SQUEEZED BY AN ANACONDA. A Trying Moment for an Expert Snake

Handler. New York Times: "It's the easiest thing in the world when you do it properly," Hermann Reiche, the dealer in . animals, remarked yesterday morning to an employe who was having some little difficulty in transferring eight anacondas from the rough wooden box in which they had just arrived at the Park-row establishment to a glass case placed for their reception in the front store next to the one occupied by Jess, the dancing baboon.

Three months ago a child could have handled the spotted beauties with impunity, because then they would have been fully under the influence of the torpor which overcomes them in the winter months, but which departs as soon as the warmth of summer begins to be felt. As the seven snakes, which had not yet been transferred, running from twelve to sixteen feet in length, la coiled together in a corner of the box, they looked very pretty and quite harmless. Occasionally one of them would send a muscular thrill through his convenient or the send and the send through the send thro voluted organism which would stir the whole mass a little, and now and then a forked tongue would dart out and disappear in an instant. Otherwise they looked absolutely lethargic and perfectly free from guile. So, when young Reiche proceeded to show how easy it was to handle the South American boaconstrictor, when the proper method was pursued it looked as though the man engaged in the work hardly heeded the proffered instruction. "You simply seize the snake first by the neck, close by the head, "thus," said Mr. Reiche, suiting the action to the word, and causing the serpent mass to shudder throughout its entire extent. "Then," he added as he drew the snake he had grasped out from the constrictor tangle of which it formed part, "when its mid dle shows up, thus, you grasp it gently but firmly, thus, and lift it into the

The snake dropped softly into the case, lay as it fell, and so did five others, each of them bearing patient testimony to the facility with which the biggest kind of snakes are handled, when properly handled.

The seventh took upon himself to prove the converse of Mr, Reiche's established proposition. He was not handled properly. Mr. Reiche made a careless grab for his neck and caught it about three inches below the head instead of close to it. In an instant the reptile, the largest one of the lot, tossed torpor to the winds and began very energetically to dart its open jaws in the direction of his captor's wrist with very unamiable intent. Mr. Reiche lifted the the writhing snake's head high in the air and seized it by the middle. The snake resented the action and freed itself by a muscular effort that was irresistably strong and sudden. In a moment the snake was free of the box and began twining its lith form around young Reiche's leg and body. Reiche, who is well aware of the crushing power of of a constrictor's hug, called for help, and every employe of the establishment was at his side in an instant. They knew how to act in the emergency, and in a very few moments had unwound the anaconda, despite its powerful struggles, and placed it in the glass case, where it at once lapsed into a condition of content, very strangely in contrast with its previous excitement.

'Not so easy to handle anacondas, after all," the instructed employe remarked to his master, smiling, "Yes, said Mr. Reiche, who looked a little pale, and frankly acknowledged that he had had a bad scare; "the trouble was that I handled that fellow wrongly. Always catch them close as possible to the

Severe Treatment of a Mormon Con-

Philadelphia Ledger: The Mormon missionaries who have been trying to "evangelize" the count.y people in por-tions of West Virginia have not met with a cordial reception from many of the natives, nor have their occasional converts become objects of popular veneration. "Among the districts in which these missionaries have been at work, says a special to the New York World, "is that of Yellow Creek, in Calhoun county. They made several converts, when the people became indignant and ran them out of the county. Several of the converts remained after the missionaries left and the citizens began to threaten them with all sorts of ven-geance. John W. Metz, one of the converts, received several threatening letters ordering him to leave. Metz, in atend of leaving the neighborhood rented another farm and was preparing to move, when on the night before the house he was to occupy was burned down, and a letter tacked on the fence in which the writers threatened to burn every house he tried to occupy. was stubborn and determined to remain and secure another house, which was also burned the night before he was to move in it. He failed to get another house for some time, the owners being afraid their property would suffer, but at last he succeeded, and was preparing to move again when that, too, burned, making in all three houses within a few weeks. The officers appear to have no clue to the perpetra ors, who now threaten Metz with death if he does not leave. There were a number of alleged Mormon converts i the neighborhood, but they have all been frightened off or ran out of the county. There does not appear to be a disposition to run down the perpetra-

Wheat Bears Disappointed By the Limited Rainfall.

