

THE DAILY BEE.

PUBLISHED EVERY MORNING.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION. Daily Morning Edition including Sunday... For One Year $10.00...

ADVERTISING. All communications relating to news and editorial matter should be addressed to the Editor of the Bee.

THE BEE PUBLISHING COMPANY, PROPRIETORS. E. ROSEWATER, Editor.

THE DAILY BEE.

Sworn Statement of Circulation. State of Nebraska, County of Douglas, J. S. S.

Geo. B. Trueschick, secretary of the Bee Publishing Company, solemnly swears that the actual circulation of the Daily Bee for the week ending May 11, 1888, was as follows: For the week ending May 11, 1888, 15,500 copies...

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence this 15th day of May, A. D. 1888. N. P. FELL, Notary Public.

State of Nebraska, County of Douglas, J. S. S. George B. Trueschick, being first duly sworn, deposes and says that the actual circulation of the Daily Bee for the month of May, 1888, was as follows: For the month of May, 1888, 15,500 copies...

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence this 31st day of May, A. D. 1888. N. P. FELL, Notary Public.

If the Omahas hadn't played on Sunday they would not have lost that game.

The taxpayers of Douglas county, who pay the per diem of jurors, demand that good men be compelled to serve upon the regular panel. Otherwise, the professional juror will flourish and multiply.

The May term of the Douglas county district court began this morning. Fifteen hundred cases appear on the docket for adjudication, including some very important criminal cases. Even with an increased number of judges it seems impossible to keep pace with accumulating litigation.

THERE is to be a convention of lawyers in Washington in which every bar association in the country is to be represented. The object of the meeting is to urge uniformity of legislation in the different states in regard to bills of exchange, promissory notes, execution of wills, marriage and divorce. But the question of uniformity of lawyers' fees will be passed over in broad silence.

AN analysis of many cases now in the district court would furnish a theme for many a dissertation from which a moral or a lesson could be drawn with profit. A very valuable lesson might be had from the history of the questionable work of irresponsible contractors who last year, when the building season was at its height, managed to burden owners of many buildings with a heavy load of mechanics' liens and unpaid bills. The essence of such a lesson would be that the lowest bid of a contractor is not always the cheapest.

THERE is some misunderstanding shown by a few newspapers of the state with reference to the business to come before the state convention to-day. It is the province of this convention to nominate four delegates to the national convention, four alternates, and also five presidential electors. As to the latter, however, their election will depend upon what the convention may determine after proper consideration. It is a mere matter of form and will depend upon what has been the usage in other states.

THE railroad programme for to-day is to elect Thurston, Egan and Palmer as delegates-at-large to the Chicago convention. In that event, the first congressional district would be given five delegates to the national convention, leaving the remaining two districts to divide the other five delegates between them. It would also give the first district three delegates-at-large and the other two districts one delegate-at-large. But it remains to be seen whether this higgish scheme can be consummated.

THERE seems to be a growing feeling of disapproval among our people at the selection of the High school grounds for Decoration day exercises. Some of the arguments advanced against the choice made are good. There can be little doubt that much of the sacredness and beauty of past celebrations of the day will be wholly lost by reason of the presence of an indifferent element upon the High school campus which is drawn to every large crowd. Decoration day finds its chief inspiration in the commemoration of dead heroes. Its exercises are not in any sense to partake of the gladsome features of a gala day. Most of our fallen heroes lie in Prospect Hill cemetery, which is easy of access, and a more fitting place could not be desired in which to pay tribute to their memories.

SENATOR BOWEN, of Colorado, has a scheme to utilize the waste water of the Mississippi and Missouri which annually overflow the lowlands of their respective valleys. It is the senator's idea to construct a system of reservoirs along the tributaries and head waters of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, and by a series of canals and reservoirs to turn this immense volume of waste water toward irrigating the arid lands of Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico. The proposition is certainly ambitious and laudable. The question is whether it is feasible. The undertaking would cost millions of dollars. But if the immense arid tracts of land in the territories could be reclaimed, and the low lands of the Mississippi valley be protected from submersion, the canals and reservoirs would be cheap at any price.

The Colfax County Patriot.

