REGULATING RAILROAD RATES

Recent Decisions Rendered by the Board of Transportation.

LINCOLN AND THE METROPOLIS.

The Secretary Holds That the Burlington Discriminates in Favor of the Latter—Items Picked Up in the City.

[FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN BUREAU.]

The state board of transportation held a regular meeting at its rooms at the capitol building on Friday and the day was passed in disposing of findings in cases prepared by the secretaries. Each case brought up a discussion on rates but the majority of the board have agreed to let the question rest until the present war is over. The following findings and orders in cases were made:

In the matter of the complaint of the Farmers' union against the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway company, the board, after hearing the case and finding that the charges in the complaint are not sustained. It is therefore ordered that the said complaint be and the same is hereby dismissed.

J. H. AYER, Secretary.

O. P. MARSH, Secretary.

This recommendation was adopted by the board, less one voting no.

In the complaint made against the B. & M. railroad by the citizens of Adams county, the board adopted the following finding and order:

Your secretaries find that the B. & M. railroad has failed to file the matter of crossings in the village of Adams to the wishes of the complainants and your secretaries find for the complainants. It is therefore ordered by the board that said complaint be dismissed as far as it relates to the lines and track and as to the other matters contained in the complaint the same have been satisfactorily adjusted between the road and the complainants and the settlement is satisfactory to the board. The finding was passed unanimously.

In the matter of the complaint of the Lincoln lumber dealers a substitute order was agreed upon differing from the one proposed by the secretaries after much discussion and all voted for it but Mr. Babcock. The findings are as follows:

We find that the rate on lumber charged from Lincoln to the points named constitutes an unjust discrimination against the complainants; that the B. & M. rates on lumber from Lincoln to the points named is in excess of such discrimination, unjust and unreasonable and that a just and reasonable rate would be lower than the present rate in proportion to the distance from the points of shipment. It is therefore by the board of transportation ordered that the Burlington & Missouri River Railroad company at once reduce their tariff rates on lumber from Lincoln to the points named in the complaint so that the rate from Lincoln to said points will be in accordance with the difference in distance from Omaha and Lincoln to such points and that they cease from charging a sum in excess of the existing rate less such proportionate reduction.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

Of the Warnerville mining company, located at Warnerville, Madison county, have been filed with the secretary of state, capital stock $5,000. The incorporators are George A. Latimer, H. Warner, M. R. Morris, Charles Dawson, O. D. Munson and John Duncan.

Amended articles of incorporation of the Western Trust and Security company, of Fremont, have also been placed on file, increasing the capital stock to $500,000. The amended articles are signed by L. D. Richards, president; W. G. Fowler, secretary; and L. M. Keene, J. W. Goff and Henry Fichman, of the board of directors.

DA WOMAN'S CONTEST.

Mrs. Burton's Plucky Fight Against a Land Company.

A correspondent writes to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat from San Diego, Cal.: Great excitement in real estate and business circles has existed here as the result of two telegrams received from the city of Mexico. The International Land company, of Mexico, which has been incorporated in Hartford, Conn., for the purpose of selling and developing lands in Lower California. Edgar T. Welles, of New York, is president of the company. Through the company's office offers his lands in Ensenada, San Carlos, Punta Buena, and other Lower California towns have been sold to the extent of nearly $7,000,000. The land was purchased largely by small settlers and emigrants. Recently documents have been a controversy over the title of lands sold.

The history of the controversy outside the title between the International company and Mrs. Burton, whose name is given in the official documents as Senora Don Maria Amparo Ruiz de Burton, has been an interesting and at times exciting one. Her claims date back to 1834.

Mrs. Burton, who is now an old woman, has labored for eighteen years to regain possession of this property. She found no transfer records in the city of Mexico, but recently presented to the Mexican government the original deeds and claims, and on the strength of these President Diaz has revoked the order of April 4, 1887, which fact was made known here to-day by the receipt of two telegrams from Mrs. Burton's attorneys in Mexico.

The tract of land to which Mrs. Burton has made claim, and which is known as the "Ensenada de Todos Santos" (which translated into English would be "the bay of all saints"). The tract comprises about 300,000 acres. The limits of the tract claimed by Mrs. Burton are given as follows:

On the north, the Arroyo del Carmen; on the east, the Sierra Madre; on the west, the sea-shore; on the south, the Arroyo del Manzanero; and as stated, her boundaries take in an area of about 300,000 acres, and include the new towns of Ensenada, San Carlos City, Punta Banda, the Manzanero and San Rafael valleys and pretty much all the improved property of that section of the country. A son of Mrs. Burton said tonight:

"Unless the International company compromises, we shall at once begin suits of ejectment for possession of the lands."

The company had already received to the amount of $2,000,000 in cash for lands. The largest single purchaser was that of a lady, who put $40,000 in the investment. The other purchasers ranged from $500 to $5,000. The company has sold upwards of $7,000,000 worth of land on the installment plan. Mrs. Burton's claim is still a matter of dispute, and she has carried out, all of the titles issued by the international company will be null and void, and thousands of small settlers and investors will be ruined. Up to the present writing nothing has been heard from the directors and officers of the company, all of whom live in New York and New England.

