BLACKBURN'S SUPPRESSED RAGE

Sponser's Scheme to Trick the Direct Tax Fillibusters—Cleveland's Opposition to the Sioux Reservation Bill—An Illinois Man.

The Tall Sycamore in Hiding.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE OMAHA BEER, 513 FOURTEENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., May 3. With significant unanimity all of the Washington papers concur that Senator Voorhees has gone to Indiana on law business. One paper stated that he left on Tuesday immediately after his encounter with Ingalls. I learn to-night that Senator Voorhees is in seclusion at a private hotel in this city; that he has been there for forty-eight hours; has no idea of leaving the city, and that the announcements in the press were made at the request of his friends to explain his continued absence from the senate. It is stated that the senator is very ill.

Just before the Ingalls-Voorhees debate opened in the senate it was reported around the capitol that Senator Joe Blackburn was "loaded for the man from Kansas," and that he was anxious for an opportunity to participate in the affray. It was noticed during the early part of the debate that Blackburn squinted suspiciously in his seat and evinced the keenest interest. Three or four times he was on the eve of rising to put in his ear, but was admonished by senators around him not to do so. The senator from Kentucky could hardly control himself when Ingalls made a broad intimation about confederate brigades and guerrillas, and the crime there in sending clothing infected with deadly diseases into the families of innocent people to destroy their lives. The fact of the Kentuckian blanching and he grated his teeth. He said not a word, however. Presently a note was brought to the senator by a messenger, and he took it and read it nervously, and after that sat back in his chair and watched the proceedings with intense interest. He did not utter a word, but made no effort at any time to offer a reply or engage in the combat. During the awful canoodling and the discharge of painful shots by Ingalls, and at a moment when the sensation in the senate beggared description, the senator from Kentucky left his seat and retired to the cloak room, where he saw him very amazed as he expected him at every moment to spring to his feet in defense of his helpless friend from Indiana.

A friend says that the note the senator received was from a very dear friend on the outside who begged him to say not a word at the hazard of his reputation. He said that Ingalls was loaded to the muzzle for him, having procured certified copies of his war record, and that he would record (Blackburn) in the fact of the debate. There were also rumors heard from the lips of the people in the galleries and about the senate that Blackburn had been over the extreme quietude of Mr. Turpie, Senator Voorhees' colleague from Indiana. Many of Turpie's democratic friends declared that Blackburn had been over the senator from Kansas, but Mr. Turpie said not a word. It now becomes clear why he was quiet. Senator Ingalls was loaded to the muzzle for Blackburn, and Blackburn would have placed him in the same copperhead category and a despicable role in which he arranged Voorhees' speech. Blackburn's over Turpie's own name in his possession to prove his assertions.

Sensor Beck of Kentucky and Senator West of Missouri were also present on this occasion, and it develops that they were forewarned by friends who learned that the senator from Kansas was likewise prepared to club Blackburn. Blackburn had several records at hand. Before noon yesterday not a copy of the Congressional Record could be procured about the city. There was an unprecedented demand for the Record notwithstanding the fact that only the morning debate had been published. Senator Ingalls and Voorhees was published in yesterday's edition, the two long speeches being withheld for revision. There have been many rumors about Blackburn's speech in yesterday's issue of the Record ordered by Senators for distribution among their constituents.

At a meeting of the National Record held last night, at which General E. F. Beale presided, resolutions thanking Ingalls for his fearless and patriotic defense of the republican party and his arrangement and exposure of Voorhees and his copperhead allies, who, in the nation's hour of need and peril, squandered and plotted with the enemies of our country in their treasonable work, but lacked the courage to openly unite with the traitors and fight for their rights and the defense of the republic. A special resolution was passed proposing a public reception to the senator from Kansas. The committee representing the league will call upon him this week, and will ask him to call upon him to fix a date for the reception.

