In Omaha Again.

There are many old Omahans who remember with pleasure Colonel C. W. B. Oden, who, until eight years ago, was a resident of this city. He came into town yesterday, and in so far as he was able, renewed acquaintance with a number of his old friends. There were many, however, whom he could not meet because age, infirmity and other untoward circumstances had led to their being numbered among the revered ones whose abiding place is now in the great beyond. 'The colonel looks well, enjoys excellent health, and is the representative of the Swedish Importing and exporting com-pany, which deals in Scandinavian delicacies, and of which he proposes to establish a branch in this city, of which, it is likely, ex-Marshal Westerdahl will have charge.

Williams Under a Cloud. In answer to a call the patrol wagon was sent to the south part of the city last night and returned with John Dixson and Henry Schluter, who insisted that the man in their custody, giving the name of Joe Williams, be locked up for attempting to outrage the seven year old daughter of Mrs. Joseph Anderson, of 2512 Leavenworth street. They said that the girl, whose name is Jennie, had told that Williams had led her into a cellar under the house and under promises of presents of candy and fruit, had attempted liberties that candy and fruit, had attempted liberties that caused her little brother, who had noticed the movement, to raise an alarm. Williams skipped out and was captured. Sergeant Mostyn who went to the vicinity discovered that Williams had attempted the same trick

To the Public.

An editorial appeared in Saturday's Republican headed "Break the Combination." We respectfully desire to contradict the many false statements in that article which, like others lately published in that paper, is misleading and does us great injustice. The citizens of Omaha are told that the contractors are responsible for the present labor troubles. They say we have lied to our customers, we have not kept our agreement in doing our work; they assail the architects, they assail the centractors, they assail every respectable man who has had plans drawn, that has through his architect said to the contractors, "We do not want this union to rule any longer;" does the Republican think that the mea that pay for these plans are fools, and have nothing to say as to who shall figure on their work, or shall do it! We challenge the Republican to name the men we have lied to in not forwarding our work, or state the work we have delayed They say we be-lieved ourselves masters of the situ-ation; we relievate we are masters of the situation, and are ready to do all kinds of the situation, and are ready to do all kinds of building promptly. Men are coming in every day—men who intend to bring their families and reside here, not as was stated a few days ago, men who intend to send all their meney away. The Republican says we are not equal to the emergency. They had better find the emergency before they declare us unequal to it. The Republican states we have only fifty non-union men at work. This is false. We have at present over one hundred non-union bricklayers at work, and cenget bricklayers as fast as our work will perget bricklayers as fast as our work will per-mit us of employing them. There is no work on the boards we cannot do precisely as we have started out; and we would say in con clusion, if the Republican will let the archi-lects, the contractors, the public, the brickmakers and the buildings that are being built alone, and attend to their printers and their own office building. Omaha will continue to grow and prosper, and the labor troubles die a natural death.

BRICK CONTRACTORS' ASSOCIATION. PLUMBING SUPERINTENDENT. It Creates Considerable Talk and Is

Afterwards Referred. President Bechel was on hand at the call meeting of the city council held last night for the purpose of the approval of the contract and bond of John F. Dailey for the construction of sewer in sewer district No. 60, and for receiving and acting upon the report of the committee on sewerage in regard to an ordinance creating the office of superintendent of plumbing and clerk. Dailey's bond of $4,000 was approved with J. H. McShane and James Creighton bondsmen.

was approved with J. H. McShane and James Creighton bondsmen.

The passage of the ordinance created considerable discussion. It provides that the superintendent be paid $150 a month and the clerk $60. The expenditure of $60 for a clerk caused dissension, a number of the members not favoring the outlay. They argued that a clerk was not needed, and expressed some surprise that the ordinance increased the salary of the superintendent from $125 to $150 a month. Those in favor of the passage of the ordinance maintained that the new orof the ordinance maintained that the new or-dinance devolved a great heap of work on the srperintendens, and that it would be neces sary for him to have a clerk. Other ers insisted that the ordinance was tive, as it did not specify for how long the superintendent and clerk were to be ap-pointed. Councilman Hascall insisted that slide a month was too much to pay. The present salary of $125 was at the rate of $4 a day. SCHOOL BUILDING BIDS.

The Board of Education Finds None That Are Satisfactory. Messrs. McConnell, Kelley, Saville, Gray and Pratt missed but little by being absent from their posts at the special meeting of the board of education last evening. The special order of business was the consideration of bids for the construction of the proposed school buildings on the Lake, Mason, Walnut Hill and Bancroft sites. Most of the evening was spent in wrangling and resulted finally in a : deferment of action until next Monday evening.

