City Auditor Hammer issued $6,600 worth of intersection paving and grading bonds yesterday.

Tom Owens lost two fine calves night before last. They were evidently stolen from his pasture.

The work of putting in the flagstone curbing on Eighth street, from Broadway south, has been commenced. Commissioner Hunter was busy ye terday afternoon taking evidence in the James Porterfield banktupt estate case. The case of M. E. Doran, the young crook captured at Denison, will come up for a hearing before 'Squire Schulz this morning.

The ladies of Unity Guild will meet (this) Saturday afternoon at 3 p. m. at the residence of Mrs. Charles Swan, No. 15 Stutsman street.

An infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dunn died yesterday morning. The funeral will be held from the residence, 410 Broadway, at 9 o'clock this morning. There is one house in this city which has nine families living in it. That is a little above the average, but it shows that there is need for more residences. A runaway team made a lively dash on Broadway yesterday morning, but was stopped at the corner of Pearl street by a nimble bystander. No damage was done. Gus Webber, residing at 220 Benton street, was overcome by the heat Thursday, and had to be taken home. At last accounts he was doing well, and in a fair way to recover.

Mike Gallagher, a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul switchman, was badly hurt while making a coupling in the yards Tuesday evening, by the falling of an end door from a freight car. There is to be a meeting of the basket and box company at Dr. Macrae's office this morning to consider the proposals for furnishing machinery. The enterprise is expected to soon start. The contract for erecting the addition to the Presbyterian church has been let to John P. Weaver for $7,400. Work will be commenced immediately and completed in about ninety days. Arrangements have been made to have the Des Moines and Omaha league clubs play an exhibition game in this city in about two weeks. The game will be played at the Union driving

The report of Postmaster Bowman for last month shows a decided increase in business over the month of July, 1887. Receipts for July, 1887, $2,727.03. For July, 1888, $3,944.99. Increase,

$1.217.96. The water was run into the new lake in Fairmount park yesterday. The new lake is not large, but it is a little beauty. Such improvements as are being made this year are making the park a most delightful resort.

Work on the Merriam block has commenced in earnest. The men are at work nights, the electric light making it as clear as day, and the temperature being much better for teams and for men than during the day.

The bridles stolen from Dr. Green's stable a few nights ago were found yes-terday under a shock of oats in the southern part of the city. Chief Lucas was notified and the property was restored to the rightful owner.

Sheriff O'Neil yesterday arrested Frank Lower for contempt of court, in violating a liquor injunction. He was taken before Judge Carson, and his hearing set for 9 o'clock this morning. His bonds were fixed at $600, which he secured.

The Northwestern is now running vestibuled trains from this point. The first train left Thursday evening, and consisted of a baggage, smoker, coach, sleeper and diner. It was in charge of Engineer Pickering and Conductor O'Connor.

The Ahrens steamer was put to work yesterday morning pumping water into the new artificial lake in Fairmount park. The lake holds 250,000 gallons, and it will require twenty hours to complete the job. The lake will be full this morning, as the steamer was kept pumping all night.

A farmer who came across the river yesterday on the ferry train was sur-prised on driving off the cars to see one of his horses begin to bleed badly from the mouth and nose. The animal was taken to Dr. Stewart's stable, on Fourth street, where it died shortly afterward. Two building permits were issued at the city clerk's office yesterday. One of them was for Nathan Merriam's new brick business block on Main and Pearl streets, to cost $50,000, and the other to Brown and Wriger, two Omaha parties, for a $2,000 residence in Beer's subdi-

It now comes to light that the man Kelley, just sent to jail for thirty days for the larceny of a farmer's coat, is an experienced crook. A man who knows him says that he escaped from jail at Adair two years ago, where he was awaiting trial for stabbing a man. His right name is said to be Kline and his folks live at Perry.

R. Brown and J. Ungar, two prominent young men of Omaha, are building a fine residence on West Broadway, opposite S. Goldstein's grocery store. The cost will be about $2,200. They are the son and nephew of L. Brown, and purpose making the residence a present to Mr. and Mrs. L. Brown, who will proceed to occupy it on completion.

