A Modern Ananias.

Oh, She Was a Good Samaritan.

Was She a School Marm?

Tid Bite: "Not another morsel," exclaimed the new lady boarder after eating enough for six able-bodied corl, heavers.

"Not another morsel. Really, I don't know what will become of me; no appetite at all, you know. As my last landlady said, I don't eat enough to keep a bird alive."

The boarders said nothing, but they all began wondering whether the bird she referred to was an ostrich or Sindbad's rook.

He Gave Them a Pointer. Texas Siftings: A smart-steering editor of Tennessee was in New York a few days ago to see about raising money for a proposed railroad line down in his country, and when asked to explain, he said: "There's no explanation about it. This is to be a 200-mile line."

ger wants to bet on his game turn from him in silent contempt. If he kyars run off de track trus' in de Lawd, we'll be keeful of yer manners at table. Our likin for a man can be killed as dead as a doobah by de way he eats.

"De use of such words ar' to be deplored. A man wid a clean mouf will be respected, eben among rascals. If you fall ober a wheelbarrow or saw yer neck on a clothes line, devote five minutes to expressin your feelin's. Den stop short off."

"Doan' be ashamed to carry yer money in yer shoe. Many a member of congress has come to grief by prancin' around wid his wallet in his pocket."

"If you meet a man who says he doan' believe in de father stid doin' waste yer time to argue de matter. He may be a pesson, jst as de Lawd created widout a soul, jst as an experiment."

Judge Chewso then arose to a question of privilege, and tendered his resignation, to take immediate effect. Upon being asked for an explanation, he replied that he had been told he was suspected of having come to the meeting with a quart bottle in his pocket, meaning to fill the same with kerosene from the club can.

"Who told you dat?" asked the president.

"White pesson on de market, sah."

"Hamp! Brudder Chewso, I hoped dat de soft spot in de top of yer head had hardened up."

"S'posin he did? S'posin he'd said dat you were 'spected of stealing all our money?"

"But I nebbor brought, no bottle hea, handeend up!"

"Nobody 'cept dat white man says you did. Set down, sah! You has dun gone an' lost yer sense. You hev' not only nebbor brought any bottle hea to steal our kerosene, but let me say to you dat had you done so you would hev' got jst sich a racket, an' de can is allus kept under 16-c an' key."

A communication from the attorney-general of Indiana, or at least from his office, inquired if the rights of the colored citizens of Detroit in respect to riding on the street cars was respected. They writer had heard that they were not.

"De secretary will answer him to de effect dat we have de same right as white men," answered the president.

"Dat is, we ar' obliged to pay far an' ride on de hind platform."

W'hen de call'd folks of de stait of Michigan find demselves deprived of any legal right dey won't wait to hear from Injannly bey' kicken."

The pretty English girl who has promised to marry the rajah of Bhumbah feels inclined to back out. The rajah's subjects threaten to burn her alive.

After a happy married life of fifty-four years, an old couple living near Hickman, Ky., have separated because of incompatibility of temper. Husband and wife are each more than seventy years old.

A punctual Minnesota maid, who happened to meet her in the church, rather than kept waiting for her original intended, who was a quarter of an hour behind his appointed time.

"Do you think Miss Fellows would marry me?" said Red Chaska to the chief of his tribe, previous to popping the question. The old warrior toyed for a moment with the scalps that hung at his side and then punitively growled:

"Why don't Chasky yourself, Red?" And he did.

Milton J. Barlow, the comedian, quietly took unto himself a better half last week in the person of Lillian Hall, the burlesque actress, judged by the Denver City tied the knot fast, and John and Edna Vidoue witnessed the ceremony and extended congratulations.

Robinson was married to Miss Jennie L. Leonard, in Hebron, Conn., last week, and the bridal tour was made to their future residence in Columbia, a dozen miles away, on a sled drawn by two pairs of oxen. The same kinds of teams were sent for the invited guests.

John Farro had courted an Illinois woman for eighteen years. When he finally decided that the time had come for them to part, she flung the swill pail after him and hid in his den, and the jury who tried the case returned a verdict of "not guilty" without leaving their seats.

It has been figured out by a statistical official that there are thirty-one criminals to every 1,000 bachelors and only eleven criminals to every 1,000 married men. From this showing he argues that matrimony restrains men from crime, and ought therefore to be encouraged by legislation and otherwise.

Mr. Stephen Burke, of Minneapolis, has had a common sense sense he had already, twenty-five years ago, to have thirteen children in his family, and by a singular coincidence, the thirteenth was born on the 13th of common sense. Happy he says Thorpe, whose aspirations never stray beyond the home circle.

The little item of $1,400,000 of the estate has vanished. Eight different attorneys and as many eminent counsel have been operating on the estate for ten years past, and this fact tells the story.

Jesse Hoyt, the famous produce merchant of this city, died in 1882, leaving a fortune of $1,250,000. He left the income of $2,000,000. By specific bequests he left $281,000, to relatives, and the balance was to be expended in founding a college of music. The college will never be founded, for two good reasons—the bequest has been declared illegal and the money has been eaten up by expenses. The little item of $1,400,000 of the estate has vanished. Eight different attorneys and as many eminent counsel have been operating on the estate for ten years past, and this fact tells the story.
