Propitious Weather and Previous Careful Preparations for the Event Make a Brilliant Celebration-Paving Matters.

Lincoln Bureau of the Omaha Bee, 1029 P Street, Lincoln, April 23.

The skies were propitious yesterday for the laying of the Grant Memorial hall corner stone. A large number of visitors came to the city from different points in the state, and the parade preceding the exercises at the campus was a brilliant one. The old soldiers walked in double column to the number of 200. The Knights Templar and Master Masons made an imposing appearance. Company D of the state militia in their regulaion uniforms made a soldierly appearance and the divisions of the First regiment Uni form Rank Knights of Pythias added bril liancy to the line of march, as they always There were present in the First regiment of knights Lincoln division No. 1, A. The Lincoln branch of the Irish National league held its semi-monthly meeting at Fitzgerald's hall Sunday afternoon, a large Audience being in attendance. The address of the evening was given by Mr. E. J. Mc-Van, who dwelt largely upon the causes that led to the organization of the league and presented an historical resume that was very inter-esting and instructive. The usual excellent musical numbers formed a part of the proramme and a number of speakers added to he interest of the meeting. Mr. McVan's ad-ress was accorded a cordial reception, and the committee announced that Mr. C. G. Davis had been selected as the speaker for the next meeting.

AN INTERESTING DECISION.

John W. Steward, deputy attorney general, is home from Minden. He reports an interesting decision given by Judge Gaslin in the district court of that place. The case was that of Black and Jorgenson against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway for damages for excessive and discriminating charges. Judge Gaslin held in this case of excess rates that the railroad must grant equal rates to all shippers, and if not, then equal rates to all shippers, and if not, then the company is liable for excess damages, the payment of which is not voluntary and no payment of which is not voluntary and he he protest is required to make the road liable. The decision is of a great deal of importance, and if confirmed by the supreme court will be of much importance to the state. CITY BRIEFS.

Interior Beautified. The adjourned annual meeting of the exbuilding association of Omaha was. hold in Max Mayer's office last evening. A large proportion of the stockholders wer present and the required amount of stock was represented. After hearing the reports of the president, treasurer and secretary on the receipts and disbursements on account of the Grand opera house, exposition hall, annex and stores, which were very fall and complete, a lengthy discussion of the general interests of the association followed. It was voted to be the sense of the meeting that the interior of the Grand opera house should be decorated and a well known Chicago decorator will doubtless be invited to prepare plans and specifications, which will be presented and acted upon at a stockholders' meeting to be hereafter held. The old board of directors was unanimously re-elected, but the hour being late the election of officers was deterred until another meeting.

A proposition was made by Mr. T. F. Glenn to rent the Grand opera house, but the existing arrangements with Mr. Crawford precluded any action on the proposition. It was clearly the expressed opinion of the stockholders present that any proposition at any time having in view the use of the Grand opera house as a variety theater would not be annex and stores, which were very fall and

THE TWO OMAHAS. How They Are to be Connected and

Their New Industries. Yesterday a delegation of South Omaha officials and citizens called upon P. E. Iler, of the South Omaha Land company, to talk over with him the prospects of that city, as also to induce his company to aid them in the construction of a viaduct over the tracks on Q street. The latter street is situated considerably above L street, on which the land company has already consented to build a viaduct. The proposition therefore, to aid materially in the erection of another to aid materially in the erection of another viaduct rather south of the part of the town which ought first to be developed, did not strike Mr. Her as being just the thing his company would at this time favor, because it was aiready spending a great deal of money in improvements which were now rendered imperatively necessary. The proposed viaduct at Q street would cost, it was thought about $29,000, and Mr. Her felt that later on the land company might be able to do something to advance the enterprise.

The building of the viaduct at L street, Mr. Her said would have a wonderful effect upon South Omaha, and, he thought, result in the closing up of O street which now leads across the tracks to the exchange and the across the tracks to the exchange and the extension in that direction of the yards. The building too of the addition to the exchange would swing around the volume of business to L street where it would always remain.

