

THE CAUSE JOINED IN COURT.

Suit Against the Atchison & Nebraska Railroad Company.

DEFENDANTS FILE AN ANSWER.

A Serious Charge Brought Against a Woman—Departure of Governor Thayer and Staff for Cincinnati—Brief Mention.

LINCOLN BUREAU OF THE OMAHA BEE, 1929 1/2 STREET, Lincoln, July 2.

In the suit brought by the attorney general on behalf of the state of Nebraska to obtain a forfeiture of such of the franchises now exercised by the Atchison & Nebraska railway company as were formerly granted by the state to the Atchison, Lincoln & Columbus railroad company, involving something over four million dollars worth of property, the defendants have made due answer and the case now is joined in the supreme court. It will be remembered that the suit was brought because of the lease and sale made to prevent competition and contravention of our constitution and statutes, the lease to run for a period of 69 years and an outright sale of all its private property to the Burlington & Missouri River railroad company of Nebraska. In the answer the chief point sought to be made is based upon purely constitutional grounds, the defendant claiming the full protection of the constitution of the United States against the inhibition of the constitution of this state and the laws made thereunder to the lease and the parties thereto.

Every point indicated in the answer was covered in the arguments of the defense on this occasion, considered some time since, except the point to whether the Atchison & Nebraska could lawfully pay the Burlington & Missouri, thus making connection and raising the constitutional question before. The answer is in detail and can do nothing more, in Attorney General Loece's opinion, than point the way to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court.

CHARGE WITH A GOLDFIELD.

Mr. Stearns, county attorney, today prepared the papers in an adultery case, up to day the complainant, Elmer Hogan, an employee of the Denver and Rio Grande, the complainant alleges that Mrs. Phoebe Staton has been living with Henry Washburn in adultery for nearly a year past. It is further stated that Mrs. Snavely has a husband and two children living on a farm near Denver and that she has been deserting it, and has at no time been compelled to return only to forsake it a second time. The father and husband is said to be heart-broken, and the case is regarded to be one of peculiar hardships to him. The defense, however, claims that the case was brought out of pure spite, and that the informant was made by Hogan at the instigation of Washburn, who had been sued by Washburn for wages and labor. The case provoking considerable interest, and the array of witnesses promises a tedious if not an interesting trial. The cause was called at 10 o'clock this morning, but continued by consent until 1 P.M.

ABOUT FIRE CRACKERS.

This Year's Importation From Japan and China.

The importation of fire crackers this year will amount to 300,000 boxes, an increase of 100,000 boxes over last year's importation. It is a little curious that the scientific knowledge and inventive genius of this country have proved inadequate for the successful manufacture of these explosives. All attempts to produce them in this country, so as to compete with the imported article, have failed. They are made exclusively in China and Japan and the importation of last year was 14,415 boxes, valued at $4,255. What a large sum to be thrown away on such trash. What an annoyance also will be inflicted on a large part of the public and especially on invalids, when these crackers go off. What a risk of calamity, also, for we are reminded that the great fire in Portland—July 4, 1884—was occasioned by a fire cracker. Yes, they are dangerous playthings at the best and ought to be used, when used at all, with great care. Children, indeed, should not be allowed to fire them except under adult observation.

Effects of Mental Over-Work.

Some interesting, though not novel, observations on the symptoms of mental fatigue were discussed at a recent meeting of the Anthropological society says an eastern exchange. The result of these investigations goes to prove that weariness of mind, the result of work, like other forms of exhaustion, is recognizable under the two different kinds of mental acts of irritability and of incapacity. Further, experiments in the same subject would probably show, here as elsewhere, the former of these conditions is introductory to the latter, and is the natural sequel of that stage of apparently successful over-action which is seen when an organ still fully capable is unduly stimulated. The observations referred to were culled from a series of reports by school teachers, and included details of their own sons, as well as of the children under their care. The signs of mental irritability were apparent in sleeplessness and incapacity for task work. Lolling, yawning and a languid attitude told that the will was flagging. Headache suggested overstrain in study combined with defective ventilation, and perhaps a too sparing diet; while some curious facts bearing on the causation of color blindness and somnambulism were also noted. Thus, in one case the blue color perception was for a time obliterated, and the sufferer from this defect found herself painting ivy leaves a bright red color in another student, having failed to see the true eye of an examination, awoke at his desk to find that he had been busily engaged in drawing humorous cartoons relating to a former conversation. Here we have an instance of cerebral irritation due to overwork, which suggests a somewhat close connection between dreaming and somnambulism, and affords a clue to the physiology of the latter condition. Over-work both mental and bodily, are at once the most general and the least regarded of illness to which we are liable in the present age. Do what we may, it is impossible to escape from it; but there is, after all, a certain satisfaction in being able to recognize its features. We must not forget, however, that it is also to a considerable extent a preventable evil, and it is certainly a matter for satisfaction that this fact is not ignored by the reforming party in the legislature. Its treatment in individual cases requires chiefly that due attention be paid to the two great essentials of timely rest and wholesome diet. Work, however, irksome, may, it is generally allowed, be undertaken on a very liberal scale, if it is not too continuous, but is broken by timely and adequate intervals of rest. The value of a plain and liberal diet is self-evident, and we may take it as a maxim for the times that so long as appetite and sleep are unimpaired there is no dangerous degree of over-work, and conversely, that a failure in either of these respects should be regarded as a warning signal, to which attention should be paid by relieving the strain of exertion.

My dear Dr. T. S. Reed:

As I last resort, the user having suffered from neuralgia for years and having been treated by various physicians in this state and Massachusetts, I am sending you my recommendation sources of pain, and the remedies which have been recommended for it. I will enclose a receipt claimed for it by Dr. H. W. Williams, Doplina, Iowa, Jan. 5, 1886.

Atmospheric changes, such as a change of nervous headache, and I feel thankful for all the good it has done me.

Send 6 cents for the beautiful colored picture, "Moorsie Maiden."

THE ATHLOPHOR CO. 112 Wall St. N.Y.

Owing to the inclination of many people to be humbugged in the purchase of medicine, and to be imposed upon in the household, we feel it our duty to sound a note of warning to all who are subject to fits of neuralgia. That is the secret of its success. Years of trial have proved it to be a quick, safe, sure cure.
