Grave Suspicions Aroused By an Ex-Official's Disappearance.

MANY IRREGULARITIES FOUND.

New Light Thrown on the Dodge County Court House Fire-A Farmer Ends His Troubles With a Rope.

A Suspicious Disappearance. FREMONT, Neb., March 9.- [Special to the Bug.]-There is a good deal of comment here over the disappearance of Louis Spear, exclerk of the district court. He left the city early Monday morning, informing his family that he would return on Tuesday. He has not shown up, and thereby hangs a tale. Spear's term of office as clerk of the court expired on the 5th of January. On the night of December 31 the court house took fire and was almost totally destroyed. It happened that many of the records of the district court were in the court room at the time, instead of the vault provided for their safe keeping. A large number of the books and papers of that office were burned. His suc-cessor has discovered among those that were preserved a number of errors and inac-curacies that lead to the suspicion that there was crookedness. His mysterious disappear was crookedness. His mysterious disappear-ance is accepted by many as evidence of this, if not of a more serious crime in connection with the burning. Spear has been a boss in the democratic party of this county for many years. He has held office of some sort many years. He has held onice of some sort the greater portion of the time for the last twelve years, and has manipulated caucuses and conventions with a fine hand, notwith-standing the fact that he was generally re-garded as being dishonest.

The Drama at Fort Niebrara. FORT NIOBBARA, Neb., March 9 .- | Special to the BEE.]-The officers and ladies at the post have formed a theatrical association and last evening put on the boards the well known farce, "Woodcock's Little Game," The players were: Lieutenant Hutchinson, Lieutenant Stafford, Lieutenant Richardson, Mr. Cusack, Mrs. Elliott, Miss Waters, Mrs. Summerways, Miss Lucy Bryant, Navarra

Kautz, Katharine Summerways. Mrs. General Kautz cast the piece and under her management it was made a success. The stage in its arrangement showed her artistic taste. Lieutenant Hutchison, as Woodcock, dressed and acted the part of a blase London sweil, tired of dissipation, wishing for a rest and making the mistake of marrying too young a wife. His acting kept the house in a roar. Mrs. Elliott, as Mrs. Carver, took the house by storm. Her quick changes from the ridiculous to the pathetic were excellent and her make up as Carver's widow was a success. Mrs. Summerways as Mrs. Larkins, a London society woman, took the 1 art well and presented the light, frivolous side of that class to the life. Miss Waters, as Mrs. Woodcock, had a character hard to make anything of, but by her easy and graceful acting and clear enunciation brought out all that was in it. Miss Bryant, as Susan, acted her part well. The two little bridesmaids were very cute and astonished every one by their self-possession. Staffords as Larkins, Richardson as Swansdown, and Cusacks as David were rended well for amateurs. cess. The stage in its arrangement showed Suicide of a Farmer.

OAKLAND, Neb. March 9 .- [Special Telegram to the BEE.]- Robert Ferguson, living two miles northwest of Lyons, suicided yesterday by hanging himself with a rope at terday by hanging himself with a rope attached to a beam in the barn. Despondency was the cause. He was a well-to-do-farmer, age i forty-two, and a bachelor.

Mr. Ferguson was well known in Burt county as an upright, conscientious farmer. He was known to worry considerably when mable to meet his obligations. He and his bired man had taken his cattle—about one hundred and seventy-five head—to the stock field and returned to his house about 90'clock when Mr. Ferguson lit his pipe and went to the barn. When he was found at half-past 11 he was dead. He had attached a rope to a wire which was fastened to the joist and evidently jumped from the loft after tying the noose, as his neck was broken. He was considerably involved and it is believed that his mind became demented. He had resided in this county for eleven years. in this county for eleven years.

Dodge County Republicans.

FREMONT, Neb., March 9.—[Special to the Bee.]—E. H. Barnard, chairman of the republican central committee of the Third congressional district, has just issued a call for the meeting of the committee at the Eno hotel in this city on March 29, at 3 o'clock p. m. The purpose of the meeting is to call a convention for selecting delegates to the pational convention at Chicago, and possibly to fix the date and place for holding the con-gressional convention of this district.