In the contract with Armour it seems the In the contract with Armour it seems the stockyards company guaranteed to him a first-class, easy driveway to the city. The viaduct contemplated is one of the first moves in this direction, and will enable an easy crossing of the tracks to be made, thence striking the boulevard north and northwest, crossing the B. & M. track opposite the round-house, then crossing again near the intersection of the Union Pacific and the B. & M., thence north to B street, where another boulevard branches off to the southwest and runs to Vinton street. The other one continues north, skirts Hanscom park on the west and runs up to Poppleton park on the west and runs up to Poppleton avenue, up to which place the city has already agreed to pave. This pavement will extend thence east on Poppleton avenue to Park avenue, thence to Leavenworth to Twenty-sixth street. This work of boule-varding the street in South Omaha revarding the street in South Omaha requires the grading of about fifty thousand cubic yards, the expense of which will be borne by the South Omaha Land company. The remainder in the city will have to be done by the city. The company, however, will not stop with this work because its contracts, especially with Armour, require a good road to this eity, which can be had only by paving or macadamizing. TWO NEW APPOINTMENTS MADE.

The Ex-Marshal Given a Job as Policeman - Hoban Gets the Street Commissionership -Other City News.

South Omaha's City Council. The iron gratings loomed ominously in the ouncil chamber last night, and while the three prisoners behind the bars gazed wistfully on the members of the council who sat in front of the bars the aforesaid members gazed at each other. It was only a case of misplaced bars, for it did seem out of place to have the jail and the council chamber in the one room. As it was, however, the councilmen had the best of it, for while they were outside and had no inclination to change places, the three highwaymen were within and would have willingly done so if they could. It was a case of those who behaved themselves and those who didn't. Marshal McCracken was on hand as usual to see that McCracken was on hand as usual to see that his proteges (the council) did so, and in due time called them to order Then Clerk Hoetor, more familiarly known as "Tommy" called the roll, and read the minutes, both of which were duly approved. When the reports of standing committees were called for, Councilman Bayliss stood, and addressed the mayor. As he only asked for further time on behalf of "streets and grades" and "ordinances," he was accommodated and gave place to Councilman McMillan, who also stood. He asked for similar favors for the finance committee and he got them. When the new ordinances were got them. When the new ordinances were called for, the clerk read one relative to the numbering of streets and houses, in which Q street was named as the dividing line between north and south, and the river, the basis of streets running parallel to it, from east to west. Twenty feet frontage on each street will be entitled to a house number in each block. It was referred to the ordinance committee on motion of Councilman Smith with three seconders. The committee on viaducts did not wish to tell "what they heard and what they "what they heard and what they know" just now, and were granted further time to do so. Another special committee reported that the books of the ex-clerk had been examined and found correct. There were outstanding warrants against the city amounting to $8,764.1 and claims accepted up to April 1 $1,714.98, neither of which were included in the outstanding judgment, but then the clerk had neither of which were included in the out-standing judgment, but then the clerk had $28 in the dog fund, and the committee there-fore recomended that $1,390 be taken from the general fund and placed to the credit of the salary fund. This was considered satis-factory, and the report was adopted. The petition of Pat Rice for a position on the po-lice force was reported on favorably, and that of S. W. Dennis for a license as hack-men and auctioneer, referred to the finance man and auctioneer, referred to the finance committee. A request from the property owners interested, to open an alley between J and K streets, from Twenty-second to Twenty-fourth streets was referred, as was that of Thomas Brennan for a position on the police force. The Omaha Packing house company asked that four fire plugs be placed company asked that four fire plugs be placed on their premises, to be uniform in size with those now in the city. As the company owns more hose than the city, and as they intimated they would loan it in case of fire, Councilman O'Rourke voted aye, Councilmen Smith and McMillan nay, and others didn't vote at all. This called for another vote, and it was lost, but Councilman Smith moved that the matter he referred to the fire moved that the matter be referred to the fire and water committee. This was carried, and then the members commenced to talk about then the members commenced to talk about it, Councilman Rafferty wanting to know who would pay for the plugs when placed, and Councilman Burk telling the advantages of that 2,000 feet of hose. The question was dropped, and the petition of William McDermott for a position on the police force was put on file. Councilman McMillan wanted to know if they required any more men, and Marshal McCracken emphatically reported that they did. His remarks were to the point, and were endorsed by the snores of one of the prisoners who had lost interest in the proceedings and asleep in the cells back of the room. Some time was taken up in talking over the matter, and Marshal Me-

