Republicans Have a High Old Time at the Convention.

LAMBS FOR THE SLAUGHTER.

They Name Eight of Them For the Shambles Amid Most Noisy and Disgusting Exhibitions of Drivel and Inanity.

The Nominees. The republican city convention met yesterday in the council chamber, and nom mated, as candidates for the school board, for three years, William Coburn, Fred McConneil, Stephen J. Broderick, W. A. Kelley and E. C. Cone. John C. Thompson was nominated to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. A. McClure; Dr. Spaulding and Charles Wehrer to serve the unexpired term of one year of Messrs. T. W. Blackburn and H. J. Davis. Mr. Coburn is the sheriff of this county and a member of the board at present; Fred McConnell has been a member for a short time, and is of the firm of McConnell & Orr. sand and stone dealers; W. A. Kelley is a member of the present board and connected with the advertising department of the Republican; E. C. Cone has been in the employ of the city railway company; John C. Thompson is a printer; Dr. Spaulding, as may be inferred, is a physician, and Charles Wehrer is a tinner.

Noisy Delegates.

There were represented sixty-three pri mary delegates, some of whom were elected by a vote of the magnificent number of five. Some of the delegates are esteemed in the party, others are made cushions about every time they aspire to representative positions. The former came to secure the nomination of friends, but seemed to feel that nomination meant political defeat, and went about their business in a perfunctory manner, regretting the obligations exacted of them by their as sociates. The other element went to nomiwhen they were granted the ineffable pleasure of airing their windy rhetoric that they seized the floor at every opportunity. The result was two hours of inanity, buncombe and big-littleness such as have not distinguished a requisition of the site. guished a republican convention in this city for many years. George M. O'Brien filled the chair. It was his maiden effort. With but one paper-weight on the desk to keep order, the young man succeeded beyond his own sanguine expectations in restraining Rev. Mr. Copeland, with his long beard and pearly-tinted scalp, was present to look after the interest of the ladies, and he will have a long distance to look, because the convention left the ladies a great way behind. C. J. Ryan, from the Ninth ward, who said little, but thought a great deal about the show, looked his gayest during the rampus. Senator Wiggins was also there in the glory of a Marseilles vest and with the honor of a speech tacked on to the fame of a clean cut shave. Hon. William Marrow too, rose to heights of eloquence from which he also dropped with the suddenness of a man who has to be told what he is talking about. Dave Mercer—well it was the house of David, and David was in every part of it. So was his pompadour. The noble order of Redman was represented, but not on the floor, by Redman perc, while Redman fil, too, aimed to follow in the footsteps of his sire. Five colored men warmed as many chairs, but the five colored men kept their mouths closed. Aesthete Lit tleffeld, from Saratoga, was radiant in the glory of a pansy blossom and a phenomenally curled mustache. Like Mr. Copeland he was o a ladies man. But it was a bad day the ladies. Bennet, whose prenomen is that of the celebrated Raleigh, long since deceased, didn't notice Marrow, whom he slugged some time ago, and Marrow didn't trouble himself to force a recognition. Marrow was struck upon being recognized by the chair, and bolts of lightning from that Jupiterian abode were everal times launched in his direction, rank Walters was lonely looking, outside side the rail, like a peri at the gates of Hades. Tom Brunner had a good deal on his mind. He had a good deal also on his tongue and succeeded in getting it off with considerable persistency. Judge Julia Scooley forced him-self inside the rail and interrupted Judge Brown when the latter was attempting to reclaim the convention from disgrace. The old gentleman tartly rebulied the pestiferous mortal, Major Clarkson shot him with a weighty injunction to take himself off, and the crowd jeered at the checky intermeddler, Little Bismark jumped into notoriety once and yelled to a delegate who was talking to the chair, "Lefe dat chairman alone," to the merriment of the crowd. Mike Ford, the re-publican brother of Pat Fork, stalked around hke a modern reproduction of Cooper's "Leather Stocking," while a host of others mixed in the mazy dance of button-holing until the sun shot in a dozen rays of tobacco smoke, which were too earthly to be allowed to leave the room. Then the delegates re-

