched them off. This case has been before the public in various forms ever since the 29th of July, 1885, at which time the trouble occurred which resulted in the death of Jack Main and the arrest of A. W. Coff-man, the defendant. Main was at work for Coffman, and some trouble arising between them Main met Coffman at between them Main met Coffman at a restaurant in Avoca, where both lived, and there they had a settlement of their accounts. Then an altercation followed, in which Coffman was badly punished by Main and which ended in Coffman fatally shooting Main. The grand jury which met in December, 1885, failed to find an indictment against Coffman, but in June following the grand jury then in session returned a bill charging him with manslaughter. The case was tried and the jury disagreed. Now it comes up for another trial.

Coffman has claimed that the killing was in self defense. The controversy over the evidence in the case has proved of interest on account of the prominence, wealth and standing of Coffman, rather than on account of any effort of Main's friends, for he died without any estate or family. Aside from the in-terest which would naturally arise out of the case itself, there is a great-deal more interest because of the complica-tions which have arisen, and which have in part been fastened onto the case. Coffman has been a thorn in the flesh to some, especially to some of the local democratic leaders. The party line has been drawn somewhat in the matter, and in addition to this there arose a dispute between Coffman and Fremont Benjamin, who was one of his attorneys in the first days of his arrest. Benjamin sued Coffman for $2,500 fee. An action was commenced against Benjamin to get him debarred, but this was dropped. Another suit was commenced against Coffman for $10,000 in favor of W. B. Cuppy, who had been appointed administrator of the Main estate. So many chapters have been added to the history, that it has been kept before the public much of the time since the homicide. Although Main's relatives do not appear in the case, there seems to be no lack of earnestness in the prosecution, and this gives some color to the claim of Coffman and his friends that there are other motives stronger than the mere desire to see law vindicated and justice secured.

The jury selected in the case is as follows: H. C. Hartwell, H. A. Smith, William Schoenning, J. Timberman, John Burk, Simon Reynolds, O. O. St. John, Francis Lowe, G. Larson, W. O. Barnes, R. A. Price, E. Thorenten.

The County's Furniture.

The furniture for the new court house arrived yesterday morning over the Milwaukee, and teams were busy during the day in conveying it to its destination. The building is being cleaned as fast as possible, Superintendent Hardin having half a dozen women scrubbing the rooms. The new furniture, consisting of chairs, tables, etc., is stored in the main corridor on the first floor. By the last of the week everything will be in order, and the count officers will soon after be installed in their new quarters.

Mr. John M. Carter, supervising ar chitect, will be through with the steam heating company on Saturday, and will then return to St. Joseph, where he will have charge of the outside work of Messrs. Eckel & Mann, the architects Their work there at present amounts to nearly $500,000. During his stay in this city Mr. Carter has won golden opinions for himself, both as a business man and a gentleman. Uniformly courteous and pleasant to all who have visited the building, he has carefully watched the progress of the work, and it is largely lue to his conscientious and painstaking superintendence that the county is nov in possession of such a perfectly built structure as its new court house. Mr. Carter will leave many warm friends in Council Bluffs, and carry away sincere wishes for his continued success and prosperity.

Farmers Insure Each Other.

The annual meeting of the Pottawattamie County Farmers' Mutual Insurance company was held at the Kiel hotel yesterday. Reports of the various committees were heard. The number of policies written during the past year is 260; the amount covered by these policies is $476,957; number cancelled and expired during the year, 196; amount of cancelled policies, $303,165; net gain, $173,792; total amount of risks in force at present, $1,204,669; total number of policies, 726; losses during the year, $1,854.45; assessment, 1½ mills on first class risks. The date of the annual meeting was changed from February to the second Wednesday in October.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, R. Campbell; vice president, Hon. A. W. Wyman; secretary, E. H. Ohlendorf; treasurer, C. B. Waite; directors for three years, J. A. Ferrington, of Mills county, and D. F. Dryden, of Hardin township; for one year, O. L. Barrett, of Hazel Dell. Directors holding over are Bassil Fox, of Loveland; J. P. Hesse, of Lewis, and John Hartje, of Keg Creek.

There were present nearly one hun-dred and twenty-five farmers, represent-ing all parts of Pottawattamie, Harrison and Mills counties. The next meeting will be held in October, 1888.

The Hotel Moves.

Yesterday morning Messrs. Allen & Bell, architects, were ordered by the board of trade committee to prepare sketches of a hotel, which are to be used in furthering plans now under consideration by that organization. These sketches will present a sevenstory building 102x110 feet. Several rumors are affoat growing out of this fact, but of the plans outlined by the committee absolutely nothing is known. This much may be said with safety: At this time three schemes are on foot and and all are meeting with more or less favor. Should that of the board of trade committee seem the most feasible and best meet the public favor, a syndicate will be formed, a first-class site se-lected and the building immediately erected. Council Bluffs is sure of a first-class hotel.

