A HORRIBLE TALE.

And One That Will Tax the Credulity of Civilized People. On the 23d of June last THE BEE published an account of the abduction of Sara Clarke, the sixteen-year-old step daughter of J. C. Smith, who lives in Albright addition. It will be remembered that the family of the young girl believed that she had been decoyed away from her home by a Mrs. Kate June, a woman of questionable repute, who sailed under numerous aliases. The police were put onto the affair, and investigated it as thoroughly as possible, without, however, the hope of learning anything about the whereabouts of the missing Sara. A week or so ago Detective Blaufuss obtained a clue, and following it up, succeeded yesterday in arresting the girl in a camp of railroad section hands ten miles west of Grand Island. She was there, as was also Mrs. June, and they have been living a life of reckless dissipation and deprayity for the period of a month. The girl was attived in male attive and when the was attired in male attire and when the officer went to arrest her, a big burly French-man stepped up and said he could not take her; that she was his wife, and was in a con-dition that might prove fatal to her in case of any undue excitement. The officer in-formed the man that he knew what he was about and the girl would have to go with him if it was necessary to arrest the whole outfit. The girl then gladly accompanied the detective, and the story she told at her home yesterday of her life in the railroad camp is enough to make one's hair stand on end. She was in the charge of the woman June, in fact literally her prisoner, and was compelled to submit to all sorts of indignities at the hands of the rude men about her at the command of this shameless woman. When the railroad hands received their pay this frail young girl was bartered, body and soul, and she said that every Saturday night she was visited by from fifteen to twenty men. She left her home with the woman under the impression that she was to be taken to impression that she was to be taken to Cheyenne as an apprentice in a millinery store, but instead of that she was taken out on Union road and installed in a section hands, camp for the purpose hinted at above. Mrs. Smith, the girl's mother, fell in a swoon as her daughter related her horrible experience, and it was an hour or more be-fore she was brought to. The father, too, cried like a child, and so great has been the shock and reaction from the terrors of the life she has been leading, that the girl is now sick in bed. Detective Binufuss left this afternoon with a warrant in his possession for the arrest of Kate June, and it is the intention to prosecute her to the fullest extent

THE STREETS FOR THE PEOPLE.

The Motor and Horse Car Lines Have Rights on Leavenworth Street For the Accommodation of Residents Beyond.

The Street Car Injunctions. When court was called yesterday there were just two lawyers, two bailiffs and one reporter present. The journal was read and exparte orders were asked for by Judge Groff the same as if there was a full attendance of the bar. After a short delay in the taking up of business the court left his seat on the bench and for a time it looked as if the day's work was concluded before it had really begun. Judges Wakeley and Doane arrived shortly afterwards and a small group of lawyers gathered in and there was a sec ond attempt to hold a sestion of court. JUDGE WARELEY ON CITY BAILWAY ROUTES. Judge Wakeley on assuming his seat an-nounced that he would give his decision in the injunction case of the horse car railway company against the motor street railway and vice versa. The injunctions were granted in favor of each road and against the other about a year ago and restraining each other from interfering with the laying of their respective tracks at the corner of Leav-enworth and Sixteenth streets. The history of the case as given by the court this morning in his ruling is about as follows: The 2nd of June, 1887, the horse car company laid its tracks at the corner above named, with the intention of either crossing the viaduct or running west on Leavenworth street to Hanscom park. The force of men they employed worked all day and laid about two hundred feet, and had the material on the ground for the continuing of the work. The morning of the tinuing of the work. The morning of the 3d, before the hours of going to work, the motor company sent a gang of men to where the horse car company's men had been at work the day before, who proceeded to tear up the horse ear company's tracks that had been laid the day before, and began work in the interest of their company. Each company went into court was cranted recompany went into court, was granted re-straining orders, and finally temporary in-junctions. The history of the horse car company and its rights and franchises in the company and its rights and tranchises in the city was reviewed at length as well as the rights of the motor company to the streets named in its franchise and in question. The court, before giving his decision in the case, cited a number of similar railway and street railway cases where each company had an equal right to the street, and the rulings of the state and supreme court in the cases. He then stated that he would make the injunction of the Horse Car commake the injunction of the Horse Car com-pany permanent on the ground of priority of possession and dissolve the injunction of the Motor company. But that, as the tracks of the Horse Car company could be used for travel by the Motor company as well as their own tracks, he would recommend to the city council that they enact some legislation in the case so that the Horse Car company would be compelled to allow the Motor company to be compelled to allow the Motor company to use their tracks at this point for some rea-sonable compensation. On application of the attorneys for the Motor company, the court also ordered that in case the Horse Car comthe street and keeping of the tracks along the street and keeping up with the pavers when they begin their work, that their right to the street be forfeited and that the Motor company be then allowed to proceed with the work of laying their tracks. The court stated that, he ruled alone in the case that he ruled alone in the case and was solely responsible for the decision, but hoped that this decision would settle the fact in the minds of the members of the various street railway companies in the city that no sincle company can have a monopoly of any one street to the exclusion of other company's, but that the public must be accommodated. And that when one line desires a right of way for tracks, over or along another company's tracks, to reach any portion of the city not accommodated by street railways that they will get such right of way.

Kendis believed the story his boy told and caused the arrest of Mrs Capolungo. She was tried in the police court last Saturday and the case was dismissed. Kendis was not satisfied was dismissed. Kendis was not satisfied with this and caused her arrest again yester day to be tried before another court. He admitted to another person that he did not ex-pect to win the case, but he merely wanted to worry Mrs. Capolungo and make her spend a good sum of money in lawyers, fees, etc. The woman is spoken of by her neighbors as being most quiet and ladylike, and possesses many friends. BOOK TO MEN, FREE, Upon Private, Special or Nervous Diseases, Impotency, Syphilis, Gleet and Varicocele, with question list My Reasons for Writing a Book Upon Private. Special and Nervous Diseases.

I have for many years made a specialty of diseases of the urinary and sexual organs, have become a recognized authority upon the subject, consequently I receive an immense number of letters from physicians and afflicted persons, asking my opinion and advice upon individual cases. For the benefit of such persons, I have written a book, giving a general description of the most common diseases and conditions, my treatment, success, advice, etc. After reading it, persons will have a clearer idea of their condition and can write me more intelligently and to the point. It will therefore be seen that our object in writing these pages is not to jurnish reading matter to a class of persons who read out of mere idle curiosity, but for the benefit of the many who are suffering to a greater or less degree from diseases, or the effects of diseases or abuses, of the sexual or urinary organs. Not a day passes but we receive many calls or letters from persons suffering from this class of diseases, or their sequel. Many of them are ignorant of the cause of the difficulty that has wrecked their constitutions, thrown a cloud over their bright prospects and is shortening their days. SURGERY