Senator Spooner is to conduct a vigorous fight in support of his proposed amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill when it comes before the senate. The bill came over from the house to the senate about the time the fillibusters succeeded in defeating the direct tax bill. The message of the president to the senate is absolutely essential to the legislative, executive and judicial departments of the government, and a veto of the direct tax bill, Mr. Spooner determined to offer the measure as an amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill. The direct tax bill is not amendable and the bill as it is not amendable; that it is in the nature of an appropriation and therefore comes properly under the sundry civil appropriation bill. It is not improbable that there will be fillibustering in the senate, and then another session of it when the bill goes over to the house for the concurrence. It is thought that the amendment should not be thrown out on the point of order in the senate.

THE HOUSE IN RESERVATION. It was ascertained to-day that President Cleveland's object in refusing to sign the bill opening to settlement the Sioux reservation in Nebraska and Dakota until the last day of Tuesday of this week, was to afford him every opportunity to veto it if he could find any grounds upon which to do so. He was expected to do this by vetoing the bill, and as soon as full consent has been obtained, the president will issue his proclamation throwing the reservation open to settlement. Mr. Gifford believes that will occur about the 15th.

SENATOR BATES GOES TO INDIANA. Senator Bates of Indiana, aged 52 to 53, while expressing a willingness to sign any man who would be considered by the party the strongest for the presidency, that he believed Senator Allison of Iowa, was the most available man, he first preferred him to any other mentioned. When asked what he thought of Walter Q. Gresham, he replied that the Gresham boom seemed to be more of a personality than anything else. Other members of the Minnesota delegation express themselves very warmly in favor of the Iowa man, whose strength seems to be growing.

MISCELLANEOUS. In the house to-day Mr. McShane called up his bill providing for a bridge across the Missouri between Council Bluffs and Omaha, and it was passed. A duplicate of the bill has been introduced in the senate, which insures its passage. C. P. Squires and wife, of Burlington, Ia., are at the Ebbitt. The secretary of the treasury to-day awarded the contract for special furniture for the public building at Council Bluffs to Conant Bros., of Toledo, O., for the sum of $3,500. PERRY S. HEATH, J.

MARTIN BEEM'S SAD SUICIDE.

Particulars Showing the Act Was a Case of Self-Destruction.

FAMILY TROUBLES THE CAUSE.

A Distinguished Union Army Officer and a Prominent Figure in Chicago Legal Circles—General Nebraska News.

Stanton's Prominent Suicide.

STANTON, Neb., May 3.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—I send you further particulars of the suicide of Martin Beem. The coroner's jury found a verdict of instantaneous death by a pistol shot from some unknown hand. Mr. Beem arrived at Stanton Sunday at 4 o'clock, hired a livery rig and drove to the Casa ranch that night. All day Monday he seemed to act very strange, wanting a pistol to go out in the valley to shoot wildcats and seemed to want the family to stay away from the house. He was apparently on friendly terms with his wife. Tuesday night after dinner he told his wife she had better lay down and take a nap, which she did in her own room. Mr. Case and son went to the barn to take care of the stock, and Mr. Beem said he guessed he would go to his wife's room and lie down too. He went to the room, told his wife he would read a while before lying down and set down in a chair by the side of the bed. She a few minutes had fallen asleep. She testified she did not hear the report of either of the two shots of the pistol. There were two shots fired about three or four seconds apart. The first shot did not take effect but passed over the head of the bed and entered the wall. The second entered his person just below the heart, killing him instantly. The noise of the falling of her husband and other persons coming to the room awakened her. Her father, Mr. Case, found her standing at the head of the stairs with her hands pressed against the door. She seemed to be in a state of her mind. Her husband had fallen face downward across a chair. He made two or three gasps when moved by Mr. Case and expired. Mr. and Mrs. Beem lived together for some years, their married life not being a pleasant one. The remains will be shipped to Chicago for interment. Mr. Beem was a veteran soldier and a distinguished lawyer of Chicago.

