THE STEED BACK IN THE FARM. A Hitch in the Settlement of C. E.

Mayne's Affairs.

A few days ago it was announced in the city press that arrangements had been made by which it was thought C. E. Mayne would be enabled to extricate himself from the financial difficulties in which he had become involved. This announcement was based upon document which had been placed on record by E. H. Corbett. This was an admission on the part of Mayne of his indebtedness, in the following sums to the names given: George E. Barker, $20,000; C. H. Sloman, $5,800; E. H. Corbett, $5,500, and F. B. Johnson, $2,000. Corbett, it seems, purchased these claims at their face value and was empowered to utilize the collateral and with the proceeds of the same, within sixty days, to pay Mayne's indebtedness to the individuals in question. Corbett also agreed to pay $5,000 to G. E. Barker to be applied on a lean of $35,000, which was secured by a mortgage on the Platte Valley ranch in this county, said to contain about 1,100 acres and comprising a large amount of stock and improvements, 1 opresenting about $200,000. Another relause in the agreement was that Mayne was to pay in full and get released from record, a chattel mortgage given to Congressman Dorsey. The amount of this mortgage, it is claimed was about $31,000, though it is now understood that Mayne claims he received only $10,000 from Dorsey, and $5,000 of that amount he has already paid. This document was signed by Mayne and

Corbett, and at one place speaks of Corbett as a receiver for the former. It was dated May 1, though it was not filed until last Tues-day. This was considered somewhat strange, and led a Ber reporter to make inquiry as to why the instrument was not filed at the time of its adoption. Corbett said that it was not his intent to file the document at all until last Monday evening, when Mayne came into town, dis-playing a bill of sale of his stock at the ranch. But Corbett did not know in whose favor the bill was made. The bill in question startled the latter, and accordingly the docment above summarized was placed on rec-ord. Under it, Corbett said that he felt empowered to sell all the security and collateral guaranteeing Mayne's indebtedness, especially as the sale was satisfactory to all day of the present races. It had been extensively advertised as had also the sale of Mayne's ranch by means of special circulars, giving name, description, sire, and dam of about 125 stallions, brood mares and foals of 1885-86. These animals had been brought out to the fair grounds and there was present a large number of horse fanciers who were disposed to pay reasonable prices for stock. The sale did not commence till Wednesday afternoon, however. It had proceeded day afternoon, however. It had proceeded but a short time, three horses having been sold, when Mr. Mayne, and wife, with Captain Ashby and wife drove into the grounds and up to the auction stand and peremptorily forbade a longer continu-ance of the sale. Mayne stood in his carriage, and calling around him all who were interested in the purchases, told them that not another hoof would be sold, and di-rected the superintendent of his ranch, a man cangement. It disappointed the horsemen who had come to make purchases and confounded the creditors, some of whom looked for a speedy settlement of their claims. Mr. Mayne was yesterday sought for at his office, but had not returned from his ranch. His attorney, Mr. Cavanaugh, was also sought, but he too was not in his office.

In the absence of both these people, the only explanation which was offered for Mayne's conduct is that he does not consider pecially as the sale was satisfactory to all the interested parties, who thought that that would be the best means of getting the money which Mayne seemed disposed to pay them. This sale was to be conducted under the management of Mayne's attorney, who was satisfactory to all the creditors. The sale was announced for the first day of the present races. It had been extensively advertised as had also the sale named Linn, to take the animals back to the farm; there was plenty of grass for them to eat and to let them feed on it. This action on the part of Mayne was a surprise to everybody, especially when it was thought he was satisfied with the ar-

should go to satisfy all the creditors above enumerated as the stock is held as security by George E. Barker. The other creditors, it is said, are secured in other ways by notes, realty, land contracts and the like. WHY pay rent when you can buy a nice six-room house on easy payments? Consider! Preparing For the Visitors.

The republican club held a meeting last evening to make preparations for receiving the western delegates, who will arrive today. It was decided to engage the band for the occasion, and the offer of Chief Lucas to escort the reception committee to the depot and return was accepted. He also offered to perform the same service on Sunday after-noon when the club leaves for Chicago, but the offer was declined with thanks, as it has been decided to make no parade or display on that occasion, as it comes on Sunday. A grand parade will take place, however, on the return of the delegation.

A committee was appointed to confer with side scored again until the twefth, when the visitors succeeded in running in the winning succeeded by George Rudio, of the firm of Rudio & Sears, of the Manhattan. Under the new management the club is to be materially strengthened, and the places of the weak players will be fitled by men who know something about base ball, and will work to regain the place held by the club earlier in the season.
