Delivered by Carrier in Any Part of the City at Twenty Cents Per Week.

H. W. TILTON, MANAGER. TELEPHONES: BUSINESS OFFICE, No. 12, PEARL STREET; NIGHT EDITOR, No. 21.

MINOR MENTION.

N. Y. Plumbing Co. New spring goods at Reiter's. The board of trade meets to-morrow evening.

The Chautauqua circle meets this evening in its rooms on Pearl street. Colorado club at C. B. Lumber Co., 900 Main street. Telephone, 257.

The republican club meets this evening at the office of Stapp & Pusey. Money to loan on improved city property by W. S. Cooper, 130 Main street.

N. P. Dodge is expected home from his Colorado visit about the last of the week. Canon Dougherty, of Omaha, spoke at St. Paul's Episcopal church yesterday morning.

Fred Spetman received the first order from Overseer of the Poor Harding, given from his new office.

Lyman Baker and Elizabeth Booddy, both of Lincoln, Neb., were married Saturday afternoon by Squire Schurz.

E. A. Troutman startles his friends by saying that he does not want to run for city auditor, and is not seeking that nomination.

Miss Kate Riley's new residence on Park avenue is being fitted up by J. C. Bixby with all the latest improvements in the plumbing line.

N. W. Bowman, of Washington township, was the first man to pay his taxes in the new court house. The number of his receipt was 1,000.

Officer Covatt has been on the sick list for the past two days. Deputy Marshal George Guanello is holding his place on the night force on the middle Broadway bent.

The hotel improvement craze seems to be general throughout the city. The Revere house is being papered and painted, and the Metropolitan is undergoing extensive repairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Frame, the Quaker evangelists, will continue their meetings at the Broadway Methodist church this week. Their work is highly commended and is securing great results.

In the Washburn yards Saturday evening a switch engine struck the team of Peter Winter, who hauls coal for Gleason. One of the horses was killed instantly and the other had a very narrow escape.

Mrs. Cole, of Mt. Pleasant, has kindly consented to hold a meeting for young ladies only, on Tuesday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, in the Baptist church. All young ladies from twelve to eighteen are cordially invited.

The Presbyterians hold their weekly prayer meeting in the room over the gas company's office. There has yet been no apparent effect upon that heartless corporation, and the greedy price of $4 a thousand is still maintained.

The district court opens up this morning in the new court house. Workmen were busy yesterday putting in the opera chairs, and attending to other finishing work in order to have everything in readiness for to-day.

There was a large attendance at the Presbyterian church last evening. The meeting was a union of the Presbyterian Congregational and Episcopalian churches. Mrs. Cole spoke in the interest of the White Cross movement.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Harris entertained a gathering of their friends at their residence, No. 609 Myrnestreet last evening, by being Purim, one of the Jewish holidays. The guests were hospitably received, and the occasion was thoroughly enjoyable.

Attendees at the Broadway Methodist church are much interested in the movements of a swallow that makes its home in the cap at the top of the large pillar in the auditorium of the church. The little thing comes and goes apparently oblivious of the fact that hundreds of eyes are watching him.

Captain O'Brien worked hard to secure delegates favorable to his nomination as city marshal by the coming democratic convention. He has secured Fourth ward pretty solid, but Marshal Guanello seems to have the three other wards, and to be strongly in the lead. O'Brien is thought to have overreached himself.

A collection was recently taken at the Overton mission, the family in independent circumstances. The head of the family is physically well able to care and provide for his own flesh and blood, but for some unknown reason fails to do so. The family has been dependent on the charity of the neighbors for some time.

W. C. Dickey, N. Morriam, E. H. O'Dell, J. N. Baldwin, J. T. Baldwin, George Keeline and Mr. Samuels, owners of the eighty acre tract north of the transfer, known as the Wright tract, have agreed to subdivide the land. It will be divided into forty lots and platted as an addition to Council Bluffs.

J. M. Carter, superintendent of the construction of the new court house, has been boarding at the Kiel hotel for a long time. This evening he expects to leave for St. Joe, but he will not be very apt to forget his old home, for he now tells the time by an elegant gold watch, the inscription on which records the fact it was presented to him by D. Holst and family and H. Spetman.

The jury in the Coffman case relieved the monotony of Sunday by marching to church in the charge of Judge Sherman. In the morning they went to the Presbyterian church to hear a sermon about the devil, and in the evening they went to the revival services at the Methodist church. The rest of the time was spent in quarreling as to whether there should be more windows turned on in their room or the windows opened.

ROBERT HUNTINGTON'S DEATH.

Meetings in the Interests of Social Purity—The Coffman Jury—Personal and Flying Items of Bluffs News.