Had there been interest enough in the prizes at stake, a blacksmith's anvil and ham-mer would hardly have controlled the gath-ering. Three different styles were adopted to nominate delegates and then sacrificed for other plans. Bruner, of the Eighth, denounced certain of these measures as schemes to ride through certain candidates, and his denunciation was as promptly repelled. Joe Southard charged Seventh ward delegates with not being men of honor, and one of the latter said in effect that no man could charge some of that delegation with lack of honor without having somebody to stand by him. This gentleman wanted a man in the board to represent Ambler place and vicinity. Prof. Bruner characterized the gathering with being as noisy as a base ball match, Judge Brown said if it could not transact its business peacefully it had better adjourn, ts business peacefully it had better adjourn, because he feared the people would adjourn it at the pells on Monday. Everybody seemed to agree with him, but the next minute everybody was again enjoying himself as most suited his inclination. This scoring was occasioned by what the judge character-terized as without a parallel under heaven, of voting for a candidate without a competitor. C. E. Goddnan allowed his name to go tor, C. F. Goodman allowed his name to go before the convention, but the first time it was mentioned, Colonel Marrow loudly yelled "rats." Colonel Marrow's assistance was not apparent in the making up of the non-partisan tacket. Coburn was first non-inated, losing only two votes in the convention. Every ward voting for him, made two or three fellows yell like Comanches. Even the Eighth ward voted for Coburn. The latter was not Mr. Brunner's choice. But Brunner voted for him for harmony. The delegates held a meeting in the afternoon and three out of the five present agreed upon Dr. Spaulding. Brunner headed the Spaulding ticket at the primaries. Dennis Lane had been nominated on it but had left it and made a ticket of his own in favor of Coburn.
But he got left at the polls and viewed the convention from a spectator's seat. Brunner's opposition to Coburn, however, was ineffective. Finally all the candicates at large were renominated be a vote tion. Every ward voting for him, made two didates at large were renominated be a vote centaining 2½ more ballots than were dele-grees in the convention. Somebody wanted to inquire into the matter, but the vote had been announced. The others were nomi-without much interest, though with a great deal of noise, and the delegates finally ad journed with as little enthusiasm as if each minute added to the prophecy of success for the non-partisan ticket, The Proceedings.

Dave Mercer rapped the convention to order promptly at 8 o'clock and gave out the notification that the object of the gathering was to name eight members for the board of nduction. He advised his heavers to go slow and use judgment in the selection of men, and therefore eradicate the impression that had gone out that the republican party was a machine affair.

Judge Anderson nominated George M. O'Brien for temporary chairman and W. W. Keysor secretary. They were afterward made the permanent officers.

Joseph Sutherland informed the chair that a number of the delegates were absent, and moved that the delegation from each ward east the number of votes their wards were entitled to. Only one protest was made to board of education, the five receiving the highest votes to serve for the long term and the three lowest for the short term. Delegates from the various wards were on being made that there were evidences of a cut and dried affair. Cries of "We want a whack at the school board ourselves this year, and don't want one or two wards to have them all" went up thick and fast.

Days Morros rose to defend his Dave Merrer rose to defend his notion, amid yells of "ques tion" and "sit down," and abused those who motion, ami did not agree with him by referring to them as "would be orators." He finally sat down, withdrawing his motion at the same time Mr. Copeland secored the attention of the convention and read the communication from the woman suffragists, which had been presented to the other convention.

Mr. Copeland championed the request of the women and said it should be granted. They take part in the school board elections, and it is only fair that they should be represented on the ticket. These ladies, Mr Copeland said, are all republicans, and it was due in a measure to their efforts that the re-publican ticket was successful last year. A delegate moved that the communication be laid on the table, and this was amended by Mr. Southard that it be laid there tempor-Copeland warmly took exceptions to this movement, declaring that his expressed ideas had been seconded by delegates from his ward, and he thought the proceedure an outrageous one. The commu-nication was finally thiled. . Mr. Brunner precipitated the convention into chaos when he arose and moved that the convention proceed to name the candidates one by one, the first three being nominated to serve for the short term and the other five to serve from the city at large for the long term. By those means he thought good men could be selected; men who could be elected Dave Mercer and other delegates com batted the motion, which was finally twisted around and adopted so that the first five named be the candidates at large.

Balloting was then commenced amidst much disorder and William Coburn, of the Eighth ward, was the first man mentioned. He was nominated by a vote of 60 to 3. After ratifying the nomination of Mr. Coburn every delegate in the room was on his feet and howled for recognition. Bedlam had broken loose and the president was at sea under an avalanche of motions. In the midst of this storm nominations poured in midst of this storm nominations poured in thick and fast, and the following were named: M. S. Lindsay, Ninth ward; John C. Thompson, Seventh; Stephen J. Broderick, Second: F. R. McConnell, Fourth; Charles F. Goodman, First; Charles Wehrer, Third; Edward C. Cone, Sixth; John G. Willis, Sixth.

