CRICAGO, June 12.—[Special Telegram to THE BRE.]—Morton's lucky star continued e shine to-day. A comfortable lead gave the Maroons confidence, and in the eighth they completely demolished Burdick's curves, hammering out six runs, five of them earned. A wise change had been made in the batting order, Long heading it, with Hanrahan moved from the foot of the list up to second place, and Hengle dropping from the head down to sixth place. Long went to bat five times, made three hits, took his base on balls once, and once reached first on being hit with a pitched ball. Manager Morton changed his mind about pitching left-handed Sprague, preferring to hold him in reserve for the left-handed sluggers who will be here from Des Moines. Coughlin went into the box and did good work. The score: CHICAGO.

Fr. Paul, Minn., June 12.- Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-The home team took another game from Des Moines to-day through the visitors' inability to find the ball when it would count. Both pitchers did ef fective work but Des Moines' errors proved the more costly. St. Paul scored two in the first inning after two men were out on Earle's single and Kingo's long drive over the left field fence. In the third Sowder's single and errors by McCullar and Stearns fiiled the bases. Smith then gave Ringo five bad balls forcing Sowders across the plate and Veach's sacrifice allowed Carrol to score. The side was retired with two men on bases. One more was made in the fifth on a single by Murphy, a steal and Vandyke's muff of Earle's long hit to left. Des Moines scored one in the first inning on Quinn's single, a steal and two outs, and one in the second on a base on balls to Traffley, a single by Smith and Hol-liday's sacrifice. Senate. WASHINGTON, June 12 .- Mr. Chandler of ered a resolution referring the credentials of Sonator Gibson of Louisiana (for his new term) to the committee on privileges and elections, and instructing the committee to nauire into all the facts and report whether or notant the recent state election in Louisiana, which included the election of the state legislature, the 136,746 votes returned for the candidate for the dominant party for governor were actually east, in view of the fact that at the previous election had the votes for the candidates of such party exceeded 88 740, and why in the parish of Madison 3,500 votes were cast for one party and none for the other; in east Fleciana 2,276 to 5; in Morehouse 1,584 to 14; in Ouchatia 2,994 to 5; in Sabine 1,441 to 2; in Tensas 4,627 to 113. Also, to ascertain whether or no at such election there was violence, intimidation or fraud that prevented fair election, and whether false returns were made and counted. In case the committee shall conclude there were frauds and false returns, then the committee is instructed to inquire and report whether the legislature was actually elected by the people of Louislana, or was solely the creation of the returning officers, and whether the state of Louisians had, on the day of Senator Gibson's election, a republi-can form of government, including a legisla-ture entitled to choose United States senators. The resolution was laid over until tomorrow.

The resolution of yesterday by W. V. Stewart, calling on the secretary of the treasury for a statement of offers and purchases of bonds since 1888, with the names, etc., was taken up.
Mr. Cockrell moved to amend by striking out the names. Mr. Stewart argued against the amend-ment and expressed the belief that some per-sons had a secret advantage in the matter, and he wanted to know who these "secret partners of the government" were. He said ne people had the right to know with whom the government was dealing. Mr. Beck said no good could come of publishing the names because men would be de-terred from making offers in their own names and would have recourse to breakers, thus adding to the cost.

Mr. Stewart said he wanted to know whether there existed a "money trust" with the government.

Mr. Cockrell medified his amendments so Mr. Cockrell medified his amendments so as (after "names") to insert the words "other than private persons."

Mr. Cockrell—The information which the resolution calls for is jublished in the newspapers every day. It is nothing but morbid curiosity that would ask for the publication of the names. It seems that the whole object of the resolution is to bring hefers the ect of the resolution is to bring before the bondholders the names and address of the great corporations and trusts that are offering bonds to the government so that indivi-quals may send their bonds to them. This resolution is not in the interest of the honest people of the country who have small amounts of bonds to offer to the government. Mr. Call argued the resolution was a relection on the high character of the secre tary of the treasury,

Mr. Gorman moved the reference of the resolution to the committee on finance.

The resolution went over without action till to-morrow.

The appropriation bill for the department of agriculture was reported from the committee on appropriations and placed on the On motion of Mr. Cullom the bill to amend the inter-state commerce law was taken up and Mr. Cullom addressed the senate in advocacy of it. The passage of that act, he said, marked a new era in the management of the railroad business of the United States. One of the immediate effects of the law had One of the immediate effects of the law had been the abandonment of all pools by car-riers, but the associations through which pooling had been carried on had been re-organized and continued under various memberships, not to carry, but their objects were such as making regulations for the inter change of traffic, the arrangement of classi-fications, the making of joint rates and numerous other matters of detail. The existing traffic associations still managed to control traffic on certain important traffic as arbitrarily as in the old pooling system. Cases were pending before the commission which involved these questions, and which might result in breaking up the arbitrary control still exercised by trunk lines over control still exercised by trunk lines over certain important classes of traffic. If they did not it would be necessary for congress to strengthen the pooling session so as to prohibit combinations among carriers to control traffic. Another noticable effect of the law had been the immediate termination of a vast number of special freight contracts under which rebates and drawbacks had been paid favored shippers. Prominent among the evils complained of before the passage of the inter-state commerce act had been the secret cutting of rates, sudden fluctuation of rate and prevailing system of special These evils had not yet been entirely abol ished but the changes which the law had wrought in the matter of secret cutting of rates were very noteworthy and exceedingly satisfactory to business men, manufacturers and indeed to all shippers.