A Big Barn Burned. SYRACUSE, Neb., March 9.- Special to the Bre.]-A large stock barn belonging to George W. Warner, about two miles north of town, was completely destroyed by fire Wednesday night. Thirteen head of fine cattle and three head of horses were burned to a crisp. A large amount of farm implements a crisp. A large amount of farm implements and machinery, together with a quantity of grain, was also consumed. Loss about $2,000; no insurance. The barn was about seventy-five feet square and two stories high. The fire originated in a large pile of hay which was lying on the ground floor near the center of the building.

Mr. Warner had his hands badly burned while energed in freezing some of the stock.

Mr. Warner had his hands badly burned while engaged in freeing some of the stock. He is one of the wealthiest farmers in this section of the country. SPRINGFIELD, O., March 9 .- [Special Telegram to the BEE.]-In August 1880, Mrs. Anderson Merritt died suddenly at her home a few miles east of this city. She was found by her physician unconscious and died without reviving. To-day Mrs. George Merritt, a sister of the deceased, charged that Anderson Merritt bad murdered his wife with a club in a family quarrel. She gives as her reason for preferring the charge, that Anderson Merritt has threatened to kill her. Mrs. Merritt also makes this startling statement

Merritt also makes this startling statement:

"When I was a young woman, one of my children was born and Anderson Merritt is that child's father. He was at that time keeping company with me and my sister. He afterward married her. The child was a girl and is now grown to full womanhood. She married a young man and after the murder of my sister, Anderson Merritt boarded with the young couple. He alienated the young wife's affections from her husband and eloped with her. He is now living with his own illegimate child in Washington courthouse, O. My husband is Anderson Merritt's brother."

Mr. Floyd came to St. Joseph in 1859 as agent for the Hannibal & St. Joseph railroad and Omaha & St. Joseph packet line. He was prominently identified with the interests of the city from the time of his arrival. He was president of the school board from 1872 to 1878, a promi-nent member of the board of trade and a very successful business man. He had been enjoying unusually good health for the past few weeks, and the community was unprepared to receive the news of his death.

Characteristic Indications of It in His Hitherto Unpublished Letters Current in Scribner's Magazine-It Seemed Like a Miracle.

The current publication in Scribner's Magazine of letters selected from the apparently voluminous correspondence of Mr. Thackery, the English novelist, throws a new light upon his character, and explains much of the tenderness and gentleness, which he showed in his romaness, to the lot of womankind. He was essentially appreciative of the commonplace in home life, patient in the detail of its beauty and pathos—actually appreciative and patients as his simple, homeley, yet touching letters indicate. It was the expression of genuine and personal sentiment that he gave vent to in "Vanity Fair" when he said:

"What do men know about woman's martyrdoms? They would go mad had they to endure the hundredth part of these daily pains which are meekly borne by many women. Ceaseless, slavery meeting with no reward; constant gentleness and tenderness met by cruelty as constant; love, labor, suffering, patience, watchtuiness. How many of them have to bear in quiet and appear abroad.

abroad with Cheenvil faces,
as it they felt nothing?

There is in this same ring of characteristic sentiment which the reader will find in many of the letters which Thackeray wrote to his intimate friends in England.

"I doubt," said a lady who has been selected as the subject of this sketch to the writer, "whether there are many women, or meneither, who endured what I did. To feel the growing weakness, the loss of strength, health and courage, to find that the sounds about me grew fainter and fainter every day, and that even the voices of friends I could hear with difficulty. You can't imagine how hard that was to bear."

