Galvin thinks $5,000 will about heal his injured feelings.

O. C. Nelson, janitor of the Latter Day Saints' church on Pierce, discovered Wednes-day evening that the contribution box had been robbed of $6.07, the property of the Sun-day school. The thief had entered by the door, probably having a key that was lost last summer during the progress of a festival in the church. The consummate meanness of the thief in robbing a Sunday school box is almost beyond comprehension.

Deputy Sheriff Hooker, of Carson, arrived in the city yesterday morning, in charge of Charles Norton, a resident of Grove town-ship, charged with rape on the person of the ten-year-old daughter of E. In the attempt to head off the movement for the abolishment of the deputy court at Avoca a petition, or remonstrance, has been circu-lated here to some extent, the purpose of which is evidently to show that residents of Council Bluffs do not want the Avoca court done away with. Among the signers obtained are the abstractors who lately came over from Omaha to work for the new abstract company in getting up a new set of books. It is understood that their clerical work is, with most of them at least, but a temporary occupation, and they are not considered as such permanent fixtures and not so largely interested in the city as to warrant their being looked upon as voicing the true sentiments of this community on this question. If Avoca's remonstrance cannot get stronger backing here than this it will avail but little.

The Chautauqua Movement. Of the numerous large enterprises inaugu rated here none seems to be in a more favorable condition for ultimate success than that of establishing a Chautauqua assembly here on so extensive a plan as to make it national in its character. As soon as the decision was reached to make the enterprise so extensive as to make it for the west what Chautauqua, N. Y., is for the east, it has enlisted the hearty support of not only both cities, but of others outside. The boards of trade of Omaha and Council Bluffs have been considering the enterprise, and the following letter from the secretary of the Omaha board, with the attached report of the committee, will be read with interest. In accordance with the suggestion made, arrangements are to be suggestion made, arrangements are to be made at as early a date as weather and other circumstances will allow, for a drive out to the proposed grounds, that the Omaha com-mittee may see with their own eyes and judge of the advantages the location affords. Omaha, Neb., March 13.—W. H. Lynchard, Secretary Board of Trade, Council Bluffs, Ia. Dear Sir—I have the honor to advise you of the unanimous adaption, by our hourd at its the unanimous adoption by our board at its regular meeting held on the 12th inst., of the committee's report a copy of which is here-with enclosed. In accordance therewith Colonel C. S. Chase, Mayor W. J. Broatch, G. M. Hitchcock, N. Merriam and John Evans were appointed a special committee to examin eand report upon the location selected by your board for the holding of the Chautau-qua assembly. Further advise of the pleasure of your board will have proper attention,

Respectfully Yours,

We would also recommend that in accord ance with the request of the committee from Council Bluffs that a special committee from this board be appointed to examine and report on location selected for the holding of the assembly.

"Sport" Miller's Good Luck. Among the names published in yesterday's elegrams to the Breas having been awarded pensions as veterans of the Mexican war, appeared that of Thomas H. Miller, of Council Bluffs. Few will recognize in that dignified appellation "Sport" Miller, as he is so familiar known, and yet it is none other than this well known street character. "Sport" Miller is a veteran of the civil war also, but has never received any pension for services in that war. His pension as a Mexican veteran will be $5 per month, besides a nice lit-tic bunch of back pay. This is a rare bit of good fortune for him, as during the past few years his ways have been decidedly rocky. He picks up a few nickles by shining boots and selling papers. His family is scattered, and his troubles have been largely due to his own weaknesses. The New Council.

The newly elected aldermen have all qualified, and are ready to take their seats in the new council as soon as the terms of the outgoing members expire. A statement recently appeared that Alderman Waterman had not qualified and was prevented from taking that step within the allotted time. The fact is that Mr. Waterman was the first of the new city fathers to legally qualify, having done so a few days after election, just prior to his sickness. His condition is still quite precarious, and but few friends are allowed to see him. He was resting more easily yesterday and it is hoped will soon get the better of that dread disease, typhoid pneumonia.

Republican City Primaries.