Rev. G. W. Crofts, of the Congrega-tional church, has his house fitted with a burglar alarm, and it doubtless saved some of his wealth the other night. Wires running from all the doors and windows on the ground floor are at-tached to bells in his sleeping room. One of them began to ring a few nights ago, and the head of the house investigated. The would-be thief probably heard the racket and made good his escape. If the present system of successful burglary is kept up burglar alarms will soon be in great demand.

Several important changes and improvements are to be made at the institution for the deaf and dumb. There are to be three new boilers put in, the contract for which has been let to G. S. Fawcett, of Burlington. A new steam engine is also to be put in. Russell & Co., of thiseity, furnish that, they being the lowest bidders. There were six competitors. An electric light plant is to be put in by the Mather Electric Light company, through their agent at Lincoln. There were five competing bids. On Monday next there will be bids opened for a building for the electric light power, and for an additional building. The plans as drawn by C. E. Lots of Sales. During yesterday was closed a large land deal which clearly indicates which way the wind blows as to the future demand for Council Bluffs realty. For some time past Messrs. Benson & Shepherd and C. J. Colby have had the matter on hand and through them the deal was concluded. By this sale Omaha parties have purchased one hundred and eight lots in Benson's first addition, eighteen lots in Benson's second addition and one lot in Ferry's second addition. Many of these lots will be immediately transferred to persons who will build thereon houses for their own occupancy. There is no question but that this is but the beginning of activity and that other deals equally as important will soon tollow. Real estate dealers say there is more inquiry for desirable lots now than there has been during the past three months, and all signs point to an early revival of the building boom in Council Bluffs.

Restraining the Passions.

Judge Aylesworth yesterday ordered Stella Bailey, a twelve-year-old girl, sent to the reform school on the application of J. A. Cole. She is alleged to be incorrigible, a vagrant, of a thievish and immoral character. She apparently has no one to protect or care for James Hoar was fined $7.60 for indulging his appetite for the intoxicating cup. He made dozens of good promises, among the number one to never drink another drop of liquor. The court decided to try him, and said he would have him locked up in a cell with a two quart bottle of whisky, and if he did not touch it in two days, he would discharge him. The only difficulty was that no liquor could be found in the station, and Jimmie was locked up without the loaded bottle. He tried to persuade himself that he had the tremens, and succeeded in making himself decidedly miserable. He will be pretty well sweated out in about a week.

Chief Lucas a Sprinter.

Chief Lucas showed himself to be quite a sprinter yesterday noon. He was at the dummy depot just before the train went out, and noticed a fellow sitting under a tree south of the depot, apparently waiting to board the train at on Upper Broadway last evening which the Northwestern crossing. The chief walked over that way, when the fellow got up and walked away. The chief quickened his pace, and so did the pursued. The "boss of the coppers" began to run, and the other kept out of his way. He headed for the train, and jumping on the tender ran clear through the train, and headed down clear street for First avenue. Notwithstanding his fifty odd years and 200 pounds avoirdupois, the chief kept close behind his game, but could not get his hands on him. It became monotonous after awhile, and then the officer pulled out his little gun and told his leader that he had all the exercise he wanted. The fugitive took the hint and slowed up to await the arrival of the man who held the ace of trumps. "What do you want of me?"

some cooler day, and I am going to lock you up until the weather changes, was the reply of the chief, as he affixed his "come along" to the wrist of the crest-fallen crook. He was taken to the station, where he gave the name of W. A. Search. He proved to be one of the three brought back from Denison by Anderson and O'Brien, and afterward released from jail. He was locked up and a charge of vagrancy and suspicion entered against him. He was intending to board the dummy train and get across the river to Omaha. He is a skillful crook and a dangerous man to run at large. Although young in years he is well versed in criminal matters, and is safer behind the bars than running at large.

A Horse Flesh Alibi. Prof. Wyckoff has a family horse to which he is quite attached. He secured good pasturage for the animal, and the other day discovered that the horse had mysteriously disappeared. He concluded that it had been stolen, and when a little later he found the animal in the possession of another man, he demanded it. The other one insisted that he had traded for it, and by direction of the owner had gone to the pasture and got it. Investigation showed that the man got the wrong horse, the animal for which he traded being much like that belonging to the professor, and pastured in the same field. The affair thus simmered down to a question of identity of horse-flesh, and the professor had to replevin his steed to get possession. The case is to be heard by Justice Biggs.