Cracken suggested that a "rounder" was The wide awake prisoner in the cell emphatically said "yes," and then made some remarks that were unintelligible, while the sleepy one quit sporing. The question was finally dropped, and the question of obtaining the street profiles from ex-Engineer Meyers taken up. Attorney Makepeace rep-resented the ex-engineer, and stated that his resented the ex-engineer, and stated that his client had done the work, furnished the paper and done many other things without any compensation, and that he proposed to keep the plans until he was paid for them. Councilman McMillan said the city wanted the plans, the ex-engineer had never asked for his money, the city could pay him, and were good for it if they couldn't. "We want the plans, we want them right now, and we'll find a way to get them—that's right," said the councilman as he sat down, and Councilman Smith at once introduced an ordinance man Smith at once introduced an ordinance to set aside a sufficient sum from the gen-to set asince a sunicient sum from the general fund to go to the salary fund to settle all such unpleasantness. It was referred to the ordinance committee for ten minutes, and during the ten the harmony of the meeting was rudely disturbed by the running in of O. E. Swift as a drunk the was quickly placed behand the a drunk. He was quickly placed behind the bars, and during the commotion, the petition of John Condon for the position of street commissioner was read and placed on file. The petition of Pat Rowley, requesting that a license be refused John O'Gorman for sundry reasons, shared the same fate, and a request to tax solicitors for laundry work was also placed on file. By this time the ten minutes were up, and the committee on ordinances re-ported in favor of transferring $1,200 from the general to the salary fund. It was read the general to the salary land. It was read a second and third time and declared carried. Under the head of communications, Councilman Smith read the details of a scheme whereby the major be authorized to raise upon his note as Mayor, the sum of $8,994.00, payable one year from date to the Omaha Trust and Loan company. It was put in the form of a resolution, and carwas put in the form of a resolution, and carried, and the floating debt will now be consolidated. Engineer Loul reported on various grades and streets, and as ed for a desk and was told to go and buy one. There were no more communications, and when the "miscellaneous" was called, Councilman Mc-Millan got off that old chestnut about the bill of the ex-engineer. It was placed on file. On motion, the mayor appointed Councilmen Smith, O'Rourke and Engineer Loul as a committee to interview the refractory ex-engineer not later than to-morrow. Councilgineer not later than to-morrow. Council-man McMillan then moved that the engineer, in connection with the Union Pacific engineer, prepare the plans and profiles neces-sary to erect a viaduer at Q street. Bills amounting to $32 were referred to the finance commit tee, and then the most im-portant drama of the evening was played in one act. The mayor announced Dave Hoban as his appointed for street commissioner. Councilman Burke was appointed teller, the vote was taken by ballot and Dave appointed on a vote of 6 to 2. The mayor then appointed Dat Fice to a resident on the police force and vote of 6 to 2. The mayor then appointed Pat Rice to a position on the police force and the result showed that seven thought the same way and one did not. By request, City Attorney Doud read a report showing that, to his satisfaction, the old school board were out of office and should turn over any collateral they might be possessed of, and Councilman McMillan thought the council had nothing to do with it. Pat Rice and Dave Hoban were then sworn in to their respective offices, and the council adjourned to meet next Monday night. After the adjournment, Councilmen Baylis, O'Rourk and Burk were appointed a committee on licenses, and the meeting adjourned for a second time to meet next Thursday night. They did not adjourn, however, but went into committee and talked

An Alleged Swindle.

