Miss Carlotta E. Crawford, daugnter of Judge Crawford, of West Point, read an essay on "Conscience as Depicted by Shakespeare." It was a clear, simple study of this impor-tant feature of the characterizations of the great dramatist, illustrations being drawn from the characters of Macbeth, Lady Mac-beth, Othello, the King and Queen in "Ham-let," Othello and Brutus. The effort closed with a tribute to the genius of the poet, as evinced by the wondeful superhuman work, in its analyses of the most com-plex characters which had stood the test of hree hundred years. The twenty-fourth annual commencement exercises of Brownell Hall took place yesterday in the study room of the institution. On the stage were Bishop Worthington, Colonel C. S. Chase and Canon Deherty, rector of the institution. The young ladies occupied the front seats of the apartment. They were attired in white, each with a beautiful bouquet of cut flowers. A large number of the parents of the children and friends of the institution occupied chairs in the rear of the hill. The edge of the stage was beautifled by a collection of baskets of flowers and immediately in front sat the graduates, as beautiful a class as ever graduated.

young ladies.

in A flat in a very pleasant manner.

Miss Minnie Comfort, of Logan, Ia., essayed on "For Every III Under the Sun
There is a Romedy, or There is None." She spoke of the envy of Cassius, who could not bear to know of a greater man as an evidence of his not being disposed to profit by the remedy, so simply expressed by Mother Goose's philosophy. Scott was an excellent example of the different kind of man who. when he found he was not able to equal Byron in poesy turned his attention to prose and made himself a world-wide reputation.

"Rise Again, Glad Summer," was well sung by Misses Brandt, Thorpe, Gamble, Tishue, Holloway and Bradt.
Miss Belle Buckworth, daughter of Dr.
Buckworth, of North Platte, read an essay on "Superstition." It started out with the on "Superstition." It started out with the assortion which the assayist scouted that young ladies' boarding institutions were nurseries of superstition. These institutions were not homes for imbeciles and as supersti-tion went hand in hand with ignorance, the origin of superstition would have to be looked for without their walls. She attributed superstition in the first place to foolish nurses who poured goblin stories into children's ears. Young men and women, too, practiced it when they consulted the seventh daughter of the gypsy. Egypt had been full of it. Greece, too, with all its learning was addicted to it, the hawk, the buzzard, the swallow and screent being considered un-fortunate. The essayist then detailed the superstition of the Romans, the Chinese, the Scotch, English, and even that of the habi-tues of Wall street. The effort was forefoly delivered, showing that the writer was more than ordinarily interested in the views to which she gave expression. Miss M. Comfort rendered "Danse des Fees" on the piano with great success.

"Class" Prophecy" was the subject of Miss Loola Carter, of Omaha. It was admirably written, and characterized by a vein of humor that was perfectly delightful. It contained a number of happy hits, being ostensibly a forecast of the futures of her associates in the graduating class. So well were the pe-culiarities of each noted that the audience was kept in either smiling or laughing mood throughout.
Miss M. Crawford of West Point, played

La Fileuse.

drawing the conclusion that literature was ne greatest benefactor to mankind in that it served to keep alive its faculties. The essay were beautifully written and with an artistic appreciation of the subject.

Miss M. Brandt sang "To Sevilla," by Dessoner.

"Total Depravity of Inanimate Objects" was discussed by Miss Ethel Davenport, of Nebraska City, with considerable originality, the discussion comprehending a knowledge of the important positions given in past ages and retained to the present time by mani-

"La Fileuse."
Miss Lucy Burgess, of Plattsmouth, spoke upon "Pen, Pencil and Chisel." This was 2 beautiful discussion of the subject, involving a reference to the art of other times and Miss L. Burgess played Chopin's Polonaise, Op. 26 No. 1. "The Valedictory" was delivered by Miss Mary Crawford, of West Point. It consid-ered the various kinds of soil, the necessity of the soil to raise appropriate products. She showed the effects of climate upon soil, products, persons and even on the work of literary people. This, together with the opportunities of individuals she showed in the cases of a number of litterateurs, among them Dryden and Mrs. Stowe. them Dryden and Mrs. Stowe.