In the transportation of passengers the law had already effected some important reforms and had almost completely done away with the evils formerly complained of. Many railroads had discontinued giving passes en tirely, although most of them, issued passes good for transportation within a single state. This practice afforded many opportunities of evading the prohibitions of the inter-state act and the evil could not be effectively deal with until state legislatures prohibited the giving of passes good within their respective Two cases of discrimination against the colored people in the south had been brought before the commissioners and they decided that the accommodations furnished were unsatisfactory and treated colored persons un In speaking of the cases brought by George

Rice against various southern railroads based on the discriminations against him and in favor of the Standard oil company, Mr. Cullom said: The testimony in these cases showed beyond dispute that the defendant railroads had persistently discriminated against Rice in every imaginable way. These cases demonstrated the shameless subserviency of the railroads involved to the con-taminating influence of the most unscrupulous "combine" of the present day—the gi-gantic Standard oil trust. Prior to April, 1887, the smaller towns and cities were being gradually crushed out by reason of the favoritism shown to "commercial centers" and "competing points."
When the law took effect most of the carriers revolutionized their practice in this respect and framed their tariffs in accordance with the short haul principle. Large sections of the country had been favorably affected by the operations of this section and had received lower rates than ever before This was especially true of western Illinois Wisconsin, southern Minnesota, western lowa and Missouri, eastern Nebraska and Kansas, northern Verment and New York, Michigan, Mississippi and many other sec

He posed to be affected by the amendments. said they had been suggested by the difficul-ties encountered in securing thorough en-forcement of the law and were intended to strengthen it and bring about a more strict observance of its requirements. One of them was to require three days notice of a reduction of rates. This would tessen the operation of evading the law by giving favored shippers secret notice of intended reductions and would result in a greater stability of rates. Another amendment proposed to extend the penalty for unlawful discriminations to laprisonments as well as to fines. Another amendment was directed against the practice known as underbilling, by which goods which should come under one classification were chieved under a lower classification. Petitions and memorials from many points against this evil had been sent to the senate and referred to the committee on inter-state commercial, one coming from New York-busidess and who were selling over $250,000,000 worth of goods annually.

In conclusion Mr. Culton said: Cheap In conclusion Mr. Cullom said: Cheap transportation and equality of rights in Es enjoyment are the two great demands of the times, and the nation will fall of its duty if it does gat do all it can to secure both to the people. The best possible conditions must surround our internal commerce and we must give the people the best possible advantages. possible advantages, whenever we can, in reaching whatever market may be open to them in any of the nations. The constitution imposes the duty upon us as a congress of regulating commerce among the several states and with foreign nations. Let us do states and with foreign nations. Let us do both in the interest of the people without foar or favor, fearing not to do right by all, whether engaged in one pursuit or another and favoring none, whether clothed with corporate power or in the common walks of life. Equality of rights is the watchward of this country and tamples as well to become the property and tamples as well to be the people of the second of the property and tamples as well to be the people of rights is the watchword of this country and it applies as well to business transactions as the right to be free or the right to vote.

JOHN WALSH AND HIS MISSION

The Irishman Relates His Troubles With the Detectives.

DENIES HE IS A CONSPIRATOR.

Startling Rumors Concerning the Plot

Which He is Reported to Have Been Sent to Carry Out,

But Failed.

A Talk With Walsh. New York, June 12.—|Special Telegram to The Bee.]—John Walsh, who is called one of the boldest, clearest-headed men in the Clan-na-Gael, and who just arrived from Europe, said to a reporter to-day when spoken to about the alleged scheme to murder Secretary Balfour: "I had been in Omaha to get work, for I am a laboring man. Not being successful, I went to Antwerp. I wrote to a man in England who owed me money to come over and settle, and he did I went to Paris, but had not been in the city a day when detectives were so thick around me that they almost ran over each other McKenna I never knew before, bu I met him on the train one day and we were often together because he spoke English. One day a detective brought me a letter overwhelming majority, and great rejoicing from the prefecture of police commanding me to call on him next day. I went and was asked the reason for my being in Paris. I gave it, and when the prefect told me I could go one of the men blurted out in English; You are a liar, Walsh, for you are a conspirator. You came over here to kill Secretary Balfour and you have failed. I have been sent here to tell it to your teeth. We wrangled a while and he asked me some questions which I refused to answer because he called me a liar. When I went to Hayre I was followed by detectives, who staid on the staircase until I sailed." Walsh did not say what he proposes to do now, and claims not to know where Mc-Kenna is. Walsh's return and the failure of the mission that many expected of him has set the Clan-na-Gael all agog. Certain mem bers of the society declare that Walsh did not go to England to kill Balfour but they refuse to say what he wen for. There are intimations that the journey was in some way connected with the liber ating of Dr. Gallagher, now serving a life sentence. There are some who say that the failure on Walsh's part to carry out the mission, whatever it may have been, will mean the disruption of the Clan-na-Gael in this country. This is the third time in two years that such missions have failed. It is said there is treachery within the order years that such missions have latted. It is said there is treachery within the order, and it is probable that an investigation will be made. Since 1882 a factional fight has been going on, and with all the money collected there has been but one success. That was the rescue of the prisoners at Freemouth, Australia, in 1865. It is now said that such missions are no longer possible, as the British government keeps all men under surveillance. Walsh is about the
