About 2 o'clock yesterday morning the people living in the vicinity of Nineteenth and Izard streets were awakened from their quiet slumbers by what appeared to be an artillery drill outside. Women screamed, children cried, while hastily doning their garments, men rushed out to see what was up. The shooter still kept up his fusilade until surrounded and interragated as to what was up, mildly remarked that he was shooting "the cats that were aither holding a concert under his windy." Then everybody went back to bed.

Juicy Correspondence.

A number of letters, evidently dropped by some one who should have burned them as soon as received, were picked up by a county official yesterday, and among the number is one addressed to "Grace," a young lady living on south 25th street, that is a little wonder in itself and must have pleased the recipient greatly, inasmuch as it was returned to the writer accompanied by a document from "Grace's" mother, in which the young man who signs himself "Mac" was, to use a slang phrase, very forcibly "jacked up." Mamma could, had she choosen, have made a very pretty case against "Mac" for sending obscene matter through the mails.

Going East to be Educated.

Seven young Hindoos en route for a seminary in eastern Pennsylvania passed through the city yesterday. The party was in charge of Mong Thahoo or Yebsdee, as he styles himself in America, who graduated some three years ago at Keystone academy in Wyoming county, Pa. Upon his return from the school the Hindoo parents of the youths whom he is taking east decided to have their sons educated also and forming a party they set out for their destination on January 1. They are taking their trip easily and do not expect to reach their final stopping place until September 1. Thahoo says his companions are much surprised at the country through which they have passed and are inclined to believe the "Gods of the Christians more potent than theirs."

Need Not Fear Hydrophobia.

The BEE of last Tuesday contained a telegram from Hendley in this state, which told of some cows dying from the effect of the bite af a rabid dog and the fear of those who had been drinking of the milk of the bitten of dying also. It was also stated that the local physicians were unable to advance a satisfactory opinion as to the case. A well known physician in this city was consulted on the subject and he unhesitatingly gave his opinion that the milk drinker had no reason to fear hydrophobia, and referred to Dr. James Law, a member of the Royal association of veterinary surgeons, who in an article upon rabies and hydrophobia says that no absolute proof has ever been advanced that hydrophobia has ever been conveyed to human beings by the consumption of the milk of cows which have been bitten by dogs.

Clothes Line Thieves Caught.

A quartette of thieves, calling themselves Pat Bartley, John McKay, James Smith and John Cronin, were discovered yesterday forenoon robbing a clothes line in the back yard of a Swede named Olson on Seventh and Leavenworth streets. The family was away at the time and the thieves also went through the huose and succeeded in obtaining considerable plunder. A description of the foragers was left with Detectives Horrigan and Ward, and an hour or two afterwards they captured a couple of them near the Union Pacific freight house, one of them having two stolen shirts in his possession. The other two thieves were run in after an exciting chase near the railroad bridge on Seventh street.

The Railroads.

From information received from Lane county, Kansas, it is learned that a movement is on foot to build a branch road from Shields, Lane county, Kan., to Omaha, provided local capitalists will assist the project by contributing some money. The grade of the road is already constructed from Garden City, Kan., to Shields, a distance of sixty miles. Mr. C. S. Fendle, the president of the road and Mr. Jones, the secretary, will be in Omaha soon to work up the matter. The name of the road is to be the Garden City Nickel Plate line.

Those Tin Works.

Mr. Horne, the proprietor of the tin works at Keokuk, Ia., and who contemplates the removal of the same to Omaha, is in the city in conference with the manufacturers' bureau of the board of trade. The industry contemplated is the manufacturing of sheet metal goods, packers' pails, cans, tinware, etc., for the jobbing trade, and Mr. Horne does not ask for a bonus. He does, however, want some enterprising citizens to take a hand in the enterprise, and buy a half interest, the proceeds of which would go towards improving the plant and form a financial basis on which to conduct the establishment on a large scale. The manufacturers' bureau invites proposals and investigations of such persons as may feel interested and have capital that they would be willing to use in an industry that can be clearly proved to be desirable and profitable. Unless such additional capital is attained within three or four days, the probabilities are that they will not be successful in securing the industry.

Another Hospital.

It was announced some time ago that John A. Creighton had donated a lot on the corner of Tenth and Castellar streets, upon which it was intended, some time, to erect a new hospital for the sisters who are now in charge St. Joseph's.