Social Purity. There was a large and attentive audience at the Broadway Methodist church yesterday afternoon to hear Mrs. Cole, the organizer of the White Cross and White Shield orders, speak in the interests of that movement.

She proved to be a very interesting speaker, and presented a startling array of figures and facts, that proved conclusively the urgent need of such work as she is doing with such grand results.

The meeting was opened with the singing of a hymn, and after a short prayer, the pastor, Rev. W. H. W. Rice, introduced the speaker. Said she: "For God, for the home, and for our native land," are known to even the little boys and girls of to-day. This motto has broadened out until it reads, "For every land. We have reached a point where drink is not the lowest possible degree of degradation, for it only paves the way for greater depths of debauchery. There is an evil that is even undermining our constitution and our boasted freedom. Like the mythical hydra-headed monster of Lysias, it is constantly charming new victims, blackening homes, and carrying death and desolation to thousands of loving hearts. Unlike that monster it is no myth. Would to God that it were. Our monster is three-headed, combining drink and the social evil, and breathing forth its polluting breath over all classes and grades of society. Our monster hides from the light of day in dens, caves and behind screens, carrying on its work of death and destruction. Every thoughtful person in this nation knows that our land is strewn with the remains of youths and maidens who should have been at the head of government and who should have been the pride of homes now desolated and destroyed.

This monster cannot be attacked on its own level. We must have help from above, and the long-looked for and long-prayed for time is almost here, when the monster will be slain and civilization be free.

All grades and ages of humanity are in the pursuit of happiness. If I were asked for a definition of happiness that would be above all danger of criticism, I would say that happiness consists in the fulfillment of functions in doing that which we are created to do. Take for example the entire grazing on the hillsides, in their peace and contentment they present a picture of beauty and fulfilled functions. They are doing what they were created to do. In the world of humanity we find no such picture. The animals are guided by instinct, but we find none in man, for the great creator has given a far better guide to perfect enjoyment. He is endowed with physical, intellectual and spiritual natures. He is given the self-guiding command of the will instead of the instinct of the animal. At birth his requirements are much the same, then the intellect shows, and finally at maturity he also possesses a spiritual nature that should prevent him from seeking his enjoyment in the low channels of the animal, but should lead him to higher thoughts and means of enjoyment.

That is a perfect picture of fulfilled functions. We are not on stony structures like the animal, we have a three fold character to fulfill. Happiness for the human soul can not be found here below.

I have longed to hang object lessons in all school rooms and places where young people congregate. The beautiful picture of "Aurora" presents a beautiful thought. As Phebus drives the chariot of the sun, holding in check his four fiery steeds, so should man hold in check his appetites and passions, and Aurora sprinkling flowers and dewdrops should serve as an example for maidens to democratic convention through life the man who adores them, and bless the community in which they live. To each one of us is given the privilege to say: "Get thee behind me, satan."

Other faculties rest on the physical, and that on the appetites and passions. After a graphic account of an investigation of a Chicago reporter, the speaker made an earnest plea that deeply affected the entire congregation. The subject was brought home to them all, and the rest of the meeting will doubtless be extensively felt.

All About the Devil. "Your adversary, the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." These were the words which served as a basis for a very interesting sermon delivered yesterday morning by Rev. Dr. Phelps at the Presbyterian church. In his preface he drew some very vivid word pictures of the lion. There was the ambushing, the crouching, the sudden spring upon the innocent victim. There was little majesty or nobleness in the lion. There was greed and cruelty. In this respect the adversary of all mankind was like the lion. The speaker scouted the idea that the adversary was a mere evil influence. There was a strong personality. Nowhere in the bible, as shown from a study of the original languages, was there any allusion to a plurality of the devils. There was but one devil. He was given distinct personal names—the adversary, satan, the prince of darkness, etc. There were numerous demons, but they were simply fallen angels, followers of the one great leader, agents of his, but by no means equal to him. The speaker believed that this being was none other than Lucifer, "the great light bearer," originally created by God, and doubtless the greatest being ever created by God. Christ was not a creature, was not created by God. He was the Son of God—in fact, was God, and was from the beginning. Lucifer was created. He was so grand an angel that he stood pre-eminently above others. He aspired, however, to the full power of God and sought to wrest the very throne. There was war in heaven between this mighty being with his following of angels and Michael, who was none other than Christ. In this terrible conflict the dragon, or Satan, was defeated and driven from heaven. He became woefully evil, revengeful, and bent on thwarting God's purposes.

The speaker denied that he got this from Milton. All that Milton had was got from the bible. This terrible adversary was a real person. It could be no mere influence, no intangible, intelligently directed, must emanate from some personal being.

The devil must have been created before the world, for he was in the garden of Eden tempting the first parents. He must be over 6,000 years old. Men who live to be four score and seven, are reprieved for the wisdom they have been able to accumulate in that time, but this being, created with such great capabilities, had been for thousands of years gaining in craftiness and strength. He knew human weakness better than ever before, and could easily capture his prey. He was indeed a dangerous adversary.