The meeting commenced with the reading of twenty-nine different proposals for the construction of the prospective buildings, and an army of contractors sat patiently in the lobby throughout the entire session. After the bids were all read it was discovered that they were all beyond the amount voted by the people for the construction of new buildings. Whereupon the following was presented by Mr. Felton:
Resolved, That inasmuch as there are no

bids offered for constructing buildings that came within the limit authorized by vote of the people to be expended by the board, that all bids be rejected and contractors notified o present new proposals one week from this

This brought out a long and dreary debate that lasted the entire evening. Hugh Clark thought it was hardly fair to ask these men to make bids again on the same contract. Morris Morrison asked, "can we afford to do this! Are we not crippled in our resources so that we can not do it. If we run above a certain line in our expenses we will be swamped. And that is our present sit-

Mr. Coburn said that if the same plans were again presented he doubted if a single contractor would again offer a bid. He thought the only way out of the difficulty was to modify the proposed plans in such a manner as to make new bids necessary. Mr. Morrison moved to amend by inserting the clause that the architects be given until the next regular meeting of the board to make such modifications as they deem neces

After considerable debate Mr. Felton modified the original resolution to read that the specifications be furnished by the architects on Monday night next at an adjourned meeting of the board. Mr. Morrison accepted this in lieu of his proffered amendment. Before this could be voted on Mr. Coburn moved that the portion rejecting the bids be stricked out. This brought two or three members to their feet, who claimed that such a motion vas not germam, and the chairman ruled it out of order.

Mr. Clark then moved that the further consideration of bids for school buildings be postponed until an adjourned meeting at 7:30 m. next Monday.

Mr. Morrison moved as an amendment that the architects be instructed to be present next Monday evening and prepare to submit such changes in specifications as in their judgment will lighten the cost of the build-The motion as thus amended was car

While the work of this popular actor in past years has established him firmly night until Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. as the leading German comedian of the day, yet the pieces in which he has appeared have never yet offered chances for the full development and exhibition of his genuine merits as an actor. There are several scenes in "Keppler's Fortunes" which are so full of pathos and buman nature that the inclination to laugh at the situation is eclipsed by a genuine sympathy with the scenes in which the wealthy butcher figures. The Omaha Carriage and Steigh Co The Omaha Carriage and Sleigh Co. will do more, perhaps, than anything else to advertise South Omaha and Albright throughout the state. The com-pany is building up a business and a reputation at the same time, and are depending entirely on the quality of the work they turn out for both, so that it is safe to say that fn future the trademark "Albright" will be a guarantee that a carriage or sleigh is fully up to the mark. Although but a few months in the business, the only drawback to note is a scarcity of cars for shipment. The grounds cover about three acres, and within the inclosure are the turning shop, wood shop, paint shop, blacksmith shop, shipping floor, wheel room, fur-nishing room and offices. About seventy men find employment in the various de-partments, and three salesmen represent the company on the road, while R. D. Buckingham looks after the finances and E. W. S. Van Slyke the practical management of the head office. "Yes, we came here to stay," said Mr. Van Slyke, "and we propose to both stay and build up a business on the merits of our work alone. We will turn out nothing but strictly 'A' grade work, and to do that will furnish nothing but the best material and the best workmanship. It does not cost any more to have the work done well, because when a workman spoils anything entrusted to him we charge him with it, so that nothing leaves any department without undergoing a throrough inspection. A trip through the factory and warerooms verified the statement. In the first department a dozen men were enrefully framing and fashioning the wagon bodies. "We use nothing but second growth hickory and that strictly so," said Mr. Van Slyke, "and white wood throughly seasoned and kiln dried of the first quality. Most manufacturers use common red hickory, but we find it pays best to buy the best. And we use the best here," he continued. "Nothing but Valentine's varnish is used throughout, and buyers know what that means." A trip to the paint shop showed half a dezen "bodies" in various stages of completion. Each one received sixteen coats before it was turned out. and during the last stages each coat of varnish was followed by a polishing pro-cess in which pulverized pumice stone and water gave it a gloss equal to that of a piano. "Here is something that may be new to you," the manager con-tinued, and led the way into the finishing room. Blue curtains shaded the windows and blue colorings tinted the walls. All the cracks in the floor were with oil and varnish. Everything was absolutely quiet and no atoms of dust could be distinguished floating through the air. "This is where the last coat of varnish is put on and it requires a skilled mechanic to do it. Only one stroke of the brush is needed and no dust must fall on it, or flies disfigure it. The light that falls on it is of a bluish tinge, and gives that in-describable rich lustre that you notice in all first class work. The store room was next visited, and rolls of handbuffed leather for tops and eighteen ounce wool dyed cloth for cushions (instead of the ordinary piece dyed) showed that nothing but the best material was used in any stage. Inquiry showed that the wheels, shafts and poles were the only things that were not made on the The wheels are from a leading fac-

They are known as the "steel banded wheel," and receive the finishing touches on the premises. In the blacksmith shops nothing but the finest grades of Norway iron were being used for general purposes, and finely tempered steel for the ity of the factory is for 1,000 carts, 300 Brewster and Elliptic spring buggies. 50 "Dandy" road wagons, 200 Paragon and 300 miscellaneous. In August work will be commenced on 2,000 sleighs, but in the meantime the premises will be enlarged to supply the demand for the company's special lines of "Brewster" and "Paragon" buggies.