A hallot being taken on Mr. McConnell's

A ballot being taken on Mr. McConnell's name, he received the full sixty votes of the convention and was nominated. Mr. Southard kicked up a row when he Mr. Southard kicked up a row when he asked that the rules be suspended and the nomination of Mr. Cone be made unanimous. He paid a compliment to Mr. Cone, whom he described as "an honorable young man, a proud young man and a married young man, whose house was swept away by a prairie fire A number of delegates were opposed to the Southard metion and intimated that the convention was straying away from business principles. Mr. George F. Brown also feelingly scored the gentlemen for their noisy and childish conduct, which he regretted very much, and expressed fears that if they did not mend their ways the republicans would be snowed under next Monday. Mr.

Southard insisted upon his motion, which was finally voted down. Mr. Brunner moved that the chair appoint two tellers and that the convention proceed to select the candidates from those receiving the highest number of votes over a majority be declared the nominees. This was carried and the follow-ing candidates were voted upon. While the vote was being polled a substitute motion that three candidates be selected at a time was carried. The choices on the first ballot were: William R. Kelley, First ward, 42 votes; Stephen J. Broderick, Second ward, 42; Edward Cone, Sixth Ward, 44. Their nominations were made unanimous, and a delegate arose and moved that the communication from the suffrage association be taken from the table and acted upon. Mr. Southard wanted it to remain where it was, as he had it from able legal gentlemen that the electing of women to the school board was unconstitutional, but he would not force his wishes, but was willing that the convention should vote upon it. The convention voted to admit the communication, and Mr. Cope land thought that the constitution did not in terfere with ladies serving on the board, and in his opinion it would be a good stroke of po-on the ticket.

Mr. Copeland moved that two ladies be named to be nominated by the convention, and an amendment to this that any number the members may desire be named was carried. This action made a delegate very warm under the collar, and he gave it as his honest under the collar, and he gave it as his honest belief that a woman's place was at home, see-ing that her house was kept in order and her children properly cared for, and not gallop-ing around with the school board.

The convention then settled down to bal-loting again, and upon the call of nominees the names of Mrs. Alma E. Keith, Mrs. Dinsmore and Mrs. Dr. Eleanor S. Daley were mentioned. Following was the result: Charles Wehrer, Third ward, 34 votes: Dr. Charles Wehrer, Third ward, 34 votes; Dr. S. K. Spaulding, Eighth, 47; John Thompson, 60.

Mrs. Keith received three votes, Mrs. Daley seven, and Mrs. Dinsmore three. On motion Mr. Thompson was chosen to fill the unexpired term of Mr. McClure in the school board, after which the convention adjourned Immediately after the central city committee went into secret session to provide ways and means for conducting the election on Monday.

A Meat Peddler Disappears. G. B. Bouck, proprietor of the Chicago meat market, is anxiously looking for the driver of his delivery wagon. The missing man is George Beiner, about twenty-two years of age. Bemer started out with a load of meat to deliver to customers and a bundle of accounts (about $250) to collect, but did not return. Bemer had been drinking of late and was frequently accompanied by a young fellow of his neighborhood named Worthing. The horses were ponies, one gray and the other sorrel and the other sorrel.

MORTUARY.

C. C. THRANE. Ex-Councilman C. C. Thrane died about o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home near Tenth and Center stfeets. His sickness only developed on the Wednesday preceding and his ailment is thought to have been in flammation of the liver. Deceased was about fifty-six years old and leaves a wife one son and three daughters. The children are adults. Mr. Thrane was a native of Denmark, and a shoemaker by trade. He came to America about twenty-three years ago and to Omaba four or five years later. ago and to Omaha four or five years later.

He was a prominent Dane, having been president of the Danish society here for years. He was elected to the council four years ago, serving one term, and made a very good record. He was very generally respected, not only among his own nationality, but by all classes. Last year he was one of the inspectors of severa

Fire and Police Commission. At the regular meeting of the board of fire and police commissioners last evening Chief of Police Seavey asked for two more policemen. The request was referred to the com mittee on men and discipline. He also complained that the patrol horses were not properly treated by the city veterinary sur-geon, and the committee on property were directed to investigate the matter. In reply to the complaints that policemen used their club too freely in making arrests the chief defended his men and cited a number of cases in which officers had to defend themselves from assault. James Cormack, driver of No. 6 hose cart. James Cormack, driver of No. 6 nose cart, was fined five day's pay for fast driving. Joseph White, a pipeman who had been suspended for being drunk and committing a nuisance, was discharged.

one of the inspectors of sewers

Chief Seavey's action in retaining Officer C. J. Gregg, who had technically violated the rules by leaving his beat, was approved. An Insane Minister.

The following dispatch was turned over to Chief Seavey yesterday, and explains itself, Yankton, Dak., June 2.—General Dennis, Omaha: Rev. Mr. Bohn left yesterday, Supposed crazy. Think he has gone to Omaha. Look out for him. Telegraph if GEORGE H. HAND.
