Another Fast Driving Accident.
The fast driving continues on the crowded thoroughfares and the latest victim is little Fred Wright, who narrowly escaped getting killed yesterday afternoon. He was on the crossing of Thirteenth and Farnam when a man named E. H. Moore came driving at full speed on Farnam street. He did not slacken his speed when nearing the crossing and his team ran against Freddie, knocked him down and trampled him under foot. The vehicle also passed over him. The little fellow was picked up senseless and carried into Kresler's drug store, where he was properly cared for. He had a number of slight wounds, but the most one was where the horse's hoof struck his forehead, tearing the flesh from the skull. The wound was sewed up and the boy taken home.