MAX MEYER & BRO.

The Grandest Jewelry Store, Superb and Eigant.

The many visitors to Max Meyer & Bro.'s new establishment were amazed when they entered their store yesterday, as in all the west no such a display of fine diamonds, jewelry, watches, and everything that goes to beautify the nome or adorn the person was ever seen before.

This store, as every one knows, is in the new Paxton building, which was erected according to the desires and wishes of Messrs. Max Meyer & Bro. by Mr. Paxton, and is situated on the corner of Sixteenth and Farnam streets. The walls are tinted in terra cotta, the ceiling in sky blue, which gives a beautiful effect. The office, which is raised from the floor about fifteen feet, and in the rear of the store, is fitted with plate glass windows, behind which can be seen the many bookkeepers and other office

Upon entering the store the first thing you behold is a circle case, which is filled to overflowing with diamonds—embracing an assortment of cut diamonds, that would fill the crown of a queen so that the dazzling rays emitted might be fairly said to rival the brilliant corradiations of the sun when the falling raindrops produce the rainbow—pearls, rubies and sapphires and every variety of brilliant ornaments-in fact everything appertaining to the jewelry line— Max Meyer & Bro,'s display stands away out to the front—the firm of all others who have such a perfection of stock that their approaching rivals cannot hope to be able to excel them.

Their display of watches of American and foreign manufacture defies competi tion, and the pen is hardly able to describe the many fine goods that can be seen here. We overheard some lacies who have just returned from a European trip say that they have not seen anything more elegant in Paris or Lon-

The fittings in the store consist of rosewood cases and solid mahogany tables. The side walls have cases of fine inlaid woods extending the entire length, richly veneered; the gas fix-tures are also very beautiful and in keeping with the store.

Passing by the large vault to the rear you enter their music store, which for the convenience of their customers they have now on the ground floor. Max Meyer & Bro., carry the largest stock of foreign and American sheet music in the west, as well as a very large assortment of small musical merchandise and band instruments, and an immense stock of piacos and or Descending into the basement we find the wholesale stock of pianos and organs and small musical instruments, of which Max Meyer & Bro. are very large importers, as the records of the custom ouse in Omaha will divulge. Their manufacturing jewelry department and their piane and organ repair department is on this floor.

Taking the elevator, we go up to the second floor, and here we stand amazed at the collection of fine art goods dis-played in a beautifully decorated room marble statuary from Italy, fine bronzes from France, terra cotta from Spain and Bohemia, brass ware from Constantinople, paintings from Italy and Germany, etchings and engravings, richly cut glass; in short, we do not know of a store in the United States where a handsomer and more complete collection of fine art goods, varying in price from fifty cents of thousands of dollars, are kept for inspection and sale, than in the art room of Max Meyer & Bro.

Stepping to the front we are in the pianos. Max Meyer & Bro. have the western agency for the celebrated Chickering, Knabe, Vose, and for cheaper makes the Sterling and Arion pianes. They have also lately secured the western agency for the secured the western agency for the elebrated Kroeger piano. Mr. Kroeger has been superintendent of the Stein-way factory for the last twenty-five years, and is now manufacturing a piano that is better than he has ever made before.

West of the music hall is Max Meyer & Bro.'s wholesale jewelry and whole-sale watch material and tool department. Max Meyer & Bro. are the only firm west of the Missouri river who are members of the National Association of Jobbers. Hence they are in a position to sell watches, jewelry and material, in fact everything appertaining to the jewelry trade, at exactly the same figures as they are sold by jobbers all over the United States. Their trade is in-creasing right along, and they have a number of traveling men out in this ine alone.

Again taking the elevator we come to the third floor, in which we find their large wholesale piano warerooms their large wholesate piano warercoms and the teaching rooms, which are arranged on the conservatory plan. On this floor Mr. Young, the celebrated vocal teacher; Mr. Robbins, teacher of harmony; Mr. Blankenfeld, piano teacher; Mrs. Wilmaser, piano teacher; and quite a number of other teachers have their rooms.

Notwithstanding the disagreeable state of the weather on Saturday, the store was thronged with ladies and gentlemen all afternoon and evening-but as this was undoubtedly the means of keeping many back, Max Meyer & Bro. have concluded to continue their opening on Monday afternoon and evening, so that all their friends who were not able to come on Saturday will have an opportunity of seeing the entire_display intact. All are cordially invited and will be heartily welcomed.