The Colfax county republican convention Saturday distinguished itself in an eminent degree. The railroads captured the county, and H. C. Russell not only succeeded in having the delegation to the Norfolk convention of yesterday instructed to push his boom for congress, but he railroaded through a resolution instructing the delegation to the state convention, of which he is a member, to vote for John M. Thurston for delegate-at-large to the national convention.

The result of this action will be a defeat of the republican party in Colfax county, where the democrats and republicans are about equally divided. Russell is practically a political nonentity, and the people of this state very distinctly remember that he treacherously entered the campaign two years ago with false promises which he never intended to fulfill. As chairman of that infamous legislative judiciary committee and plant tool of corporate oil-rum attorneys and lubricating contractors, Mr. Russell succeeded in crippling this city by maliciously mutilating the charter for metropolitan cities, whereby Omaha was curtailed in her city limits, deprived of the power to acquire parks and boulevards, and plunged into a fight over her police system. As one of the conspirators who were in close communion with professional gamblers and sought to extort money from them under promise to defeat the anti-gambling bill, the Colfax county patriot also achieved immortal renown—in the eyes of his political associates of the Colfax county band of ringleaders.

Russell is the man who, under sacred pledges, prevailed upon Senator Van Wyok to stamp Colfax county for him in the legislative canvass, only to turn traitor and spy upon the men to whom he owed his election.

To cap the climax of defiance to public sentiment, the Colfax county convention instructs its delegates for John M. Thurston. Whom do they represent—the small band of ringleaders, two-per cent men and jobbers who manipulate the town caucus, or the large body of republicans who live in Colfax county as tillers of the soil and who are republicans, not for plunder, but from principle.

Avoid the Breakers. The republican party of Nebraska can take some chances. Its large majority, and the earnest loyalty of the rank and file, have enabled it to generally escape the penalty of defeat for many grave blunders. In this presidential year the republicans of Nebraska will undoubtedly be found in line, maintaining their well-earned reputation for consistent devotion to republican principles and to the republican cause. But the future of the party in this state will be endangered unless it shall make a successful effort to reform its methods and throw off the pernicious and corrupting influence that has always dominated it, and is still impudently and aggressively asserting itself.

The time to institute the required reform is now. It should be done by the convention which assembles to-day to choose delegates-at-large to the national convention. It is certain that the railroad influence will be present in force, prepared to employ its familiar tactics for obtaining control of the convention and inducing or compelling the selection of men who are agreeable to the corporations. It must be confronted and defeated. The republicans of Nebraska cannot afford to be represented at Chicago by state delegates who are the creatures of the railroads. It is most unfortunate that the republicans of the first district permitted two of this class to be elected to the national convention, but that blunder cannot now be undone. A similar and more serious blunder may be averted, however, if the state-convention shall firmly set its face against the railroad influence and select men who have no interests or sympathies in common with the corporations. There are many such men who would intelligently and creditably represent Nebraska in the national convention—men who have always fought with the party and who are sincerely and patriotically devoted to its principles and its cause. The representatives of the state at large should be as free as possible from all influences and prejudices that would affect their judgment regarding any candidate who may be presented to the national convention. This cannot be the case with a man chosen by order of the railroads, or one who has any connection with those corporations. There is likely to be a much greater railroad influence in the national convention than will be for the good of the party. The republicans of Nebraska should be most careful to contribute no more to it than is now inevitable.

There will be no more propitious time than now to make a supreme effort to throw off the domination exercised by the railroads on the politics of this state. The republican party cannot safely postpone the necessary reform in this particular. Its dishonorable and demoralizing thralldom to the corporations cannot be continued without bringing the inevitable penalty. It may go through this presidential year without serious consequences, even if it refuse to reform, but the future will not be secure. It is most seriously to be hoped that to-day's convention will firmly repudiate every effort of the railroads to influence or dictate its action, and that in the selection of delegates-at-large men will be chosen who have no interests or sympathies in common with the corporations. If otherwise the rank and file of the republican party of Nebraska will be misrepresented at Chicago.

