THE CANDIDATES.

Grover Cleveland, the Nominee For President.

Stephen Grever Cleveland was born at Caldwell, an obscure New Jersey town, in 1838. His father was a Presbyterian minister. The family made several removals to New York towns, and were at Holland Patent, fifteen miles north of Utica, when the father died. As a boy Grover "tended" store and taught school, but he tired of the latter and started out to make his fortune. His first idea was to go to Cleveland, but an uncle, a noted stock breeder at Buffalo, persuaded him to stop there and compile a herd book, telling him he could "look round." book, telling him he could how round.

He decided to be a lawyor, and was given a place by Rogers, Bowen & Rogers as office boy. At the end of four years he was made managing clerk. In 1863, through the influence of those in the office, he was fapointed assistant alternative. sistant district attorney. He was drafted while in this office, but sent a substitute. In 1865 he ran for district attorney on the demo cratic ticket, but was defeated. He then entered upon the practice of law and had various par ners at different times when not in office. He was elected sheriff of Evic county in 1869. His election as mayor of Buffalo in 1881 on a democratic reform ticket gave him a state prominence, and the tidal wave of 1882 swept him into the governor's chair by a majority of 198 854. chair by a majority of 192,854.

Allen G. Thurman.

Allen G. Thurman was born of revolution ary stock at Lynchburg, Va., in 1813. The family moved to Ohio when he was six years old. He had only a grammar school education, but took up law as a calling. He was nominated for the Twenty-ninth congress against his protest, and overcame the 600 re publican majority in his district. He was put on the judiciary committee of the house and became distinguished as a great lawyer. He declined re-election at the close of his term and retired, as he thought, to private life for good and all. But in 1831, when the new constitution of Ohio was adopted, he was pressed into the race for a supreme court judgeship and was elected, lending the ticket by over 2,000 votes. He sat upon the bench four years, the last two years serving as chief justice. In 1867, after a season of rest, he was nominated for governor against Rutherford B. Hayes. The republican majority the year before had been 43,000, but Thurman was defeated by only 3,000. The democrats captured the legislature and Judge Thurman was elected to the United States senate in 1869 in the place of Ben Wade. He became the leader of his party in the senate, and a re-election kept him there until 1881. He then decided to retire from public life, but judgeship and was elected, lending the ticket then decided to retire from public life, but within a week President Gardeld appointed him a delegate to the international congress to be held that year at Paris to consider the silver question. Having had a desire to visit Europe, he improved this opportunity and made an extended trip. Since then he has has been in private life, practicing law. His candidacy for the presidential nomination in 1884 is fresh in mind.

Senator Thurman is one of the most thorough scholars in public life in this country. Always a student, he became early in life great lawyer, and since then has devoted much time to lighter study. He is a fine much time to lighter study. He is a fine French scholar, and his favorite books are the works of the earlier French dramatists, which he reads in the original. He has an unusually large and well selected library, and there are few books in the range of polite literature that he is not familiar with. He has a genious for mathematics, and frequently occupies himself in working out the most ab struse and intricate problems. He says that he is prouder of his knowledge of mathe maties than he is of anything else.

PRESS COMMENTS.

The New York Sun Ridicules the Platform.

New York, June 7,-The Sun will say: "In respect of its contents the St. Louis platform evinces the benefit resulting from the watchful chastening, which we have continually best wed upon the free-traders of all ranks in congress and out. As a matter of composition it is a clumsy and incongruous bicce of work, and as for principles the whole of it is contained in the first twelve lines. The convention and Mr. Cleveland have allike put their love of free trade out to roost and may its sleep be successful and undisturbed. It might have been made a good deal clearer, but we guess the thing will work."

The Governor Fails to See Any Special Strength in Thurman. asm-Other State News.

Conumbus, O., June 7 .- In an interview rith Governor Foraker relative to the omination of Thurman he says: "I don't think his nomination will add any strength to the democratic ticket in this state, and I don't know why it should in any state. He never was any stronger than his party, in fact not quite so strong. The only time since the war that he has been a candidate before the people was when Hayes defeated him for the governorship in 1867. He then ran behind his ticket. He never had any special strength, and at this time he has less than ever before.

FIFTIETH CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, June 7 .- In the senate Mr. Morgan asked leave to offer a preamble and resolutions setting forth that the report of the committee on foreign relations on the fisheries treaty questioned its legality and declaring it valid and lawful.

Mr. Vance moved to refer it to the committee on foreign relations. Mr. Sherman objected to this introduction

Mr. Morgan demanded the right to speak on the motion to refer.