The Apollo Club. There was not so large an audience a the opera house last evening as the A pollo club concert merited. The programme was colirely changed from that of the preceding concert, there being but one or two of the numbers given before. The club sang grandly. The serenade aroused much enthusiasm and its composer, Mr. Tabor, who served as the accompanist during the evening, was called forth to bow an acknowledgement of the hearty encore. The lullaby, which was next to the closing number, was also heartily encored. A very enjoyable trio, "Memory," was given by Mrs. Latey, Miss Pennell and Mr. W. R. Wilkins. Each of these ladies also gave solos. Mrs. Latey won her way into the favor of the audience with her very first notes, and both her with her very first notes, and both her solos were enthusiastically encored. Miss Pennell gave as a solo, "Sing Heigh-Ho," which was warmly applauded, necessitating her appearance again, but she would respond but with a bow. The Apollo club has thus afforded the music lovers here two grand feasts, and they certainly merit more substantial encouragement than that they have thus far received.

Said to Rival the Great Kentucky Hole.

Huntsville (Ala.) special to the Chicago Times: A discovery has been made that promises to give to Huntsville a reputation possessed by few places in the United States. A rival to the great Mammoth cave has just been found within a mile of the corporation lines. The existence of this cave has been known for years, but it was never suspected to be but one of many insig-nificent holes in the ground. The cave is what is known as the Bowling James farm. The entrance is small and uninviting. A descent of over fifty feet was necessitated to reach the main floor. The decent, of course, is not nearly direct, but can at no great expense be made so. Once in the cave, the party lighted lanterns, of which they took with them as many as the three could carry, and started on their excursion. They were not long in as-certaining that they were in a tremendous cavern, and in order to be sure of finding their way back they placed lanterns along their path, and about 200 yards separated. The room in which they found themselves they estimated to be 250 or 300 acres in area, though this is only a guess, since they could not in the darkness see far ik any direction. The wall, in places where they came in contact with it is covered with a substance that, even in the timid light of the lanterns, glistened as crystal and in many places they came upon formrtions curious in form and dazzlingly beauti-

The explorers wandered about in one direction and another for two hours, and finally found their progress im-peded, if indeed not quite cut short, by a beautiful body of water. By the light a beautiful body of water. By the light of their lanterns they were enabled to guess as to the width of the lake, but missiles thrown by them as far as possifell in water. They might have made their way around it, and attempted to do so, but after traveling a short distance they discovered an entrance to what appeared to be a second enormous room. This they could not enter because the water of the lake partially closed the entrance. At this point there were indications that this point there were indications that the stage of the lake is not stationary, as the floor appeared wet beyond the edge of the water showing that the water had receded. People here are delighted at their "find," and have named the great cav-ern "Shelta rock." They will at once alter the opening or approach into the cave and arrange for perfect lighting, so that a thorough inspection can be made. Parties who have visited Ken-tucky's Mammoth cave believe "Shelta rock' to be fully as extensive.

A Remarkable Coincidence. Chicago Mail: "You ask me if I am superstitious," said a well known hotel clerk. "No, not to any extent. There is one thing, however, that I have noticed. There are contain. ticed. There are certain numbers on the annunciator that demand more at-tention than others. I don't account for it. I suppose there is no way of accounting for it, and so I'll let it ge. But I haven't failed to notice it. Because certain rooms are occupied more than others is no excuse for it. "I'll tell you a strange thing that hap-pened one night when I was on watch. It was quiet in the hotel, for nearly every guest was in. I was reading a newspaper, when my attention was called to a number on the board which was uncovered. I glanced at it, called front, told the boy to go to No. -, and resumed my reading. In a few minutes the boy returned, and said there was no response. I looked over the rooms that had been taken, and found that no one had been assigned to the room in question. I didn't think anything more about it then, for the wires frequently get disarranged, and one push on the button will uncover the numbers of three or four rooms.

uncovered again, and I called to the hoy and gave him the pass key, telling him to go into the room and light the gas and inspect it. If there is anything that will make a negro's teeth chatter it is to go on such an errand. How-ever, he went, and in about ten minutes returned with the information that the room was unoccupied. The number dropped again, but I said nothing more thinking now that the wires were disarranged. I went off watch and went to bed.

"When I came down and picked up the morning paper, the first thing I saw was the announcement of the death of Senator Logan. Then I recalled the fact that he always occupied the room, the number of which had acted so strangely, when he was here. I am not superstitious, but I confess that I thought it a very strange occurrence. I told this same story, I think to my doctor, and he laughed so heartily about it that I have never told it since till now. No, I won't tell you what the number is."