Notice is hereby given that the republican primaries within and for the city of Council Bluffs, for the selection of delegates to attend the republican county convention, called by the chairman of the county central committee, for Monday, March 19, 1888, at 11 o'clock a. m., and will be held Saturday evening next, at 8 oclock, at the following places, to wit:

places, to-wit:
First ward, for the election of five delegates, John Hammer's office; Second ward, for the selection of seven delegates, at city building; Third ward, for the selection of six delegates, at law office of Mynster & Lindt; Fourth ward, for the selection of eight delegates, at office of Council Bluffs water works. By order of the city central committee.

The River's Break-Up. The condition of the ice in the river in the New York Correspondence of the Globe-Democrat: "Ah, glad to see you, Pryor. Hore you are well." "Yes, thanks; and you? Going abroad, eh?

The first speaker was Phil Armour, of the bounding west. He had just scrawled his name on the register of the Fifth Avenue hotel, and the man he greeted so warmly was Detective Pryor, who has nothing to do but dress well and see that crooks of all kinds keep away from the hotel and its guests. Pryor is six feet and two inches, and in some respects his physique suggests John L. Sullivan. He dresses in the latest fashion, and is fond of a sweetsmelling rose for the buttonhole of his coat. Everybody knows him, and he has a pleasant word for everybody. The wealthy pork packer with his hands be-hind his back spent a half hour walking up and down the hotel corrider with him, talking on all sorts of subjects. When they separated a bystander said

"I'll bet the old man is afraid of his life. Honest, now, didn't he ask you to keep an eye on him and see no one did him harm?"

Pryor shook his head in a negative fashion, but did not speak, which left the speaker in considerable doubt about the matter. Armour's life has been threatened several times, but he is said not to be afraid. However that may be, there are other people from distant cities who come to New York and stop at the big hotels, who are timid. One of the first things they do after registering is to deposit their valuables in the hotel safe, and then seek the house detective and ask that an eye be kept on suspicious characters, so that they may do them no harm.

Detectives are being used more and more every day. Not only are they employed regularly in hails, restaurants, in banks and in big offices, but they are also engaged by clubs, theaters, stores and for private houses. For years, night and day a detective has paced up and and day, a detective has paced up and down in front of Stewart's marble palace on Fifth avenue, and at least a score of other private families employ them. One man is on guard during the day and another at night. At all big dinners, receptions and balls, detectives are engaged to keep an eye on visitors, and wedding presents are never exhibited now except in the presence of a de-tective. These men are furnished by private detective agencies or by the police department. They appear in full evening dress and mingle freely with the guests. They are paid liberally for

ANY BRAND TO SUIT THE CROWD.

Atlanta Constitution: Zeb Vance said that one time away back when he was running for congress against Holden he had to go over a mountain range and down into a valley where he had never been before. The humble people in that valley were almost cut off and hid out from the rest of the world, and especially from that side of the world in which Mr. Vance lived. He knew nothing about their relities or their relig-ien. "North Carolina is a curious state," said he. "Her religion is speckled and spotted like it had the mencles. In one valley you will find the people all Episcopalians, however poor and primitive. The ancestors of first settlers came from old England and brought that religion with them, and, as nobody moved in or moved out, their descendants kept the faith of their fathers. In another valley you will find them all Presbyterians, because the ancestors came from Scotland. In another they will be all Methodists or all Baptists, and every one of these separate communities will have an old patriarch working in the lead, and he is looked upon as the bell-wether of the flock. Now, it is necessary that a politician should know the religious faith of those with whom he is 'lectioneering' for votes. If he can't chime in with it exactly he mustn't say anything 'agin' it. Now," said Mr. Vance, "when I got over into the valley to meet my appointment, I found about seventy-five of the humble sovereigns gathered at the cross-roads where there was a little store and a wagon-shop and a meeting-house. They had on their home-made clothes and were standing around chewing tobacco and talking about 'craps' and waiting for me to come. I soon got familiar with them and got them in first-rate humor, but as Holden was to come over in a day or two I wanted to fix things in some way so that he couldn't unfix them. Holden was a Methodist and I was afraid that these I was afraid that these people were. I noticed an old man sitting off on a chunk and marking in the sand with his long walking-stick. He had on big brass spectacles and his heavy shaggy eyebrows and big long nose indicated character, and so I set him down as the bell-wether of the flock. After a while I got up close to him and was about to address him, when he gave a prayerful grunt and got up and braced himself on his stick and looking at me said in a solemn voice: 'This is Mr. Vance, I believe?' 'Yes, sir,' said I, giving him my hand. 'And I am Emanuel Stenor,' said he, 'and I suppose you have come over the mounting to talk to my boys about their votes.' 'Yes, sir,' said I, 'that is my principal business, and I—-' 'Well, Mr. Vance,' said he, interrupting me; before you pro-ceed any further with that business I would like to ax you a question or two 'Certainly, sir,' said I; 'certainly,' 'Well, Mr. Vance, allow me to ax you what church do you belong to?'