One of the greatest points of his strength was that of charming his victims, as the snake charms the bird. He led to believe there was no danger to them. They were enticed on by seeming pleasures. They were led to believe there was no such thing as a devil. This was the most dangerous condition in which any one could be.

The devil had dared to war against God. He had been so persuasive enough to call God a liar. He had tempted Jesus Christ, and wanted him to fall down and worship him. Would such an adversary shrink from attacking the poor, weak humanity?

The devil was not, however, infinite. He was not equal to God. He was not omnipresent. It seemed sometimes that he was everywhere, but he had no such God-like attribute. He was as quick as thought. He could tempt the preacher in the pulpit right here, and the next instant be tempting some man in Japan. Then he had his numerous agents and agencies, and was ever at work, but God was the only omnipresent and omniscient one.

The only safety was that expressed in the words following those of the text: "whom withstand steadfastly your faith." Faith in Christ, and steadfastness would alone save a man from this terrible adversary.

Death of Robert Huntington. Robert Huntington, whose death was chronicled in yesterday's Bee, was one of the oldest and best known residents of this county. He was born in Lancashire in July, 1821, and remained in England until 1866. He was married in 1840 to Miss Annie Deardon, by whom he had nine children, three sons and six daughters. Three of these are now living and all residents of this city. The others all died in the mother country.

In 1864 his wife died and in 1866, just prior to his departure for this country, he was again married to Miss Mary Bywater. This lady bore him no children and still survives him.

Before coming to America Mr. Huntington was engaged in the furniture business in Leeds, and accumulated quite a competence. When starting for this country it was his intention to go to Lake Umbagog, in New Hampshire, to the faith of the late Mrs. Latta. His mother was the second woman baptized into that faith, being confined to her bed for thirteen years, and getting up from it to walk to be baptized.

On arriving here Mr. Huntington started to visit a prospecting party, was clerking for I. W. Swan, and was induced to remain here. He purchased 320 acres of land in James township and followed the occupation of farmer until 1881, when he came to this city and engaged in the grocery business in which he remained until two years ago, when he continued falling health compelled him to make a change, and he sold out to E. B. Gardner.

Since that time he has resided at 104 Broadway, with the exception of the past few months when he was in the city of St. Louis, Mo., where he had returned from there but ten days before his death. The deceased built the first frame house in James township, and also the first house on Graham avenue in this city. He bought a tract of fourteen acres on the street several years ago and donated to the city the right of way through it to the park. He was a prominent democrat in politics, and was for several years a justice of the peace in James township, and was for some time one of the trustees of Kan township, his last term expiring the first of the present year. During the last two years of his life he gave his attention almost wholly to religious matters, his late wife being of that sect. His death, which he appeared to be no worse than for several months past. The immediate cause of his death was congestion of the lungs. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from his late residence, and will be conducted in accordance with the belief of the Church of Jesus Christ and Latter Day Saints, of which he was an earnest member. The three children of the deceased living here are Robert J. Huntington, Mrs. S. B. James and Mrs. P. S. Halliday. Owing to his long residence in this county the deceased was very well known, especially by all the older residents.

BILL NYE'S DISCOVERER. The Humorist Settles the Matter so Far as is in His Power.

Bill Nye, the humorist, has written to his old friend Slack, editor of the Cheyenne Sun, as follows: ON THE ROAD, Feb. 6, 1888.

Dear Slack—It is funny how much excitement there is over the very unimportant matter of who discovered me. My parents claim that they were responsible. My wife also mildly protests that she was partially responsible, and others seem to be willing to shoulder the responsibility, but it doesn't matter especially. I am more glad that I have remained discovered than ever anything else, for I do not forget that every inducement was held out to me to crawl into obscurity when I left the west and so pull the obscurity in after me. But for the west I would have been born to blush unseen, and the friends who stood by me when I needed it so much have got a warm place in my heart, as they will find if they give me a chance to demonstrate it. I do not forget that Mr. Rothacker saw my work first, I think, in the Sun. But what does it all amount to, anyhow? The whole thing is and has been a thorough surprise to me, and with all claims made by discoverers I am still skeptical about the value of the discovery itself, and whether any precious metal in place exists. Far beyond my most sanguine hopes has been the generous approval of the American press, and better than all has been the kind and spontaneous applause of friends, first in Wyoming and afterward throughout the states.

Of course it will always remain a matter of doubt in some minds who writes my stuff for me. I shall not throw any light on the subject. I prefer to let the public find that out itself, but the man who is doing it is in mighty good health and bids fair to live as long as yours sincerely. BILL NYE.