THE SHORTS HASTEN TO COVER.

Featureless Day in the Corn Pit-Fair Trading in Oats-Provisions Practically Stationary-Cattle Slow.

CHICAGO PRODUCE MARKET. CHICAGO, April 28 .- [Special Telegram to the Bee. |-Nothing but rain or rather the lack of rain was of much interest to wheat traders this morning. These gentleman had gone home yesterday with confidence in the prediction that it would rain last night, but what ittle rain did come was far from the winter wheat belt. Now preparations had been made for a weakness and a drop in prices which should attend a liberal rain fall in the winter wheat country, such preparations consisting in "selling short" of greater or less amounts. There was an early disposition to cover that short wheat with the least possible loss, and under that demand there was a 1/4c higher opening and an immediate further advance of %c. There did not seem to be any great demand for wheat from outside sources, however, and aside from the weather and grop reports generally, news was a triffe bearish. Receipts were large and exports practically nothing, while New York advised that orders for wheat for export were below the market, though later it was reported that fourteen boat loads had been taken. Cables were no lower, but that was the best that could be said for them. Moreover, it was estimated that the visible supply would show little or no decrease. These things made some longs willing to take small profits and encouraged some short selling, the price declining to about the opening figures, then, on the report of wheat taken for export as mentioned above, there was a sharp advance of about 3/c, half of which was lost before the close. June wheat opened at 81%c, advanced to 821/c, declined to 821/c and closed at 821/6 821/c. May wheat opened at 80%c, sold at 80%@80%c, up to 81%c and closed at 80%c. The estimates of the winter wheat crop were much talked about, the bears claiming that they showed a better prospect than other re cent reports, but if the condition in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois be taken as there given and from that be deducted the proportions to be plowed as is evidently meant, the prospect would seem to be quite as bad as that of all but the most extreme reports. In-dividual reports continue bad and one of the could not exceed two-thirds of last year's crop and would probably be less. There was no especial feature to the corn market to-day. It was almost monopolized by scalping local traders and the course of prices seemed to depend very much upon whether a majority of those traders were long or short at any particular time. Re ceipts were considerably less than expected. and this, with the continued dry weather. helped to advance the market which fell again, when the estimate of still larger re-ceipts for Monday became known, then advanced again on an evening up by shorts, preparatory for Sunday. June corn opened at 54%c, which was $4.0%c bigher than yesterday's close, advanced to 55c, declined to 54%c, sold up to 55c again and closed at 54%c. May corn opened at 53½c, sold up to 55½@ 55½c, down to 54½c and closed at 55½@55½c.

The report of the secretary of the Illinois grain dealers association upon the amount of orn outside the visible supply has just been made. It estimates the amount still in farmer's hands in Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Ilinois at 10 per cent of the crop. It states that there are but about 500,000 bushels of corn in the aggregate at all the stations on the B. & M. road. Both estimates are much smaller than has been generally believed.