The Council Bluffs Fence. C. J. Beckman's putent for fences and railings of all sorts is fast coming into favor and nowhere more so than right here at home, where the merits of the invention have been so thoroughly tested. No one here now thinks of putting in a fence of any sort without using Mr. Beckman's patent, as it costs no more and is so much better, protecting the joints and enabling the taking out of a panel at any time as easily as opening a gate. William Siedentopf has lately had Mr. Beckman build 725 feet William Siedentopf has of fence for him. It consists of three iron pipes with nicely turned posts, and is as neat and substantial a line of fencing as was ever set up. L. A. Caspar has put in some of this fencing in front of his place. Did Not Know Glanders.

Yesterday a young man representing himself as Dr. Johnson, assistant state veterinary surgeon, was in the city to inquire into the case of F. M. Gant, recently fined for having a glandered horse in his possession. The young doctor did not admit the existence of such a disease as "nasal gleet," which is recognized in the statutes of the state. He gave Mr. Gant a certificate to the effect that the case is one of "chronic catarrh." This decision is far from being satisfactory to those who have given this disease, and this case especially, a study. It would have been far more satisfactory had the state surgeon given the case his personal atten-tion instead of deputising one of apparently so little experience.

Decrease the Dogs.

The city has not a few dogs. They toil not, neither do they spin, but they howl nights, they snap at inoffensive passers-by in the daytime, bark at horses and spoil the displays in front of grocery stores. There is somewhere on the ordinance books a requirement that the dogs pay a tax, but the collections seem to be slow. It would be a glad re-form if by a rigid collection of the license, and a slaughtering of those not licensed, a decrease could be made in the number. There are thousands of worthless curs in the city, whose owners would not pay the license for them, and this faiture would give a glad justification for killing them off.

A Long Road and No Turn.

"Who was burglarized last night?" is the common salutation these days. Early yesterday morning an attempt was made to enter the dwelling of P. Lennan, No. 712 South Seventh street. but fortunately it was a failure. About 1 o'clock T. R. Stoner, the next door neighbor of Mr. Lennan, was awakened by an unusual noise, and going to the back porch he discovered a man in the act of attempting to force an entrance through the window of his neighbor's house. Stoner had his revolver and after yelling at the fellow he blazed away with his gun. The would be thief took to his heels and was quickly joined by a confederate who was evidently watching between the two houses while his partner did the "cracking." A second shot was sent after the fleeing rascals, which did nothing more than to hasten their flight.

Drink Maito at soda fountain. The Biter Bitten.

There is one less believer in practical joking in this city this morning than there was yesterday, simply because there was a little scene enacted again demonstrated the fact that the "best laid plans" etc., etc., do not always turn out as originally intended. Some time ago one of the head clerks in one of the largest dry goods houses of the city was made the victim of a practical joke. A fellow clerk was attired as a female, and in guise of a giddy street walker, made a mash on the fix young man aforementioned, and the fly young man aforementioned, and the deception was kept up until the gay Lothario was where he afterward wished he had not been. However, he took the joke good naturedly and waited an opportunity to repeat it on some one else. Last evening was the time fixed upon, and he wrote a note to a recently

The result was that the joker was arrested shortly after appearing on the streets for masquerading in female attire. He protested that he was highly respectable, and then begged and finally wept copious tears at the thought of a night in the police station. To add to his discomf-ture all the lady clerks of the store were on hand to sympathize (!) with him in his misfortune. At last the tender hearted policeman, who had been posted as to his part, released him "for his wife's sake." The joker hastened home and will probably not know that he himself was the victim of Mrs. Lizzie Reivel has begun an action in the district court to recover 5,000 damages from Christie Evers for defamation of character. The plaintiff in filing her complaints says that she is a married woman living in Council Bluffs; that on or about the 28th of July, 1888, the said Christie Evers in a conversation with Mrs. Pluss and in the presence and hearing of divers other witlesses to the plaintiff unknown, falsely and maliciously spoke and published the following concerning the plaintiff: "Her husband drives a butcher wagon in Council Bluffs and she is running with other men," meaning thereby that the plaintiff was an adultress, etc. plaintiff also alleges that the defendant has spoken defamatory words of her at sundry times since July 28.

The grass in Bayliss park is sadly in need of water, and the fire department should be called into service for this work.