A Signal of Distress. It has been reported that Mr. Cleveland would like very much to have Mr. Thurman of Ohio, on the presidential ticket with him, and it is said that a veteran statesman has been appealed to accept the second place on the ticket. If such is the fact it would justify the inference that Mr. Cleveland is feeling some solicitude regarding the result, and is not willing to trust the matter wholly to his vaunted luck. There is no lack of material from which the democratic party may select a vice presidential candidate, but even Mr. Cleveland has enough political sagacity to understand that most of those who have been prominently talked of would give little strength to the ticket. Since McDonald's thrust at Gray, the boom of the latter has suffered something like a collapse, from which it is not likely to recover, and the democratic situation in Indiana is shown to be such that it will doubtless be thought inexpedient to nominate any one from that state. Illinois offers two candidates in Black and Stevenson, both of them holding office under the administration, and very likely Mr. Cleveland is unwilling to have these subordinates elevated to the position of vice presidential candidates. They would not help the ticket the least bit. Mr. Vilas would like the prize, but for some time that the president does not favor his ambition, besides which he has the opposition of a very large faction of the Wisconsin democrats.

General Hancock's grave is in a secluded and isolated corner of the cemetery at Norristown, Pa., and is entirely unmarked by slab or tomb.

Senator Salsbury, of Delaware, still professes belief of the fact that he is the only bachelor in that unhappy assemblage—the United States senate.

Sidney Lanier, the southern poet, is to have a monument costing $15,000, and Baltimore, Montgomery and Macon will pay the largest part of the bill.

H. Rider Haggard is earnestly in favor of a copyright law. He says its absence has caused him the loss of at least $250,000, and that is why he mourns.

President Eliot of Harvard has a good many opinions. One is that women should never lecture to young men. The opinion is not shared by the women.

Prof. G. Stanley Hall, of John Hopkins university, has just had his institution and accepted the presidency of the new Clark university, Worcester, Mass.

Senator Waterman, of California, has a gold mine in San Diego county that is now paying him a net profit of $500 a day. He expects to take $1,000,000 out of it next year.

General Boulanger has been paid $40,000 for the manuscript of his book on the German invasion. In his case the pen appears to be not only mightier but more valuable than the sword.

Mr. Gladstone owns a patch of land on the Canadian side commanding a splendid view of Niagara Falls. He was asked to sell when the Prospect Park improvements were being planned, but declined with thanks.

Secretary Bayard is a victim of irresponsible gossip. They now have it that he is engaged to Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, which is probably as destitute of truth as the story that he was to marry Mrs. Folsom.

Congressman McKinley, of Ohio, is said to be a striking resemblance to Napoleon Bonaparte, while the profile of Representative Baker, of New York, is almost an exact reproduction of George Washington's side face.

Secretary Endicott lives the most retired life of any public man in Washington. He visited the capital the other day for the first time during his residence in Washington. When he went into the senate chamber he was recognized by only three senators.

Joseph Chamberlain still causes much talk in England, and lately he has been humiliated. The Workingmen's Liberal club of Lennington have removed his picture from their walls, and he was obliged to leave the club. The Workingmen's Liberal club was accompanied by enthusiastic cheers.

Matthew Arnold's grave is closed by those of his two oldest sons, and also of his young child, and near to those of a small circle of relatives and connections, amongst whose tombstones are to be read the names of some eight or ten members of the Buckland family, and that of Mrs. Deane, sister of Dr. Arnold, and aunt of the late poet and scholar.

John Wanamaker, the Philadelphia merchant, has been elected president of the Employers' Association of Philadelphia. His name was on the roll of honor a part of last year's profits, amounting to $40,251.02, nearly $150 each. He also gave to the employees' pension fund a check for $10,000, and his total payments to the various funds for the benefit of his help during the year amounted to $100,439.63.

President Smith, of Trinity college, Hartford, said to be a cool, clear-headed and healthy man, has been seized with a heavy cold, and he is now in bed, and he is unable to attend to his duties. He is expected to be in bed for some time.

A three year old child, Charles Bishop near Fairbury while playing pulled out one of the stove logs, upsetting the stove and a kettle of hot water upon it by which she was scalded so severely that she died in a short time.

The Elkhorst road has placed Lincoln on an equal footing with Omaha in regard to the freight business in the western portion of the state. Heretofore the rate on all classes, except mail, was higher from Lincoln to the points in the western part of the state than from Omaha.

