Lincoln Bureau of The Omaha Bee, 1029 P Street, Lincoln, June 5. At the meeting of the board of education last night the finance committee handed in the report of S. L. Geisthardt, who had been employed to investigate and give a legal opin upon the liability of L. Helmer and D B. Cropsey for certain excessive commissions collected by them eight or ten years ago while they were respectively county treasurers of Lancaster county and city treasurer of Lincoln. The commissions seemed to have been charged under a misap prehension in regard to the law, the sam commissions being charged for collecting school taxes as other taxes, while in Cact the statutes limit the amount of commission on the collection of School taxes to 1 per cent. The attorney Reports that he finds no authority of law for any such charge and no record of any agreement with the board for the payment of any commission, and that further if any such an agreement had been made it would be null and void. The board instructed the secretary to notify the two gentlemen to appear at the first meeting in July and show by what authorit they collected the commissions and upon fall ure to do so to turn back into the treasury the amount of excessive commissions charged ored churches in the city appeared before the board on behalf of the colored citizens of Lincoln to ask that his race be represented among the teachers in the public schools. they should be compelled to occupy menia positions regardless of their fitness for better He was instructed to have one of his race who desire a position to hand in his ap plication in regular form. The teachers' pay roll, amounting to $4,100 was allowed, with smaller claims and bills.

The receipts in May from water rents were $4,556.84, and from the sale and setting of cross stops $445. The commissioner re-ported that sixty of the farive wells of the water system have been inspected to date and that twenty-seven of them are producing salt water. out to-day as a result of the action of the builders' association in trying to enforce a schedule of wages agreed upon by them. The most objectionable feature of this schedule seems to be the abolition of the rule which has always been in force of paying nine hours wages on Saturday for eight hours work. The contractors say that they can see no reason for paying for more work than the men do and one of the strikers very pertinently suggests that if the contractor, on the school building for instance, will turn over to the school board the amount which he would save in this way, that the bricklayers will go to work again. The intimation being, of course, that when the bid were made it was on the basis of the old sys tem of wages and that the benefit of the change would all accrue to the contractors.

night to carry a party out to Cut Off lake where a celebration was to have occurred and while waiting for the party to get ready amused themselves for an hour or so by form ing in line and making a round of the principal streets in the fashion of a procession. SOUTH OMAHA NEWS. To Light the City.

Monday night an ordinrace was sprung on the council asking that the South Omaha electric light company be granted an exclusive franchise for twenty years. It did not state the nature of the lights to be used, or the price they would cost, only that they would charge no more than in North Omaha In Omaha a single arc light costs $15 per month, and as the city would require about thirty of them, the bill would be a steep one. Of course a reduction might be made where so many would be used, but the ordinance did not say so, and probably the directors would not say so either. The company is one and has some good men in it, but that is no reason why an ordinance should be rushed through without being fully discussed. The company offers o put up a bond of $5,000 as a guarantee of good faith, and want an "exclusive fran-chise" for twenty years. The old council refused to take a $25,000 bond from a gas ompany that asked for no franchise at all but only wanted the privilege of putting down their pipes and of erecting the neces sary plant within the limits of South Omaha electric light ordinance has been re ferred to the ordinance committee and will no doubt be modified. City Council.

The city council met Monday night and

Clerk Hoctor called the roll and read the minutes. The committee on streets and alleys reported favorably on the paving of N street, and the matter was referred to the city attorney with instructions to draft the necessary ordinance. The finance committee reported favorably on a number of bills, and recommended that they should be placed on file. They were placed. Then an ordinance was read to provide the money necessary to defray the expenses of the city for the coming year. It called for $72,000, as already re ported in the BEE. Councilman Smith sug gested that outside figures be named in the ordinance, as, while it was possible that heir estimate might be cut down, it would be impossible to increase them after the ordinance was once passed. Accordingly the item for fire plugs was advanced from $1,000 to $2,000, and the ordinance was put on its third and final reading. It passed. Then came an ordinance asking that a twenty years' exclusive franchise be granted to a slectric light company to permit them to ight the city. Councilmen O'Rourke and Burke put in a strong protest, and they put it in a strong way. Councilman McMillan spoke on the other side, and said it was a home company and ought to be encouraged, but he said he was not in favor of giving an exclusive franchise. Councilman aid that if any one had a right it should be the home company, and waited to know what they had against them. Councilman Bayliss spoke in the same strain, and then the ordinance was referred to the ordinance committee. Another ordinance, No. 63, regulating auctioneers, pediers and others in that line, was read for the first time, and led to a lively debate, of which mention is made else where. It was finally laid where it should be-on the table. Councilman Feuno a for further time on the question of the being allowed the use of the stock vard sewer, as Mr. Boyd was unable to give answer until the stock yards committee had met. McMillan, Smith, Bayliss and Rafferty said that Mr. Her was willing to call a special meeting at any time to meet the council. The probabilities are they will be called and will meet.
