They will also receive bids for furnishing stone flagging for sidewalks in the permanent sidewalk district. The pay roll of inspectors on public works for July amounted to $2,000. The pay roll of street repairs $80,286.

Dirk versus Wrench.

Two men, one of whom was armed with a knife and the other with a monkey wrench, engaged in a pitched battle near the corner of Fourteenth and Dodge about 8 o'clock last evening. The knife proved a mightier weapon than the wrench and did some most effective work, although none of the wounds received by either belligerent are serious.

As soon as the fight became noised about the two men disappeared and the identity or name of either could not be learned.

They Wanted to Stay With Him. N. P. Nelson, who lives at Thirty-third and Leavenworth, has been renting a room in his house to a couple of fellows named Vis Gutlery and Dan Jones. They have proved undesirable tenants and night before last he told them he could no longer accommodate them under his roof. This raised a row, and them under his roof. This raised a row, and the two tenants armed with a pitcher and a piece of board struck Nelson several blows, cutting his head in two or three places and inflicting a deep wound in his right hand. Warrants are out for their arrest.

He Thrashed the Darkey's Girl.

A hackman named W. M. Armour conveyed a colored gentleman and his Dinah to Hall's road house in his vehicle night before last, and just as they were about to return the jehu had some words with the sable pair and he knocked both of them down. The woman was the more badly bruised of the two, and in addition to a number of other contusions her right eye was swelled shut. Armour was arrested and taken before Justice Wade's court, where he was granted a continuance until next Monday.

Chief Arthur has already signified his intention to not allow his name to be again presented for the position and, as a matter of course, the men are casting their eyes around for a fit successor. Among the half dozen names mentioned for this position it is said there are none more prominent than that of Goo. W. Vroman, of Omaha. He is regarded as a level-headed, conservative man and stands high in this order through-out the country. The officials of the Union Pacific regard him as one of the best in this country and are mammous in expressing a desire to see him chosen as he doubtless will

A TRUANT HUSBAND. His Perfidy Discovered and the Fuss it Occasioned.

The climate about Omaha is rather sultry for the average honest citizen, but if Walter F. Moyer returns from Kansas City and to the home of his enraged wife, he will find the climate a little warmer than that of any place he has ever heard of. His wife is looking for him, and has learned things during the past week or so that have convinced her that she has no more time for her husband, and it is stated that she has said that if he ever shows his face in Omaha she will kill him and that she will strangle her child before he is ever allowed to get it.

The circumstances that brought about this extraordinary state of affairs are about as follows: Mr. Moyer's evenings were occupied down town so much that his wife rather suspected him of infidelity. She finally located the house where he spent his time, and to her utter horror it proved to be time, and to her utter horror it proved to be a sporting house on Ninth street near the planning mill, where her husband worked. According to the story of Flossy Earle, Moyer's lady in the house, as she re-lated it, Mrs. Moyer got Daisy Ryan, an-other sporting woman, to go to the Ninth street house as an inmate and locate the room her husband occupied, and find out the girl who was receiving her husband's at the girl who was receiving her husband's at-tentions. By this means Mrs. Moyer suctentions. By this mbans Mrs. Moyer succeeded in learning that her husband had not only been a frequenter of the room, but had made the girl, Flossie, a number of valuable presents among which were a diamond ring with the words "John Walt to Flossie" engraved on the inside; a handsome gold watch and a number of other smaller presents. The clothes press in Flossies' wom were also the reconstrate of Walth.

smaller presents. The clothes press in Flossie's room was also the receptacle of Walt's coat and hat and one or two canes. As soon as these facts became known Mrs. Moyer made it so uncomfortable for her husband that last Saturday or Sunday he left for Kansas City. From there he telegraphed his dear Flossie that he had arrived safely. This telegram was received last Monday.