The chair held he could not be permitted to speak until unanimous consent for the intro-duction of the resolutions was given. Despite the ruling of the chair agains Mr. Morgan maintained his ground and read the address delivered by him the subject in executive session. One the sentences of the speech was: The senate may make war necessary, as I am very much afraid we are doing here to-day." The action of the representative senate, he said, was doubtless with a view of exciting the antagonism of the Irish voters to the president because of his alleged subserving to British influences. That charge, ranked with the injustice of congress, h said, had given the president the power which all the presidents possessed since 1850, to wage a paper war on British commerce. If the president had pushed it to the point of real war the country would have cried out for his impeachment, but having failed to do so be was charged in the report of the majority of the committee on foreign relations with usurpation and abuse of the

The Murder of Farmer Hull. CULBERTSON, Neb., June 7 .- [Special to THE BEE.]-The murder of farmer Hull by the Hunters was the most cold-blooded and most atrocious crime ever committed in this section of the state. The Hunters-Gallant V. Hunter and his son John-have always been regarded as bad characters and they have succeeded in terrorizing the people here to such an extent that they have been in everything that they have attempted to do. The old man Hunter, it is said, was a member of the infamous Quantrell gang of cut-throats that infested Missouri during the days of the rebellion and it appears that his life since has been stained by the blood of his fellow man. John Hunter has been en-gaged in the hardware business here for several years but has not met with any success owing, no doubt, to the well known disposition of the Hunters. Mr. Hull, the murdered man, lived about two miles east of town on a farm ad-joining one owned by the Hunters. Hunter seemed to take particular pains to annoy his neighbor in divers ways more particularly by permitting his cattle to run at large on his grain fields to the serious damage of Mr. Hull. Hull finally took a mule belonging to Hunter and held him for damages. It was over the demand for the return of the mule that the shooting took place. At the coroner's inquest and at the preliminary hearing the following facts relative to the shooting were developed: Mr. Hull was in Manwarren's billiard hall between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock a.m. on the 5th of June, talking with Mr. Manwarren, the proprietor of the estab-lishment, when John Hunter came in and de-manded that Hull give up the mule. Mr. Hull wanted to know whether he (John) rep-resented his father in the matter and if not e did not want him to monkey with him. After a short conversation, during which Hull stated that they could have the mule by Hull stated that they could have the mule by paying the damages, John Hunter left the room. The witnesses stated that after fifteen minutes after this the old man Hunter and John were seen coming across the street and when they reached the billiard hall stepped in, while John remained on the outside. The old man then stepped up to Mr. Hull and said: "Do you want anybody to monkey with you."

you want anybody to monkey with you."
Mr. Hull replied: "No, sir; I don't know as I do." Hunter then said, "Well by —, I heard that you did, and if you do I can monkey with you," and at the same time said that he could whip him (Hull). Hull replied that if they wanted to they could. Hunter then asked Hull to lay down the billiard cue which he held in his hand. Hull refused to do this whereupon Hunter started, in the di-rection of the cue rack estensibly for the purpose of arming himself with a cue. Hull fol-lowed him up and just as Hunter reached for a cue Hall struck Hunter on the head with the cue in his hand. At this juncture, says a witness, John rushed into the ran up to his father him by the shoulder at the and and grabbed him by the shoulder at the same time saying "Look out old man," and instantly fired two shots with a revolver at Hull, the muzzle of the weapon being within six or eight inches of his victim's head. first shot passed through the rim of Hull's hat and lodged in the ceiling overhead, the second ball entering the head a little above and back of the right car. Hull dropped to the floor and expired within twenty minutes. The Hunters walked deliberately out of the hall, across the way and into their hardware store, where they were shortly after taken into custody by the sheriff of the county, excitement continues intense. Hunter has been taken to the Lancaster county jail where he will await his trial in Fovember. The old man, by many, is con-

They Floped.

LOUISVILLE, June 7.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—Society is stirred up over the elopement of one of its gayest and prettiest girls with John Murphy, the twenty-oneyear-old son of Francis Murphy, the noted emperance advocate. The lady is Miss Lucy Richardson, the second daughter of Mr. Lawrence Richardson, president of the old Kentucky woolen mills, one of Louisville's wealthiest citizens. She is nineteen years old, and has been acquainted with Murphy but a month. When Papa Richardson heard of the escapade he had the young folks come home, get married once again by the pastor of his church and sent them east yesterday on a wedding trip. Francis Murphy was angry. He was opposed to the mairiage because the young man is in no settled business.