September outs sold from 2814c to 2814c. In the provision trade there was no unusual change. Cash property met with a comparatively fair demand, but the speculation indulged in was limited and featureless. Still the market commanded fair attention, and prices were held steady at the late depression. Based on last night's final prices, the closings showed a scarcely quotable alteration. May, June, July and August were favorite deliveries. For May, pork sold at $13.55@13.60, lard at $7.80@7.82½, and short ribs at $7.15. Pork, for the same month, closed at $13.57½, with June 10c and July 20c higher. May lard stood at $7.83½ at the close, June being quoted at $7.85, July at $7.90 and August at $7.95. Short ribs for May closed at $7.15, with June at $7.20, July at $7.30 and August at $7.40. Late futures ion indulged in was limited and featureless at $7.30 and August at $7.40. Late futures were quiet.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, April 28 .- [Special Telegram to the BER 1-CATTLE-Business was unusually slow, even for Saturday. The run was less than the average, yet buyers seemed utterly indifferent, sitting in the shade of the exchange building exchanging ideas and speculating on next week's supply rather than looking over the stock on hand. Of course, the run last week was big and every buyer went in for a big string and, again, the theory with buyers is strong that receipts next week, on account of the expiration of contracts, will be more than ordinarily heavy and that they can get all they want and on days that suit them. Some salesmen that had steers that they fancied would not bring the money they were worth considered it useless to offer them, so that the bulk of trading was in cows, bulls and other odds and ends, all of which sold about the same as heretofore. Yet steers closed 10@20c lower than last Monday. There were no Texaus on sale this morning A load or two of feeders were sold to go into the country and the yard speculators bough a few slight steers, which comprised about all the transactions in the stockers and feeder line. Steers 1850 to 1500 lbs, $4.25@5.00; 120 to 1350 lbs. $4.00@4.60; 950 to 1200 lbs, $3.75@

4.10; stockers bnd feeders, $3.35@3.50; cows bulls and mixed, $1.80@3.50; bulk, 2.50@3.10 Texas steers, $3.25@4.00. Hoos.—Business was not as active as terday, as shipping orders were limited to one or two of the minor firms. The big ones were either out of the trade altogether or fill-ing their orders elsewhere. This left the market in the hands of the packers, who are not noted as very often putting price against themselves, hence values ruled 5@10 lower, with the weakest range in the Rock Island division. Best heavy and Philadel-phia's sold at $5.55@5.60, and prime butcher weights (selected) at $5.50@5.5234, bulk of best mixed sold around $5.45, a going at $5.50. Common mixed went as low ns $5.85@5.50; light sorts $5.40@5.45.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, April 28 .- | Special Telegran to the BEE. |-STOCKS-The stock market to-day was a repetition of former days dur ing the week and higher prices were again recorded, the last sales being at about the outside figures of the day and week. New England, Northwestern, Northern Pacific preferred and cotton oils and Gould stocks were the leaders, and gains of 314 to 314 were recorded for the day. New England led the list and was unusually active. Rumors of a consolidation were again rife, but the latest story was that it had been leased to New York and New Haven for 2 per cent on the guaranteed stock. Sewell, the newly elected director, is known in Bosten as the "great consolidator," and this is undoubtedly the basis for the numerous stories. Burling ton advanced 154 and Missouri Pacific 254 The impression grows that Gould is at the back of the latter and also under Manhattan, which gained a point. Professional tracers have realized freely the past three days, and played for a reaction, but have been beaten their stock being absorbed by various pools which have in many instances increased their holdings. London bought moderately and stimulated buying by timid operators who never make up their minds to take a hold until large gains have been recorded. The bank statement showed an increase in the reserve of $2,249,550, but a decrease in loans of $1,062,6000. The latter is rather a bad feature, as it shows that less money is being required for new enterprises. Money is eay, however, and liable to continue so for some time. This is the great bulwark of the bulls and they parade it on all occasions. The total sales were 177,808 shares. The advances for the week were; 814 on Manhattan, 6% on Missouri Pacific, 5% on Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, 41% on New England, 314 on Northwestern and Omaha, 3% on Northern Pacific preferred, 3% on Orgon Transportation, 2% on St. Paul, Lake Shore and Union Pacific, 234 on Reading, 234 on Western Union, and 1/4 on Richmond Terminal. The New York buyers have created a bet ter demand for light hogs than ever existed in this market before. In the past there have been times when light hogs were almost un salable, but at the present time they are sell ing as readily as any other grade.