Barney Branigan deals in cloth in a small way, that is the cloth is in small pieces. It is alleged that the pieces are too small to be is alleged that the pieces are too small to be of any use and Barney was run in yesterday on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He was released on a $100 bond, but not having any bonds with him put up $100 in greenbacks, and is now studying out his line of defense. The complainant is John J. Donovan, who was shown a sample of good cloth, and a number of pieces of the same kind that were supposed to be patterns of a suit that would just fit him. They were cheap enough and he bought them, but found they were useless, and in fact only rags. He at once got out a warrant for Branigan's arrest and the trial will come off in the morning.

They want $6 per week for the necessary fluid. William Woods and James McMahon are held over on a charge of highway robbery. Chris Selger is the alleged victim, and claims to have lost 75 cents and a pocket knife, but the police seem to think he was drunk and lost it and then made the charge to regain his liberty. Anyway, he got out and the others got in, and they're still there.

PHOTOGRAPHING BEAD BABES. The Afflicted Parents Bring Them to

a Studio in Coffins. The artists in the employ of a photographer on North Sixteenth street had an unusual and rather tender duty to perform on Sunday last. It was the taking of the pictures of two babes as they lay dead in their coffins ready for burial. About noon, Frank Dohlstrom, accompanied by his wife, walked into the studio bearing on his shoulder a coffin. Tenderly and with a display of emotion, he laid the white painted casket on a table and asked that the features of his little darling be taken that as time spreads along he could look upon them and deplore the loss of the flower and joy of the family. The cover was removed from the receptical of death, and the calm and innocent face of the departed was taken. The burial robes were garland with bolts of smilax, and sweet perfumed lillies and roses. When the photographer had finished his work, Dohlstrom screwed down the cover of the coffin, and resting it upon his shoulder walked solemnly away. Soon after Dohlstrom's departure, Charles Fehx came in on a like mission. He, too, had suffered an affliction in the loss of his babe. The corpse reposed in a handsome casket of white, and a striking and beautiful photograph of it was taken. THE CALCULUS OF PROBABILITY

The basis of calculation between cause and chance is to be reckoned, so far as mathematics can figure out a result, upon data like the following: The rules being of course, the recognized mathematical ones that the chance of the concurrence of two independent events is the product of their separate probabilities. We know there is more or less frequency of recurrence than a fixed average; then, for or against the probability, there is some cause at work. The chance of one or the other of two phenomena occurring, when two cannot occur, is the sum of their different probabilities. For instance: "In the fall of 1880," says Mr. J. W. Ames, Fairmont, Neb., May 27, 1887, "my wife suffered intensely with what the doctors called sciatic rheumatism, and was helpless. Tried everything to no purpose. She wanted to try St. Jacobs Oil, but the doctors said 'no,' but I got it, tried it, and it stopped the pain. She improved, and in a short time she had no use for crutches. No return of pain in seven years." Mr. W. W. Hail, Adams Express Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., was cured of sciatic rheumatism by St. Jacobs Oil, and writes under date of May 5, 1887: "I am still of the same opinion of its curative qualities for sciatic rheumatism.

The probability of St. Jacobs Oil curing every time is reakoned upon known facts. Out of the twenty million bottles sold not one in ten thousand ever fails to relieve all ailments for which it is a specific; the chance against the proba-bility is so slight that there must be some cause, and the cause is found to be that it is not properly applied or taken in time. The chances are also over-whelmingly in its favor that the marvelous cures wroght by it are the offset to the few cases wherein it fails, and are proofs that where properly used it will cure and never fails.