Mrs. Maria Burton is the widow of General Henry S. Burton, of the United States army. He was a fellow cadet with Halleck and Ord. He came to California with Stevenson's regiment in 1847. With a portion of the regiment he was stationed in Lower California and commanded the defense of El Paso. He also acted as lieutenant governor of the territory. When murdered out he was stationed at San Diego, and there he married a beautiful Mexican girl of good family, named Marie Bandini. This grant in Lower California was made to the great-grandfather of Mrs. Burton for services to the king of Spain. The Bandinis are of pure Castilian blood, and several of Mrs. Burton's sisters have married men who have become distinguished in California. She wrote a romance of Spanish California life, called "The Squatter and the Don," in which she bitterly satirized some of her enemies. She is also the reputed author of the novel "Democracy," descriptive of Washington political life. Mrs. Burton spent her early years in Spain, and she learned closely the advertising columns of the daily papers, hoping to find something that would please her fancy and at the same time be a lucrative and honorable business. Her eye caught the advertisement of a publishing house wanting agents for a work entitled, "What Can a Woman Do?" and offering liberal inducements to active agents. She soon secured a position as traveling saleswoman. The states of Missouri and Kansas were thoroughly and successfully canvassed by the active little lady, and many a commercial traveler in that territory has been delighted and honored with her acquaintance. After following this occupation for two consecutive years, she became imbued with the idea of a publishing house, and she determined to take up the line of independence characteristic of herself, she resigned her position on the road to demonstrate to a certainty the extent of the "What can a woman do?" She determined on a plan of action, that of taking up a homestead in the boundless prairies of the far west, and making herself the "architect of her own fortune."

Returning to Wahoo only to remain a short time preparatory to starting on her overland journey toward the setting sun, in June 1885, together with her sister and brother-in-law she started for her frontier destination. The party wended its way up the valley of the Frenchman, already grown tame by the hand of civilization. On and on through dreary and desolate canyons and fields of sand, where nothing exists but the prickly-pear, and sand-bur, till at last their camp-fire sparkled on the verge of the distant plain—a desert only in the primeval existence of its uncultivated state, needing but the sturdy hand and untiring energy of the hardy pioneer to make it "blossom and bring forth fruit."

Many miles from the outskirts of civilization they entered upon the broad, fertile land between the South Platte and the Frenchman rivers in eastern Colorado. They decided at once to locate, and after hunting about for the evidences of a government survey the heroine of this sketch made selection of a quarter section on which she filed pre-emption, on another a homestead, and another a timber culture. The nearest land office was more than one hundred miles away and necessitated another long and tedious trip, but full of a spirit of determination she made it and filed in the government land office, in her own name, upon 480 acres under the different acts. On their return from the land office they bought enough lumber to build a box house 8x10 feet in dimensions; this was soddled around, which made it comfortable so far as cold weather was concerned. In this she lived for six months, with no companion but a revolver, excepting the occasional visit of a little niece. Her surroundings were anything but cheerful, the only visible objects for miles were three sod shanties away in the far distance, while the whitened and bleached remains of the extinct buffalo were scattered here and there upon the treeless waste, making the loneliness dismal at the sight of their existence. At night the wolves made hideous the surroundings by their never-ceasing howls. Her time was spent in cultivating the required amount of ground to make her title perfect, and in studying the few books her scanty library possessed. The wayfarer who had lost a pony, or who wandered in search of straying cattle, was the sole disseminator of news of the neighborhood. Through all this isolation from the outside world, and the rudeness to which she was subjected in cultivating her "claims," and the prevailing barbarisms of the country she was not the least divested of her refined tastes.

At the end of six months another visit to the land office made her government title secure, the pre-emption claim, paid by the required residence upon the land, and the usual $1.25 per acre, the latter of which was saved from her earnings at teaching and traveling. On her return she secured her residence upon the homestead quarter and continued to cultivate it. Gradually and almost unconsciously to the settlers, others had located in the neighborhood. In the distance in either direction might be seen a few shanties rising above the horizon. Neighbors began to call more frequently, and a settlement on the vacant quarter sections in the community was an assured reality. In the spring of 1887 a corps of U. S. M. surveyors set their stakes through the land located by Miss Gordon on their route to Cheyenne. A few days later the town site company's agent made his appearance, and the location for a site being so very favorable, and being the only land in the entire country about to which a clear title could be given, was not long until negotiations were consummated, at a consideration of $5,000 for eighty acres. A town was platted, a division station equidistant between Holdrege and Cheyenne was located. Everybody in the western states soon heard of Holyoke, and as a consequence emigration poured in by the thousands seeking locations. Town lots were sold at almost fabulous prices; a portion of the eighty acres retained by Miss Gordon was platted and sold. In a few months the rails were laid, and trains were running into the depot of the almost spontaneous city. Another railroad coming up the Frenchman valley from Culbertson to the Black Hills forms a junction here. Already more than eighty business houses are doing a thriving trade in the place. Not a few other towns. The rich agricultural lands in every direction are settled by prosperous farmers. Miss Gordon at an expense of over $7,000, has just completed a fine hotel, and on Sunday, February 5, the magnificent building was opened to the accommodation of the public. The owner realizes for rent an income of one hundred dollars per month. Mr. W. H. Moore is the landlord. The success of Miss Gordon is attributed to her indomitable pluck and energy. She is twenty-five years of age, fair complexion, auburn hair, hazel eyes, symmetrical figure, and regular features, and remarkably good looking. She still resides her homestead on which she yet owns quite a number of business and residence lots in the city, and she has fully demonstrated the fact that a woman can do far more in this busy world than the stronger sex give her credit for. As a slight tribute to the many admirable qualities this lady has displayed, this sketch of her struggles and achievements is presented to the readers of the BEE.

Fighting Horses.

Theodore Roosevelt is contributing a series of separate papers on "Ranch Life" in the Century, which Frederic Remondino illustrates from his own experience. In some of these papers, in the March number we quote the following: "Some horses, of course, are almost incurably vicious, and must be conquered by main force. One pleasing brute on my ranch, will at times rush at a man open-mouthed like a wolf, and it is a regular trick of range stallions. In a great many instances, in most localities there are wild horses to be found, which, though invariably of domestic descent, being either themselves runaway from some ranch or foal out of a wild mare, are as vicious as any wolf, and it is a regular trick of range stallions.