The week's packing returns indicate about 150,000 hogs for western points now operating, against 130,000 the preceding week, and 155,000 for corresponding time last year. To-tal packing from March 1 to date 1,090,000 hogs, against 1,050,000 a year ago. The ship ping movement of hogs to eastern markets continues liberal, and considerably in excess

Special reports to the Cincinnati Price Current show the number of hogs packed from March I to date and latest mail dates at the undermentioned places, compared with the corresponding time last year, as follows:

GREENS HAVE COME. Also "Ingins," "Sparagus," New "Taters" and Other "Sass."

The epicurean Omahan, who for the last four months has breakfasted, dined and supped upon canned goods, and who has, in order to quell his yearning for garden truck, consumed large quantities of pickles, need do so no more for "greens have come," and for 10 cents one can buy a nice mess of water cress. Young "ingins" are on the market in immense quantities and your grocer will furnise them for 25 and 35 cents per dozen, according to quality. Toothsome asparagus can be purchased for 5 and 10 cents per bunch, while lettuce is on sale at 5 cents per head. Nice crisp radishes are in style and retail for 5 cents per bunch of six, while that promoter of colic, the cucumber, may be purchased for 10 cents per promote. If you desire more than one attack, wholesale rates will be made and three will be sold for 25 cents. New potatoes are on the market and for 20 cents you can buy a quart of the little tubers and a quart of green peas to cook with them. Delicately flavored celery will be furnished for table use at 10 cents per stalk and those stalks are stalks while you are stalking. The king of berries, the strawberry, is sold at 25 cents a box, with extra choice luscious California cherries at 30 and 35 cents. Rheubarb or "pie-plant" can be had for 8 cents per pound. "Pas'nips" are 25 cents per dozen; apples are 35 and 50 cents per peck. In addition to the above there are a thousand and one little things now on sale which assist in making a good dinner, which can be purchased very reasonably considering the season.

His Last Close Shave. New York Journal: A stout man in ouff-colored overalls climbed a ladder which he had placed in front of the store windows of No. 73 Bergen street, Brooklyn, yesterday morning and with one sweep of a paint brush obliterated the lettering which had appeared on a black sign with a gilt border.

Several men and a couple of ladies saw the painter wipe out the lettering. From the language used by the men it would appear that they would have been most happy to have come in contact, if only for a few minutes, with the individual whose name had graced that sign. 'Johnson d'Abore, Tonsorial parlors. Special parlor for ladies." This is what the signboard had said. And the place had gained some repute among the fashionable people in that section. The parlors were handsomely fitted up and the proprietor had plenty of cus-

What caused the obliteration of the Danish barber's name from the sign was the fact that he had gone away leaving behind him innumerable debts, a dis consolate wife, and taking with him a pretty Swedish girl who was madly in ove with him.

A year ago last July "Professor" Jake Bigelow, who was then proprietor of the tonsorial parlors, died, leaving a pretty and plump little German widow, who continued the business with the financial assistance and custom of "Snapper" Garrison, the well-known jockey. She eventually engaged Johnson d'Abore to superintend the work. Afterward she married him.

Having become proprietor of the place, D'Abore also became a man about town, and in the course of his excursions about the city he met Augusta Larson, who kept the White Star laundry, at No. 472 Bergen street. She had a good business, and could afford to enjoy herself. The shine of the Dane's patent leathers or his handsome whiskers caught her fancy, and when he told her he was a bachelor she accepted his ad-

He told her one day last week that he had sold out his business and was going out west. She was disconsolate and he pursuaded her that they might be happy together if she would sell out and ac-company him. This was putting her love to the test, but she was equal to the emergency. For several days the Dane went among his friends borrowing money. He managed to collect about $300. He got $20 of this from plumber Thomas Pitt and $43 from a poor Norwegian domestic, who had lately received the money from the old country. In the meantime Augusta sold out her laundry. On Saturday the pair left the city and it is supposed that they are on their way west together. The departure of the Dane became known Saturday evening and his wife went into hysterics when told of it. The people to whom he owed money put the sheriffs into the tensorial parlers on Monday and the deserted wife doesn't know how she will get them out.
