AMONG THE COURTS.

A Few Small Cases Make up the Day's Business. Judge Wakeley was closed in the judges' chamber yesterday preparing his decision in some of the cases which are to be passed upon this morning before court adjourns for the summer.

The following cases were filed in the district court: George H. Bailey against C. E. Mayne and Dennis Cunningham on a promissory note for $6,000 given September 4, 1886, and on which there is a balance yet due of $4,568.10.

The plaintiff also asks that interest may be collected on the note from the date it was drawn instead of from maturity, as it reads.

The same plaintiff began suit against N. M. Lundin to foreclose a mechanic's lien for $282.92 for building material.

Lawrence C. Enevold has begun foreclosure proceedings against Frank C. Morgan, Elias Morgan, John Barry, Union Trust company and John M. Francis.

He holds two notes, each for $1,500.18, given by Morgan and secured by mortgage on lots 1 and 5 in Jacobs' addition to Omaha.

Dudley B. Davis has sued C. E. Mayne on a promissory note for $200.

Green Swavage has brought an action against Patrick McEvoy for $600.

The plaintiff purchased a tract of land in Merced county, California, and wanted to make the first payment in logs and horses to the value of $500 and get the deed for his property.

He made the payment without getting the deed and has nothing now but his experience. He sues for $500.

Adolph C. Lichtenberger has brought suit against Arthur Johnson to recover $750.24, a balance due him for work and materials furnished in the construction of some buildings in the city.

The Merchants National bank of Syracuse, N. Y., has sued the Omaha Carriage and Sleigh company for $802.50, a balance yet due on a promissory note for $1,300, given the 23d of February, 1888.

The Colorado pleasure resorts, reached via the UNION PACIFIC, attract visitors from all over the world.

HE FOOLED 'EM.

Contractor Neal's Experience With Footpads. Robert Neal, the contractor, had an experience with footpads Thursday at the corner of Thirtieth and California streets.

He was returning from a drive in the spring, and at the point mentioned two men sprang out from the shadow, and while one clutched his horse by the bridle the other covered him with a revolver.

"Your money or your life," cried the man with the gun, in true Dick Turpin style.

Mr. Neal did not lose his presence of mind, but said: "I'm afraid you've got the wrong party, boys, but come on and go through me; I've only got a half-dollar."

"Well, fork that over," said the man of the road, "and drive on."

Mr. Neal quickly reached in his pocket, drew out a silver half-dollar, and handed it over to the man, and with a "So long," drove on. The joke of the whole occurrence was that the contractor had not a dozen little rolls with him, and had his little case filled him would be poorer to-day by several hundred dollars.

A RUNNING FIRE.

An Armed "Suspect" Turns on Pursuers and Shoots. Four rough-looking men were noticed by Officer Cullen yesterday lounging under the viaduct at Eleventh and Jones streets.

About the same time a watch was offered to a pawnbroker on Tenth street. The officer suspected that the watch and the man might be connected with the sandbagging of Lee Concanann, and he undertook to arrest the man to have them give an account of themselves.

They took to their heels, and Officer Cullen ran into a chase. The fugitives were followed to Eighteenth and Mason streets, where one named James Clide was captured.

TRAVELING MEN'S DAY.

A Meeting This Afternoon to Arrange For the Event. A number of the traveling men of the city are discussing the plan of having a traveling men's day during fair week.

The idea sprang into existence after Omaha abandoned a traveling men's display the Fourth of July to give way to the celebration arranged by the boys to take place at Grand Island on that day.

When the plan for a parade were given up here on that occasion, it was agreed among the men that they would have their day in Omaha during fair week.

In order to arrange for it a meeting will be held at the board of trade rooms this afternoon, at which committees will be appointed to confer with the fair association for the event.

The traveling men will be supported in their arrangements by their houses, and will do everything in their power to make the day a grand attraction.

It is expected that each house in the city will have a man at the meeting this afternoon to help organize the movement.

After smoking, we suggest, gentlemen, that you had best banish from your breath the fume ere you seek the drawing room.