The duty of valedictorian was very sympathetically performed. The farewell to the bishop, to the rector whose genial influence had so often made sunshine in the hall; to the ladies of the faculty who had borne patiently with them in all their annoyances and aided them in all their pleasures, was feelingly delivered; but, when the young lady bade her farewell to her associates in the class of '88, it was only with difficulty that she suppressed the falling tears which were glistening in her eyes. Many of Miss Crawford's classmates were similarly af-The graduating class consists of the fol-owing young ladies: Misses Carlotta E. and May Crawford, of West Point; Miss Minnie-Comfort, of Logan, Ia.; Miss Belle Buckworth, of North Platte; Miss Leola Carter, Omaha; Miss Lucy Burgess, Platts-mouth, and Miss Ethel Davenport, Nebraska City. This young lady is a Nebraska pro-duct, having been born and reared within the state. Her scholarly attainments are a proof that Brownell hall is not behind the proof that Brownell hall is not behind the schools of our neighboring states in their educational resources, and should be liberally patronized by the citizens of Nebraska. Bishop Worthington then conferred diplomas upon the young ladies.

The future of these young ladies, as told by Miss Carter, is as follows: Miss Comfort is to be an advecate of female suffrage, tem-perance and dress reform; first woman presi-dent of the United States, when she will retire to a peaceful village with the conviction that woman's place is not in charge of national affairs; Belle Buckworth will spend a life of penance inside a convent's walls; Ethel Davenport will enter the legal profession and paralyze the stenographers who at-tempt to "take" her; Lotta Crawford is to be a leader of fashionable society; Lulu Burgess will organize a society for the sup-pression of music, and end her life as a ranchman's wife; May Crawford will be-come an enthusiast on female base ball mat-ters; Miss Cartor herself will organize an association to prevent the abuse of boarding houses by the press.

The medals and prizes awarded were as follows:

COLLEGIATE MEDALS.

Worthington medal for art, Miss May Bradt; Woolworth medal, collegiate deportment, Carlotta E. Crawford; Doherty medal for deportment, Lucy Burgess; Meyer medal for music, Miss May Crawford; Barkalow medal for literature, Miss Louic Roe; Dinsparent May Deportment of the statement of the stat medal for literature, Miss Louie Roe; Dinsmore medal for physiology, Miss Ellzabeth Holloway; Woolworth prize, higher mathematics, Miss Bell Bucdworth; Chase prize for rhetoric, Miss Bessie Bowen; Patterson prize for composition, Mirauda Powers; Kountze prize for language, Miss Chara French; bishop's prize for sacred subjects, Miss Ethel Davenport; Yates prize for grammar, Miss Angelian Hansen; Yates prize for arithmetic, Miss Mand Parsons; Dundy prize for music, a ring, Miss Minine Comfort, PHEPARATORY.

Hawkins prize for grammar, Miss Abba Bowen; Hawkins prize for writing, Miss Alice Nelson; Windsor medal for scholarship, Miss M. W. Lewis.

Alice Nelson; Windsor medal for schdiarship, Miss M. W. Lewis.

Colonel C. S. Chase then read a letter from Mrs. F. Laininger Haller, a former student of the hall conating to the trustees of the same the beautiful oil painting styled. "The Last Communion of St. Jorome" spoken of yesterday in The Ber. with the hope that it might lead to the establishment of a gallery, where art might be studied in all its forms.

The donation was accepted by Canon Doherty in the name of the trustees and the speaker took occasion to pay a tribute to the generous donor.

Four young ladies then played an inspiring march upon two planos and specialors and students retired from the hall and the class of "28 had forever severed its connection with its alma mater."

The exercises from the opening to the close literary and musical were of superior merit and gave universal satisfaction.