The OTHER TRADES NOT LIKELY to JOIN The Wonderfut "Scoop" Made By An Interviewer- Mrs. I. N. Deuel, the Lady Interviewed, Tells a Straightforward Story.

"Is the bricklayers strike ended yet?" was asked of a striking bricklayer recenity. "No, and I don't know as it will end soon, but it ought to ask it is going to retard a great many improvements this summer if it does not end soon, and that is not all." answered the striker, "I am afraid it will spread to some of the other trades." Some of the prominent contractors and builders being interviewed regarding the above statement said they knew nothing about the strike spreading, but rather thought it would soon be satisfactorily adjusted as it should be, for the building should not be retarded now.

Among the contractors and builders interviewed by the writer was Mr. I. N. Deuel, who resides at No. 285 Patrick avenue, and is at present engaged in building himself a beautiful home in Kountze's addition. The writer approached him on the subject, and was informed that as far as he knew the strike was confined to the bricklayers and brick moulders, and in his opinion it would not extend any further than that, "but," continued Mr. Deuel, "If you are anxious for an interview on an interesting matter go see Mrs. Deuel, she can tell you something and will tell you what is true, for I am interested in that subject, and am about as happy as a man can be that she has recovered,"

"Then she has been sick, and she owes her wonderful recovery to the skill and wide experience of one of Omaha's greatest physicians, but come, we will go to the bouse and see her, she can tell you all a bout it."

The writer found Mrs. Deuel a very pleasant lady, and willing to tell her story, which was as follows:

"Yes, I was a very sick woman a year ago this last winter. I contracted a severe cold, I had pain and discomfort in my chest, and a sense of rawness or soreness in the upper part of my chest, which was painful on coughing, my cough was dry and hacking, especially on lying down and on waking. I felt feverish toward night, but always felt easier in the forenoon, my breathing was labored, and I continually feit the want of air. My wheezing was distinctly audible to others, and the members of my family often referred to it. My cough became very severe, and my friends, and even myself, thought that I was going into consumption. I coughed, coughed, and my lungs were so sore that it racked me terribly, after a spell I would raise tenacious material, often mixed with blood. I lost fiesh and strength. I had a very tender spot in the left side of my chest which caused me considerable anxiety and led me to believe I was soon to be one of the great throng that had gone before. I tried a variety of medicines, but they did not seem to reach the spot. At last my husband suggested that we go and see Dr. McCoy. We did so. He pronounced my case curable, and I commenced treatment, that was about three months ago. I improved rapidly and felt as well as ever after two month's treatment, but decided to continue another month as a matter of precaution. My lungs feel sound and strong, I do not cough, and feel that the doctor has really saved my life, and I cannot speak too highly of his skill and painstaking, not to mention the moderate fees he charged me."

Mrs. Deuel, as above mentioned, resides at present at No. 2635 Patrick avenue, North Omaha, where she will willingly substantiate the above statement to any one doubting it, by calling upon or addres sing her there.

A LEADING PHYSIOLOGIST

Advances His Theory of Catarrh and Consumption-His Advice on the Subject.

Snbject.

One of the best learned physicians of modern times, in an article on catarrh and consumption says: "The treatment of consumption has made great advances by the introduction of new remedies, and has enabled the close student and specialist to establish indications for remedies long in use, so that by their methodical application better results are attained than were formerly gained at a time when consumption and cancer were regarded as equally incurable, and were somewhat similarly treatod.

"The treatment of consumption demands a careful avoidance to all agents calculated to cause hyperemia of the lungs and brouchial catarrh. Persons in whom a tendency to consumption is suspected should be treated with the greatest care and attention.

"Thinly, whenever there is the slightest suspicion of a predisposition to consumption, every catarrh, no matter how slight, should be treated with the utmost care, which must not be relaxed until the catarrh is entirely well. This rule, so obvious from our point of view, is very frequently violated
"Many patients fall a victim to the deeply rooted prejudice that a neglected catarrh nover leads to consumption.