"You see it had been a matter of only a couple of years with me. I don't think I was ever what you might cail strong, but when this trouble came on and kept growing upon me, it made me weaker and more despondent than ever. I had colds a great deal and trouble with my throat and head. My nose would stop up, first on one side then on the other and if was with difficulty that I could breathe through it at all.
I would always be hawking and hemming and trying to clear my throat. I was more tired when I got up in the morning than when I went to bed the night before. My sleep was not sound, I was very restless. After a while I began to have a pain over my eyes and through my head. I was losing my weight and was reduced to almost askeleton. I had no ambition to do any work and the least exertion would tire to do any work and the least exertion would tire me."

"You speak about sounds being indistinct?"

"Oh, yes. For a long time I noticed that I would have singular noises in my ears—roaring or buzzing sounds they seemed to be. When my catarrh was worse—for that the doctors told me was my trouble, or at least the beginning of it—especially in damp or changeable weather, these sounds in my ears would be more distinct. By and by I found I couldn't hear as plainly as I used to, and was afraid I would become totally deaf."

"But you hear better to-day; you can hear my

"But you hear better to-day; you can hear my voice quite distinctly, can you not?"

"Oh, yes. I will tell you. Some time ago, after using different kinds of treatment. I took the advice of a friend and went to Dr. McCoy's office in Ramge block. I found his office.

PARLORS FILLED WITH PEOFLE.

But it was not very long before I had an opportinity of seeing the doctor. He told me that my troubles were the result of catarrh, and to remove them it would be necessary to remove the cause. He did not tell me he could restore my hearing entirely, but said he could help it, and make me hear better.

"Besides the trouble with my eyes, I had a continual dropping of muscus from my head into my throat, which when I would lie down I would swailow, and it was not long before I found my stomach was out of order—my food would not digest readily, and I had more or less of a pain in the pit of the stomach nearly all the time, and after eating a hearty meal I would have a distress d sensation in my stomach. My eyes, I noticed, were also affected, and when I would go out in the bright light they would pain me and water considerably.

Miss Annie Goodlett, whose portrait is fairly well produced above, came to Omaha about two years ago from Streator, Ill., is a dressmaker by occupation, and resides at the corner of Twenty-fifth street and Poppleton avenue, where the above statement will be verified if the reader will take the pains to inquire about it.

TRACING THE CONNECTION. Signal Dangers Which Are Made

Known Before Consumption Appears.

When catarrh has existed in the head and upper part of the throat for any length of time—the patient living in the district where people are subject to catarrhal affection—and the disease has been left uncured, the catarrh invariably, sometimes slowly, extends down the wind-pipe and into the bronchial tubes, which tubes convey the air into the different parts of the lungs. The tubes become affected from the swelling and mucus arising from catarrh, and in some instances become plugged up so that the air cannot get in as freely as it should. Shortness of breath follows, and the patient breathes with labor and with difficulty.

In other cases there is a sound of cracking and wheezing inside the chest. At this stage of the disease the breathing is usually more rapid than when in health. The patient also has hot flashes over his body.

The pain which accompanies this condition is of a duit character, felt in the chest, behind the breastbone or under the shoulder blade. The pain may come and go—last a few days and then be absent for several others. The cough that occurs in the first stages of bronchial catarrh is dry, comes at intervals, is lacking in character and usually most troublesome in the morning on arising, or going to bed at night, and it may be the first evidence of the disease extending in the lungs.

At first there may be nothing brought up by Appears.

be the first evidence of the disease extending in the lungs.

At first there may be nothing brought up by the cough; then there is a little tough, tenacious mucus, which the patient finds great difficulty in bringing up.

Sometimes there are fits of coughing induced by tough mucous—so violent as to cause vom iting. Later on the mucous that is raised is found to contain small particles of yellow mater, which indicates that the small tubes in the lungs are now affected. With this there are often streaks of blood mixed with the mucous, in cases the patient becomes very pale, has fever and expectorates before any cough appears.

pears.

In some cases small masses of cheesy substance are spit up, which, when pressed between the fingers, enits a bad odor. In other cases particles of a hard, chalky nature are spit up. The raising of cheesy or chalky lumps indicates scrious mischief at work into the lungs.
