

LOCATED IN NEW QUARTERS.

The New Home of the Merchants' National Bank a Palace.

The Merchants' National bank occupies today the finest building in the city. The corporation was organized in October, 1882, with the following officers: Frank Murphy, president; Samuel E. Rogers, vice president; Ben B. Wood, cashier, and Luther Drake assistant cashier. These officers, with John Conn, C. C. Housel and George W. Doane, constituted the board of directors. This same corps of officers and directors are its officers and directors to-day. When the bank was organized the capital stock was fixed at $100,000, but owing to a constant and rapid increase in the growth of the city and the banking business of the city and county it has been deemed advisable by the directors to increase the capital stock of the institution until now it stands in the front rank as one of the three banks of the state, having a paid-up capital of $500,000 and places it on an equal footing with the oldest bank in the city. During the five years and a half the bank has been doing business it has accumulated a surplus of $100,000 which is held in addition to the paid-up capital of $500,000.

When the bank was first organized it was located in the building on the northeast corner of Farnam and Thirteenth streets. About two years ago it became apparent to the directors of the institution that their apartments were not large enough in which to carry on their already large and growing business, and they began to arrange for the erection of their present building and elegant building which is now virtually completed and was occupied by the banking institution last Monday for the first time.

The new building is situated on the northeast corner of Farnam and Thirteenth streets. It was begun in April, 1886, and at present every floor in it is occupied. It is seven stories high and is built of Massachusetts brown stone, white Louis pressed brick and iron. It is with one exception, the highest building in the city. The basement story is of brown stone, and is occupied by the Missouri Pacific railway company and the gas company. The remaining six stories are of pressed brick, with brown stone trimmings. The walls are solid masonry and do not contain a single stick of timber. The floors are laid on iron frames three feet apart and are thick, between which are laid freestone blocks in that arch position. The floors are perfectly solid and dead and are insured and have been tested to support 2,500 pounds to the square foot, thus rendering them strong enough to have vaults on any floor.

The main entrance to the building is on Farnam street, and the banking floor and elevator is reached by a broad stone and marble stairway which leads to a wide, spacious lobby. The lobby is finished in elegantly carved and finished antique oak. At the left of the main entrance is the entrance to the banking room. This room is finished in cherry and all the furniture in the room is of the same material. In the south end of the room are the private offices of the president and directors. Next to these are the desks of the cashier and his assistant. Then comes the enclosed compartments for the paying of the two receiving tellers, the discount and collecting clerks and bookkeepers. These compartments are large and opposite to each is a window which affords the best possible light for the clerks and bookkeepers to do their work by. In the north side of the bookkeeping apartments are the three vaults, two of which are for the books. The money vault is seven feet high and 6 1/2 feet at the base. The bottom is of solid masonry. The walls are of railroad iron and brick, bolted together and lined with steel three inches in thickness. The vault doors are of unusual weight and thickness and are made of alternate layers of steel and iron, put together in a superior manner and are secured by the Sargent lock.

The safes and vaults were built at the works of, and by Gus Andreen, of this city. In the rear of these rooms are toilet, stationery and lunch for the use of the clerks in the bank.

The third and fourth stories of the building are occupied by the offices of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company and have been specially fitted up for them. The offices of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company in the building are almost entirely occupied by corporations of some kind, and it seems now as though the entire building would be given up to corporation headquarters. All the rooms in the building are finished in hardwood and with the latest system of steam heating, water service and gas and electric lights. The entire building is constructed regardless of cost and for the convenience of those who may occupy it. Already six-sevenths of the rooms in the building are occupied or rented, and some of the remaining ones have been spoken for. The building is a credit to the city and is also a monument to the growth and development of the business of the banking institution that built and owns it.

CLEVELAND AND THURMAN.

Omaha Democrats Cheer and Enthuse for Their Standard Bearer.

Jefferson square was aglow with fireworks and filled with inspiring music from the Musical Union and A. O. H. bands and democratic oratory last night on the occasion of the ratification meeting held to endorse the action of the St. Louis convention in the choice of Cleveland and Thurman. About one thousand persons, including men, women and children, assembled about the speakers stand. A. J. Poppleton, chairman of the meeting, was the first speaker, and dwelt at some length on the virtues of the democratic party, and spoke in glowing terms of President Cleveland and Mr. Thurman. The latter, he said, was a Jeffersonian democrat, born in Virginia and passing the greater part of his life in Ohio. Every word of President Cleveland and Mr. Thurman's record in the United States senate and his bandana was hailed with applause and cheers.

Hon. M. V. Gammon, upon being introduced, said it gave him pleasure to be able to appear and assist in the ratification of the nomination of Grover Cleveland and Senator Thurman. Cleveland holds aloft the constitutional banner of democracy. He is a man of honesty, a man of nerve and man with courage to carry out without fear or favor the responsibilities and requirements of his office. The speaker sandwiched his remarks with a number of anecdotes and funny stories, which were well received by the crowd.

Attorney Mahoney next stepped forward and congratulated the democracy. In a few days the people will hear from Chicago, but the party that will make nominations there has not as good a record for freedom for the people and equal rights to one and all as has the democracy. Cleveland's honesty and firmness of purpose, and Thurman's statesmanship were fully extolled by the speaker.

When J. Sterling Morton came to the front he received an ovation. Quiet being restored Mr. Morton gave vent to his views on the tariff question, and sustained Mr. Cleveland's record on this important subject. Mr. Morton was enthusiastic over Mr. Cleveland's past record, and predicted a triumphant re-election for him.

After short speeches from several orators of local fame, and three cheers for Cleveland and Thurman the crowd dispersed.

P. ROCCO BRO. & CO.

Removed to 1108 Howard Street.

Among the live commission men who recognize the need of a market in Omaha, is the enterprising firm of P. Rocco Bros. & Co. These gentlemen have secured magnificent quarters in the new Mercery block, which they have fitted up with every convenience for accommodating and caring for their immense stock of fruits. They occupy the whole floor and the basement, the fifth floor being for the reception of fruit house in the city and handle more bananas and oranges than all the other houses combined. They average from 3 to 5 carloads of bananas per week. They have fitted up 6 large ripening rooms for bananas, each with a capacity of one carload. They buy their oranges and bananas of first hands, having a buyer constantly in New York. They thus save middlemen and secure a benefit to their customers. The California fruit season is just opening, and in their house can be found the most tempting supply of all of these popular fruits, fresh and wholesome. These gentlemen have been in business in the firm name of Rocco Bros. & Co., of 10 years, and are well known and being an exclusive fruit house can offer superior advantages to buyers over the regular commission house. They have a branch house in Kansas City under the firm name of Rocco Bros. & Co., of which Mr. Frank Rocco and Mr. C. H. Nunnemacher are the managers. Mr. P. Rocco takes care of the Omaha house. These three gentlemen comprise the firm who own and operate these two commission houses, all well known to the citizens of Nebraska. The business is a credit to themselves and a great boon to the lovers of good fresh fruits.