"Well, that was a sockdolager and it came straight at me, and for a moment I was demoralized, but I ralied, and as boys had all gathered around to hear the old man put me through, I cleared my throat and said: 'That is a fair question, my friend; a fair question, and I will tell you about that. My grandfather came from England, and as over there the established church was Episcopalian, of course he was a Episco-

"I paused a moment to see the effect of this, but there was none that was favorable. The old man marked a little more in the sand and spit his tobacco away off on one side. So I continued: But my grandmother came from Scotland, and you know that John Knox left his mark upon the whole nation, and so, of course, she grew up a Presbyterian.' I paused again, but there was no sign, no awakening, no chord struck, and the old man marked some more in the sand. 'But, my friend, my father was born and grew up in a Methodist community, who were in this country, and converted by John Wesley, and, of course, he became a Methodist.' I thought that now I had him sure, but I didn't. There was no sign of sympathy from him or the boys, and so I took my first shot. But my good old mother, sir, was born and raised a Baptist, and it's always been my opinion that a man has got to go under the water before he can get to heaven.' A gleam of satisfaction spread all over the old man's face as he said: give me your hand, Brother Vance. Boys, I told you so; I told you that he was a Baptist afore he come. He is a man. You can all vote for him, but Holden won't do nary time, for they do say that he is one of these shouten, cavortin, Methodists."

Riding a Wild Buffalo. Billings, U. T. Gazette: In November, 1882, north of the Yellowstone river, be-tween Dry Fork and Red Water streams, buffaloes were very plentiful and the slaughter of them was prose-cuted with unrelenting vigor. That was the section Vic Smith, Doc Yahl. "Missouri Jim," Jim Blake, George Brown and many others followed the bukalo like an avenging Nemesis, and sad to say, never let up until the noble game was wiped out. Charles W. Rock, better known as Dick Rock, was acknowledged to be the quickest buffato skinner on the range. He could easily skin forty-five buffaloes in one day-a well proportioned six-footer and the best horseman I ever saw. He claimed that he could ride and "stick" anything that wore hair, unless it was a grizzly bear. It was seldom that he spoke of his prowess unless bantered by some of his companions. At that time he was hunting on a tributary of Dry Fork, close to Vic Smith's camp.

One evening in camp the subject of breaking horses and wild animals to ride came up, and Dick offered to bet $50 that he could ride a buffalo. His money was quickly covered, and Sam Bicknell was chosen referee and stakeholder. The conditions were that he should ride a buffalo half an hour, bar-ring accidents, such as the running under limbs of trees, that skirted the small streams. The next morning one of the party rode over to Smith's camp and acquainted him with the facts of the wager and required his assistance in securing the animal on which Rock was to ride. Vic acquiesced and soon all hands rode out in search of the game. They approached within two hundred yards of about a dozen buffalos, and all hands stopped with the exception of Vic. who crawled on hands and knees within one hundred yards, and, selecting a fine, fat cow, took careful aim and accomplished what was intended-that is, shot her through the muscles of the neck and knocked her down, a feat that is called "creasing."

At the crack of the rifle Rock, on his horse, sped like the wind to the fallen cow, and quickly dismounting sprang upon the brute's back, which had already recovered consciousness, and away they went full tilt after the balance of the herd, which was about a quarter of a mile distant.