Since that announcement was made the question of locating the proposed hospital in another place has arisen, the new site being in the vicinity of Creighton heights northwest of the city. The latter place seems to find favor with Bishop O'Connor, who is now in correspondence on the subject with Mr. Creighton. The new site would afford more room to enlarge and thus increase the usefulness of the hospital, which will be of the pavillion order, the house of the sisters being in the middle, with wings on either side, to which may be attached, as occasion requires, cottages for the accommodation of the corporations who might desire to use the hospital. Among these, very likely, will be the Union Pacific, the B. & M., the Missouri Pacific, Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley roads, as also the smelting works. The proposed site has the advantage, it is claimed, of great salubrity.

Among the people of to-day, there are few indeed, who have not heard of the merits of Prickly Ash Bark and Berries as a household remedy. Teas and drinks have been made of them for centuries, and in hundreds of families have formed the sole reliance in rheumatic and kidney diseases. Prickly Ash Bitters now take the place of the old system and is more beneficial in all troubles of this nature.

THE VILLAIN STILL PURSUED

And for His Attentions Gets a Broken Head and Arm.

A. G. Jamison, A. M., is the title of a young man of literary attainments who has haunted the obscure corners of the city for a limited period during which time he has exhibited an inordinate fondness for female companionship. On two or three occasions his desires have mastered his better judgment and throwing aside all feeling of delicacy he has instead of availing himself of those blandishments so common to lady killers, boldly declared himself as intending to capture the object of his eagerness whether she was willing or not. Some two or three weeks since he attempted to carry off a young female, but she eluded him and caused his arrest. At his trial before Judge Berka he answered to the charge of "pursuing a female," and but for the intervention of friends would have probably been sent over the hill. As it was he was discharged with the admoniton to go and sin no more.

Thursday evening Prof. Jamieson absorbed about three pints of tarantula juice, and while in a very mellow condition perambulated down Tenth street toward the Union Pacific depot seeking new conquests. On the way he met a fresh, young-looking female of perhaps eighteen summers and said to himself, "Eureka." When she was about to pass him A. G. seized her tenderly, but firmly by the arm, and inquired in those dulcet tones, so peculiar to gentlemen of his ilk, if she would object to a promenade in the direction of his luxurious apartments, to which she indignantly refused, and at once screamed for help. Two or three citizens rushed to the rescue and laid violent hands on him, which had a tendency to cause the mercury of the thermometer of the professor's temper to take a position somewhere near 115 in the shade, and for about nine minutes there was melody in the atmosphere. The citizens were getting the worst of it when Charlie Bloom, one of Omaha's sturdy guardians of the peace, arrived upon the scene, and at once took a stick in the game. The result was that the professor was worsted, and is now occupying a cot in St. Joseph's hospital with a badly bruised head and a compound fracture of the left arm. He will remain there for the next thirty days.

A DETECTIVE'S WORK.

Arresting Two Men for Stopping the United States Mails.

Sylbins B. Ayres and Charles Griffie, the two ex-engineers charged with obstructing the United States mails by holding a train at Beatrice on April 13, were arrested and brought before United States Commissioner Anderson yesterday afternoon. They waived examination and were each put under $500 bonds to appear before the United States district court. Both gave bond and were released. The B. & M. detective, Capt. Pinneo, together with a deputy United States marshal, arrested the two men at Beatrice. Mr. Ayers is a Union Pacific freight engineer running between Beatrice and Omaha and Mr. Griffie was formerly an engineer on the Burlington railroad. Both are old residents of Beatrice and gentlemen. They did not obstruct the mail. The fact being that a short time ago a Burlington engine became disabled at that point. After working at her two hours the scab engineer could not get his train out of town and an engine was brought from Wymore, and as soon as the Wymore engine arrived the train pulled out. The mail was not delayed nor was the engineer wounded.

BOLD THIEVES.

George M. Trentes Meets Them at the B. & M. Depot.

The footpad, the thug and the thief seem to be enjoying a sort of spring carnival hereabouts. Hardly a day or a night passes but what a knock-down robber, hold-up, pocket-picking or burglary is reported, and although the police are alert and doing good work, the crooks continue to ply their vocation without fear or favor. The latest victim is George M. Trentes, of Bellevue. He was at the B. & M. depot yesterday preparing to leave for home, when two young fellows pushed against him, and on his remonstrating with them, they seized him by the arms and began pulling and hauling him about the depot. They shortly released him, and no sooner had they disappeared than Trentes discovered that his pockets had been picked of $22 in money and a silver watch. The two men, however, who did the work, the police think are safe in hock. Detectives Dempsey and Ormsby arrested Carles Hoschild and Albert Loeffler last evening on suspicion, and their description tallies to a nicety with that left with the authorities by Trentes.
