An unknown man assaulted a couple of persons who were visiting on Rotten Row last night. The assailed were taken to the lockup to identify their assailant in case he is captured.

Just before joining the procession yesterday the fire department boys, engines, etc., were photographed by Prouty. The picture will be large and "the finest in the land," so the boys say.

ADDITIONAL COUNCIL BLUFFS Fats and Leans.

There were so many attractions in the city yesterday that there could not be a very large attendance at any one place as all of them were well patronized. The largest number of pleasure seekers went to Lake Manawa, where the principal drawing card was a ball game between the fat and lean teams of the city. There was an attendance of about seven hundred people on the grounds. The diamond was laid out on the east side of the hotel, just across the motor track, and the majority of the ladies present witnessed the game from the upper balcony. When the game was called it was a lot of very fine looking young men who took their places in the field, although their build was not quite what a good base ball manager would desire. The cighteen players would average very nicely, but the parcels of human flesh were put up m very irregular quantities.
The toams were composed of the following players: PATS. POSITIONS. LEANS.

A. W. Askwith. Catcher Ernest Hart
James Bowman Pitcher George Brown
T. B. Baldwin 1st base Charlie Haas
J. J. Shea 2d base Bert Evans
J. G. Tipton 3d base. W. H. Wakefield
M. B. Brown Short stop Ed. Troutman
W. H. Grandy Right field P. Kimball
Charlie Beno C't'r field A. W. Kiekman
L. P. Judson Left field E. A. Odell
The fat men were the first at bat, and as they were sure of a final victory, fooled around with the stick considerably and were retired with only one run.

retired with only one run. The hungry fellows played ball from the start, and in their half piled up three runs, but their wind got thick, and the next three failed to reach the first bag.

When the heavy weights came in for the

When the heavy weights came in for the second round they winked at each other in a knowing way, and as Tom Baldwin waltzed up to the plate he gave an extra twist to his blonde pet on his upper lip, and when the sphere came skirmishing by him, he whacked away at it and started for first. He got under such headway that he was unable to stop when he reached that resting place, and landed safely at second before the ball and landed safely at second before the ball could be captured by the trio of long-legged chaps who tried to run it down.

Tipton was the next man at bat, and he came up to the scratch with an audible smile, and his heart was full of noble resolve. He failed to find the contrary little combination of india rubber and adamant, and fanned the air wildly, finally reaching first on a wild then called before the curtain, and the shouts of applause that greeted the appearance of this coming wonder of the base ball world nerved him to mighty deeds, and he grasped his piece of ash with a mighty grip. He struck for a home run, but he found it a long way around the diamond, and sat down at second to recover his breath. Jim Bowman, the renowned detective and burglar catcher, then faced the lank twirler and dropped on his wonderful delivery for a three-bagger. He followed his predecessors to the home plate, and that was the last run of the inning.

The slims then came in for a brief space, and retired with a goose egg.

The coming champions then were in for five more tallies.

five more tallies.

The lonesome team in the rear then screwed up their courage and crawled up their lead, and the game began to lose interest. In one or two instances the players had trained down a little too fine, and their overexertion began to tell on them. The amount of arnica used during the game was surpris-

The players fairly soaked themselves in it at the end of each inning. Some carried it to the field with them in little vials. the field with them in little vials.

A few brilliant plays were made, but it was too early in the season to expect many of them. In the third inning Tipton prepared to make a glorious stop, and laid down to stop a grounder. He made a slight miscalculation, and did not drop until the ball was under him. Of course it disappeared, and could not be dug out of the earth until one of the spectators offered his, walking stick for the spectators offered his walking stick for the purpose. This was the finest exhibition of skill shown by the fats. The lean men played under a great disadvantage during the entire game. Troutman was hit by a pitched ball, and the force was so great as to cut a long gash in the cover of the ball. The fat men claimed that it would not have happened if he had not presented his thinnest side to the pitcher.

Askwith introduced one innovation. He either doubted his own ability to throw to first, or had little confidence in Baldwin's ability to catch a ball, for he preferred to made it work all right, for he always nabbed them before they reached it.

It is well known that "blood will tell," but it has long been a mooted question whether or not beef was as sure of winning in the end. This game goes to show that there is a great deal of good in an abundance of beef. The decisions of the umptre were beyond criti-cism, in fact he could not have made a mistake if he had wanted to. There was a great disposition on the part of the players to kick but their lungs were so weak that a faint nurmur was all that the spectators could hear whenever the kickers saw fit to call hear whenever the kickers saw fit to call their vocal organs into play.

The patient spectators remained until nearly dark waiting for the end of the game. It came after a while and the score book showed the result to be 14 to 32 in favor of the men of might and muscle. Several of the victorious team were badly out of repair but they were escorted to the hotel by ad-miring friends and after being treated to miring friends and after being treated to one of the finest suppers that Harmon Bros. can spread they regained in a great measure their former activity and were well pre-pared to take part in the festivities of the evening. With every trip of the motor cars came fresh arrivals, and by the time the dancing began the capacious structure was completely filled. The two parlors were canvased and filled. The two parlors were canvased and throughout the evening the scene was a merry one. The splendid banquet prepared for the occasion was worthy extended mention, but space forbids. It seemed that the interest in this formal opening of this beautiful summer resort had increased on account of the unavoidable postponements, and although the expectations of the guests were raised very high, there was no cause for raised very high, there was no cause for disappointment.

Hard Lines For a Maiden. Yesterday opened rather quiet in police circles, but quotations brightened up during the day and ended in a very lively manner. A man who was so drunk that he did not know his name was run in. He was followed by another who wanted a handkerchief and got into another person's pocket to find it. This occurred on the circus grounds. He registers as P. Morgan. On his person were found switch keys and brakemen's badges from railroads all the way from the lakes to the gulf. Toward evening Flora Enoch, who has been for several months staying with Mrs. Durgin at her boarding house, was brought before Judge Aylesworth. After hearing the evidence the girl was ordered to go with her mother to her home near Weston. After leaving the city building a Mrs. Allen appeared and a war of words ensued which ended up in a a war of words ensued which ended up in a regular scabble. Both clinched and but for the immediate appearance of the police the affair would probably have ended scriously. Mrs. Enoch and Mrs. Allen are sisters, and it is alieged that it is through the influence of the latter that Miss Flora will not stay at home. There is no question but that the girl should be in better hands than to which she is lawfully intrusted, but the court could not see how he was authorized to make any worth yesterday morning. George Geiser was tried for disturbing the peace. The evidence developed the fact that his washerwoman had circulated the story that he was afflicted with a loathsome disease, and he resented in a most decided manner. He went to her house and after abusing her verbally he was about to club her when she picked up a flatiron in self defense. He went outside and secured a hatchet, and the woman's husband, who acted as referee, told her to get the butcher knife. Suffice it to say, they did not come to blows. The court thought George's action a little too belligerent, and taxed him $10 for his fun.

other decision upon this showing of the casd. Evenly Matched.

A rocky case was tried before Judge Ayles-