During the early part of this week Mrs. Moyer had nursed her wrath until it was at the proper heat and Tuesday made a call on her husband's paramour, accompanied by an officer, prepared to take all of her husband's goods and chattels from the Ninth street mansion. When Flossie learned Ninth street mansion. When Flossie learned of the presence of the officer and her lover's wife she was also informed by the servant that her enemy had a gun, and that blood was about to flow over the carpets of the mansion. When entrance was at length was about to now over the carpets of the mansion. When entrance was at length gained to the room the two women met face to face, and each maintained a flerce defiance of the other. Mrs. Moyer demanded have busband's goods, and his coat, hat and canes were freely given over. The picture of the busband was also taken, and the telegram announcing the safe arrival in Kansas City was handed over. The diagnost ring and watch were asked for but diamond ring and watch were asked for but refused. The wife then asked to see the refused. The wife then asked to see the ring, and when it was handed her she put it on her finger. The watch was then the only disputed article left and it was in 'hock' at Heilman's. Mrs. Moyer went there and demanded it and on being refused she went to Justice Wade's court to institute replevin proceedings to get possession of it. She was informed by refused. court to institute replevin proceedings to get possession of it. She was informed by the court that if the watch had been given by her husband to the girl she could not get it back. White Mrs, Moyer was after the watch, Flossie, dressed in a neat blue suit with her face gaudily painted, was seeking legal advice to have Mrs. Moyer arrested for larceny. When she found that she could not accomplish that end she sought other legal advice to replevin her diamond ring and picture. She has finally concluded to drop the matter now and think no more of Walter. The diamond ring was a Christmas present a year ago, and the watch was given to her last Christmas. Flossie stated that she did not know when Moyer would come back from Kansas City as she has seen but little of him for the last month. Mrs. Moyer will probably let the case rest where it is as far as the Ninth street girl is concerned and settle it with her husband.

One Beer-Handler Proposes Fight Hot and Quiet in the Packing Town - Notes About the City.

The License Question. Quite a number of saloon keepers, are su nitting to the inevitable, and Clerk Hocto is kept busy filling up the necessary blanks Councilman Rafferty was the first to put up the $375.00 necessary for the balance of the year, and he was quickly followed by Tom Rock, Frank Glass, Henry Beal, J. S. Mullin, B. Bloom, Walsh & Connor, Bohner Bros., S. S. Reemer, George Rush, F. J. Eggers Henry Martin and Antoine Blahalvek. S. saloonkeepers, however, kick, and one ten-dered the usual quarterly fee of $125. When it was refused he left for Omaha to get legal advice and to find out why the city broke the Slocumb law three months ago and are now trying to enforce it.

"If the state law calls for $500, and says it must be paid in advance, why did the city council accept $125 three months ago!" he said. "I went into the business then, and if they freeze me out each member of the council will have to account for it. They accepted my $125, and that renders them liable to the school board for $5:0. If I don't take out a license for the balance of the year on account of their refusing to take my $125 I'm going to see that the council puts in that $775 to the school board, and don't you for-get it."

For Merchants.

Garbage Master Hayes wishes it to be distinctly understood that in future merchants must not throw the sweepings of their stores on the street. Large pieces of paper are oc cassionally thrown out, and more than one run-away can be traced to this cause, but aside from this, there is a law against the practice, and the master says it is his duty to see that it is enforced.

Notes About the City. Top price for hogs yesterday $6.50.

Councilmen McMillen, Burke and Smith eft for Omaha to close the contract for grading, and also to get some definite answer from the Stock Yards company respecting he sewerage question.

Officer John Sexton picked up a wallet containing $780 yesterJay, and made one saloonkeeper happy by returning it. The saloonkeeper paid his license for the balance of the year.

Sam Miller was fined 83 and costs for be ng drunk, but as he was the only prisoner on deck and the sentence did not call for olitary confinement, he was let go. President J. P. Maloney of the A. O. H. wants every member to be present next Sun-day afternoon in rount's hall.

Wednesday night the newly instituted lodge of Forresters met in the K. of P. heli and elected officers for the ensuing year. John Corcoran, a teamster, was held up on Fwenty-sixth street Wednesday night. He had just returned from Omaha, and was put, ting away his team, when he was attacked by three foot pads. The noise of the scuile however, brought his son and a neignbor to the rescue, and the thieves were put to flight.