The Grand Island city council has started the project of building a new city hall. It is estimated that a fine $50,000 and the same is hereby imposed on all councilmen and the city clerk, for non-attendance at regular or special meetings of the council unless excused by a majority of the council present, and that no smoking be allowed in the council chamber during business hours.

Yarns are being made in the cotton factory is again out of tin. Over two hundred thousand cans are now made, which is less than half the number required for this year. The factory expects to be able to make things this season. York cannot goods are in demand all over the state, and whenever tried establish such a favorable reputation that the retail dealers are obliged to handle them.

The Clay county assessors have changed the assessment on land from $7.50 to $20 an acre.

Mrs. E. A. Lewis has presented the Vermillion Baptist church with a pipe organ costing $1,500.

The Illinois Central contemplates a movement from St. Louis toward the Black Hills this year.

The Deadwood Pioneer promises its readers that Deadwood will have two railroads within a few months.

E. H. Willey, of Waido, Wis., has purchased the Vermillion Republican and will assume the management immediately.

Saturday the farmers of the surrounding country met at Cedarvale and organized the organization of the Farmers' Elevator company.

Deadwood has developed a very accommodating ghost, who serves the local strikers of the daily press there almost as good a turn as did the obstinate Chinaman a few days ago.

Arrangements have been completed, by which the Dakota Farmer, the official organ of the Dakota Farmers' Alliance company will be removed from East Pierre to Aberdeen.

The south Dakota prohibition central committee, through its chairman, D. R. Grover, has called a meeting of that organization at Yankton for next Tuesday and it is the intention of the committee on that occasion to nominate a candidate for delegate in congress. This committee is the remnant of the third party movement in Dakota.

A singular accident occurred to a young man recently named Fred Elder. Living six miles south of Salem, which resulted in a fatal case of cholera. He was engaged in sinking a large stone in the field by excavating beneath it, when the earth unexpectedly gave way and the stone fell, injuring him so badly that he died the next day.

What It Ought to Be. Omaha. The national convention of any party ought to be a place for earnest deliberation and wise weighing of chances. The tendency always is to regard it as a place of trickery, where the exciting game of nominating candidates is watchfully played to a close with marked cards. The straining of ambitious little men, the pulling and hauling and bullying politicians, have obscured the plain, honest purpose of that great gathering. The readiness with which "favorite sons" in the past have traded away their votes to other candidates, for promises of office, should cause delegations whose loyalty goes to the length of blind devotion to temper the warmth of their support by insisting upon their right to carry their sovereignty under their own hats.

Falling in Its Horns.

Readers of the Star will bear willing testimony that this paper has never sought to depreciate the credit and removal of Kansas City, but it would counsel caution to those who are figuring out a population of nearly 300,000 upon the basis of the new directory. In a couple of years there will be a count of noses under the national census which is always accepted as authoritative, and it will be an injustice to Kansas City to show a decrease or only a small increase as compared with extravagant estimates now.

He Was an American.

He was an American—proud of his country, that was and ever will be proud of him. He did not find perfection only in other lands. He did not grow small and shrunken, withered and apologetic, in the presence of those upon whom greatness had been thrust by chance. He could not be covered by dikes or lords, nor flattered into verberateless subservency by the patronizing smiles of kings. In the midst of conventionalities he had the feeling of suffocation. He believed in the royalty of man, in the sovereignty of the citizen and in the matchless greatness of this republic.

The Kind He Was.

"Daniel," called the president, as he threw away his cigar and newspaper and pulled up to his knees for business—"Daniel." "Yes, sire," responded Daniel, coming in. "What's on the docket for to-day?" "Sire, there's a man in my office wants to see you."

"Who is he, Daniel?" "He says he is a democrat, sire."

"What's the name of that democrat, Daniel?" "A Cleveland democrat, sire."

"Well, I don't want to see him, Daniel; I won't see him," and the president brought his fist down on the desk; "all these Cleveland democrats either hold offices or want to, and I'm tired of them. Can't you get some of the other kind to call on me?"

"Certainly, sire, certainly," said Daniel, cheerfully, as he went out to get more of himself. "What has our politicians have to tell. Darned if I know how to catch the kind of a democrat the old man wants to see."

Major Martin of Texas.

