Perpetual Motion.

A Vermont woman broke her jaw and her husband facetiously called her the "ex-speaker." Burlington Free Press.
The woman who can control her own tongue is greater than he who ruleth a city. She is also scarcer. Somerville Journal.
Diamond Lock, Mich., has a canny with a double voice. "We'll bet that word 'canny' ought to be 'woman.'" Kentucky State Journal.
A Massachusetts doctor has discovered perpetual motion. He probably asked a lady to let him see her tongue and she did it. Yonkers Statesman.
Indianapolis, Ind., has a woman whose voice can be heard for a mile. We do not know what her calling is but she must be successful. Burlington Free Press.
Nothing is calculated so effectually to overthrow one's confidence in human nature as the spectacle of a man putting his wife's throat in order to restore her voice. American Artisan.

How glad you must be that your husband has quit visiting saloons!
"Yes, indeed. He promised me when he went into business for himself that he would never go inside of a saloon again, and he has kept his word. It must be a struggle for poor George, but he bears up heroically."
"What is his business now?"
"He keeps a drug store."

They Were Waiting For Him.

New York Journal: The other day I was in the treasury department of a theatre for a while, says a writer in the Chicago Mail. It was a matinee day. Among the people in line was a chap whose make-up indicated that he was in the city to see the sights.
"I would like to have one of your set seats," he said, as he looked in at the window just as a chicken in a coop looks out at a grain of corn which it can't reach.
"Dollar and a half," was the reply.
"Got any cheaper?"
"Oh, yes, got 'em for $1, 75 cents, 50 cents and 25 cents."
"Gimme a 50-cent ticket."
"All right; there you are."
"Has the show begun yet?"
"Not yet."
"How long before it will begin?"
"Just as soon as you get seated," said the treasurer in a way that was matter-of-fact. "We have been waiting for you."
"Hey?" said the countryman.
"I say we have been waiting for you. I was afraid you wouldn't come. Please stop in so as not to keep the company waiting."
The countryman looked at the treasurer for a half minute and then asked: "How did you know I was coming?"

High-Priced Cooks.

Boston Globe: The cook Mr. Vanderbilt has recently brought to this country, and who is to be paid $10,000 a year, is rivalled by a London chef, who earns possibly a still larger annual income. This "professor of gastronomy," as he is called, is really a consulting cook, who is sent for whenever an important dinner is to be given. His daily work is to visit the kitchens of those mansions which he has on his engagement list, and taste the various dishes to be served, suggesting any little changes in flavoring or seasoning which in his judgment would improve them. During the fashionable season his coachman is kept busy driving him from place to place, as the professor's services are eagerly sought by those willing to pay $10, his regular fee, to learn that their dinner is well served.
Although the papers have joked about his following a profession which is certainly to his "taste," there is many a man struggling on in some of the higher professions who would like to be assured of even a fraction of his income. Indeed, buying players at $10,000, and millionaires paying a like sum for the yearly services of a cook, it might be well for some of the young men who are so anxious to "go west" to stay east and take up baseball or cookery.

He Had Time.

"Ten dollars," said the judge.
"I have no money," said the prisoner.
"Ten days," said the judge.
Prisoner (struck by a happy thought): "I haven't got time, judge."
But he found he had.

Girls' Writing.

From the Youth: Girls should look to their handwriting, for it may serve them at some future crisis better than short-hand or the typewriter. There is a lady clerk in the department of the interior, Mrs. Avery by name, who has a snug and easy place of $1,600 a year, chiefly on account of the extraordinary excellence of her penmanship. It is she who is selected to copy the letters of the department which are regarded as of the greatest consequence, such, for example, as are to receive the attention of the president, who frequently compliments Mrs. Avery's admirable penmanship.