Chicago, May 3.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The death of Martin Beem, surprise was created among the many friends of General Martin Beem in Chicago by the receipt of the dispatch from Stanton, Neb., that he had committed suicide. He had been in private at the Casa ranch for some time, and was expected to be here for some time. He was a distinguished lawyer and a prominent figure in Chicago legal circles. He was a veteran soldier and a distinguished lawyer of Chicago.

Bloomington, Ill., May 3.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—Joseph W. Eifer, who was nominated by the republicans for governor yesterday, arrived from Springfield to-day at 2 p. m., and was tendered an enthusiastic reception. A grand escort of people of all political creeds had assembled at the depot and the military and civic societies' escort were standing in a column awaiting his arrival with banners and music. Mr. Eifer was escorted to the Windsor hotel and introduced in the parlors by Judge O. T. Severs. Mr. Eifer responded as follows: As neighbors and friends, I thank you most cordially and sincerely for this magnificent reception. I thank you and through you, the people of McLean county, for the heroic stand by which you and they have stood by my cause. I have lived in this county, for many years, and for many, more than thirty-one years, and your endorsement to me at least, means a great deal. I will say that we are to be congratulated on the issues before us this coming campaign, as they appeal to knowledge and to reason, rather than to the passions. With strong arms and brave hearts, we will stand by the right, and we will go forward to deserve and achieve victory.

Chicago, May 3.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The Chicago stock market was badly wrecked at a late hour to-night near the stock yards. Circumstances point to the belief that it was the work of strikers or their sympathizers. The engine and two cars passed when some unknown person tripped the switch and the next five cars were immediately derailed and piled up in a hopeless wreck in a ditch. As the switch was thrown a man near the rear of the train threw a tie on the track, wrecking the last three cars. At the same time a fire engine crossed the tracks, and the flames crossing and struck the train, which was in the center of the train, was set on fire. Fire engines responded to the alarm and the flames were extinguished. The wrecked train is strung along the track for nearly half a mile.

A STORM-SWEPT TOWN.

Lacona, Ia., Slightly Damaged and Fatalities Ensnare. Des Moines, Ia., May 3.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—This morning opened very close and sultry. About noon a great thunder shower came up, accompanied by gusts of wind, which did no particular damage here but serious results are reported in other parts of the state. At Lacona, in the south-east corner of Warren county, the storm struck the place about 2:30 p. m., and in a giddy delirium Myers & McKinley's two-story building was blown down. The merchant, Leonard Wilson, a farmer, was in the store at the time and was crushed by the falling timbers and was dead when his body was picked up. Two other persons were slightly hurt, and two boys are still missing who were in the building just before the storm. The saw mill belonging to Myers & McKinley was blown down, and the mill without loss of life. Other buildings were unroofed and fences and trees were demolished.

Des Moines, Ia., May 3.—[Special to the Bee.]—The State Pharmacy association is in annual session here to-day, with a large number of delegates from all over the state present. It took very important action in deciding by an almost unanimous vote that as soon as the present permits had expired they would not sell liquor for any purposes whatever. They adopted a strong resolution declaring that the last legislature had passed an act which was a gross violation of the public trust, and that they would not sell liquor either with safety to his financial interest or with any degree of honor. They also adopted a resolution that they would not sell liquor for any purposes whatever. Fire engines responded to the alarm and the flames were extinguished. The wrecked train is strung along the track for nearly half a mile.

Chicago, May 3.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The Chicago stock market was badly wrecked at a late hour to-night near the stock yards. Circumstances point to the belief that it was the work of strikers or their sympathizers. The engine and two cars passed when some unknown person tripped the switch and the next five cars were immediately derailed and piled up in a hopeless wreck in a ditch. As the switch was thrown a man near the rear of the train threw a tie on the track, wrecking the last three cars. At the same time a fire engine crossed the tracks, and the flames crossing and struck the train, which was in the center of the train, was set on fire. Fire engines responded to the alarm and the flames were extinguished. The wrecked train is strung along the track for nearly half a mile.