In the House, Washington Critic. Then up rose William Martin, and every face was pale; The likely but he was going to twist Protection's tail.

Five thousand eyes were on him As he prepared to meet The grim and gory monster And knock it off its feet.

He forced it to the corner; He punctured it with speech; He pushed it to its tent; And everything in reach.

He carried on his counter; He pushed it to its tent; Till paralyzed Protection Essayed to climb the fence.

Then came the chance for Martin, A chance that could not fail, For as Protection booted, He caught it by the tail.

Full many a twist he gave it, Then when he gave it more, Till poor Protection, conquered, Curled up upon the floor.

Loud shouted all the people; They raised a mighty fuss, And with one voice proclaimed him The Lone Star Spartacus.

STATE AND TERRITORY.

Nebraska Jottings.

Hastings will have fourteen saloons this year. Colby, Thomas county, talks of a new paper.

Liberty offers the Wyanadotte road $81,000 for the right of way and to be paid in five years.

Between the years 1866 and 1897 there were fifty-nine divorces granted in Cuming county.

The American Farmer's union, organized at Lawrence, Kan., is receiving a good membership.

The Beemer Times reports the loss of many cattle in that vicinity, caused by some winter disease.

The recent rains have raised the Blue river about five feet, clearing the rubbish from the banks, and making a good run for fish.

Sheriff Culwell, of Nemaha county, took Thomas Egan to the reformatory on the 4th inst. Thomas evidently believes his name.

A three year old child, Charles Bishop near Fairbury while playing pulled out one of the stove logs, upsetting the stove and a kettle of hot water upon it by which she was scalded so severely that she died in a short time.

The Elkhorst road has placed Lincoln on an equal footing with Omaha in regard to the freight business in the western portion of the state. Heretofore the rate on all classes, except mail, was higher from Lincoln to the points in the western part of the state than from Omaha.

The Grand Island city council has started the project of building a new city hall. It is estimated that a fine $50,000 and the same is hereby imposed on all councilmen and the city clerk, for non-attendance at regular or special meetings of the council unless excused by a majority of the council present, and that no smoking be allowed in the council chamber during business hours.

Yarns are being made in the cotton factory is again out of tin. Over two hundred thousand cans are now made, which is less than half the number required for this year. The factory expects to be able to make things this season. York cannot goods are in demand all over the state, and whenever tried establish such a favorable reputation that the retail dealers are obliged to handle them.

The Clay county assessors have changed the assessment on land from $7.50 to $20 an acre.

Mrs. E. A. Lewis has presented the Vermillion Baptist church with a pipe organ costing $1,500.

The Illinois Central contemplates a movement from St. Louis toward the Black Hills this year.

The Deadwood Pioneer promises its readers that Deadwood will have two railroads within a few months.

E. H. Willey, of Waido, Wis., has purchased the Vermillion Republican and will assume the management immediately.

Saturday the farmers of the surrounding country met at Cedarvale and organized the organization of the Farmers' Elevator company.

Deadwood has developed a very accommodating ghost, who serves the local strikers of the daily press there almost as good a turn as did the obstinate Chinaman a few days ago.

Arrangements have been completed, by which the Dakota Farmer, the official organ of the Dakota Farmers' Alliance company will be removed from East Pierre to Aberdeen.

promise of office, should cause delegations whose loyalty goes to the length of blind devotion to temper the warmth of their support by insisting upon their right to carry their sovereignty under their own hats.

ADVANCE GUARDS ARRIVE.

Preparations for the Republican State Convention to-day.

ONLY A FEW AS YET ON HAND.

The Programme of the Gathering So Far as Arranged—Plans of the Numerous Candidates—Presidential Preferences.

Preparing for The Battle. The presence of large delegations to the congressional district conventions in Hastings and Norfolk conducted to the meager gathering of delegates to the state republican convention which meets here this evening in the Grand opera house.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican state central committee, arrived yesterday morning and opened up headquarters at the Millard hotel. He was busy all the day in making out the list of credentials to be used to-night. This he hopes to have completed at an early hour this morning because a large number of the delegates have already sent in their names for consideration. He has already received suggestions of a contest. Eighty-three counties will be represented, thus comprising somebody from every county in the state.

John M. Thurston, secretary of the republican