

TOMMY TOO MUCH FOR THEM.

Minneapolis Ends Another Losing Series to the Omahans.

THE FLOUR CITY MEN SHUT OUT.

Des Moines Wins From Milwaukee—A Game Piece at St. Paul—The Maroons Larrup the Corn Huskers—Sporting News.

Western Association Standing.

Following is the official standing of the Western association teams up to and including yesterday's games:

Table with columns: Team, Played, Won, Lost, Pct. Rows include St. Paul, Omaha, Des Moines, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Sioux City, Chicago, Minneapolis.

Omaha 2, Minneapolis 0.

MINNEAPOLIS, August 14.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Tommy Lovett took the Flour City boys into camp today by his superb pitching five scattering singles being the extent of their ability to gauge his deceptive curves. Winkelman also pitched a fair game, but the Omahans managed to bunch their hits in the third and fourth innings, thereby winning the game. In the third inning hits by Clarke and Burns and a passed ball yielded Omaha's first run. In the fourth Conroy's single, a passed ball and a sacrifice gave Omaha its second and last run. From this to the close the pitchers did well, and were well supported. The score:

Scorecard for Omaha vs Minneapolis. Columns: AB, R, H, SB, PO, A, E. Rows for both teams and totals.

Omaha 3, St. Paul 0.

ST. PAUL, August 14.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—St. Paul and Kansas City played two games at Athletic park this afternoon, winning one each. In the first game the Cornhuskers pitched hard in the first three innings, after which he settled down and pitched superbly; but his brass came too late, as the Blues had crossed the plate seven times, giving them a lead St. Paul could not overcome, owing to the magnificent work of Ed Nichols. The score:

Scorecard for Omaha vs St. Paul. Columns: AB, R, H, SB, PO, A, E. Rows for both teams and totals.

Game For Each at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, August 14.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—St. Paul and Kansas City played two games at Athletic park this afternoon, winning one each. In the first game the Cornhuskers pitched hard in the first three innings, after which he settled down and pitched superbly; but his brass came too late, as the Blues had crossed the plate seven times, giving them a lead St. Paul could not overcome, owing to the magnificent work of Ed Nichols. The score:

Scorecard for Omaha vs St. Paul. Columns: AB, R, H, SB, PO, A, E. Rows for both teams and totals.

Des Moines 6, Milwaukee 3.

MILWAUKEE, August 14.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Milwaukee and Des Moines played the last game of their series today in spite of the rain, which fell heavily at intervals. Milwaukee lost the game in the fourth inning when Stephens sent three men to base on balls in succession and was hit safely by the next man. The game was called at the end of the sixth inning. The score:

Scorecard for Des Moines vs Milwaukee. Columns: AB, R, H, SB, PO, A, E. Rows for both teams and totals.

Chicago 8, Sioux City 5.

CHICAGO, August 14.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Captain Hergie had Douglas down on the score card to catch in the game today, but Hoover had patched up his mutilated fingers and was allowed to again go in against Sioux City at his own request. Sprague put in a few of his big barrel-hoop curves, and the Corn Huskers went into the field. Captain Hoover had an alleged phenomenon from the lone star state in the box and he saw shooting stars going in all directions before the first inning was over. He was hit unmercifully throughout, while Sprague pitched a fairly good game. The score:

Scorecard for Chicago vs Sioux City. Columns: AB, R, H, SB, PO, A, E. Rows for both teams and totals.

Joe Walsh Sold to Milwaukee.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., August 14.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Manager Gooding today sold Winkelman, Walsh and Hayes to Milwaukee for $250,000. The price secured in a nominal one, and Manager Gooding's principal reason for selling was to cut down the salaries. The three men, Winkelman and Hayes were each paid $250 a month and Hayes got $300. Manager Gooding will fill the places with cheap men and finish the season in order to hold the franchise.

Other Games.

Yesterday's Winners in the National League Contests.

Table of National League winners. Columns: Team, Score.

Washington, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of Washington game results. Columns: Team, Score.

St. Louis, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of St. Louis game results. Columns: Team, Score.

St. Paul, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of St. Paul game results. Columns: Team, Score.

Chicago, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of Chicago game results. Columns: Team, Score.

Pittsburgh, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of Pittsburgh game results. Columns: Team, Score.

Washington 8, Pittsburgh 7, Errors—Washington 8, Pittsburgh 7, Errors—Valencia.

Philadelphia, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of Philadelphia game results. Columns: Team, Score.

New York, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of New York game results. Columns: Team, Score.

American Association.

Cincinnati, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of Cincinnati game results. Columns: Team, Score.

Kansas City, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of Kansas City game results. Columns: Team, Score.

Louisville, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of Louisville game results. Columns: Team, Score.

St. Louis, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of St. Louis game results. Columns: Team, Score.

Cleveland, August 14.—Result of today's game:

Table of Cleveland game results. Columns: Team, Score.

Chadron 21, Traveling Men 18.

CHADRON, Neb., August 14.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—A game between the traveling men who were Sundaying here and the merchants of Chadron was played at Base Ball park Sunday afternoon. The brilliant catch of a long fly by Patrick, Frank's base running, Pate's fine work on first base and a double play by Coleman and Drake were the principal features of the game. The score:

Scorecard for Chadron vs Traveling Men. Columns: Team, Score.

Army 11, Guards 9.

Three hundred people witnessed yesterday's game at the park between nine of the Omaha Guards and officers stationed at Fort Omaha. The score:

Scorecard for Army vs Guards. Columns: Team, Score.

Seward's Base Ball Tournament.

SEWARD, Neb., August 14.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The base ball association of Seward has decided on holding a tournament August 22, 23 and 24. The grounds have been recently enclosed and a grand stand erected, and all other needed improvements made, so that at present she has a diamond second to none in the state. Seward has railroad facilities also which make her a very favorable point for the successful carrying out of an athletic program. Sixteen trains entering and leaving the city each day, for the accommodation of travelers. Her hotel accommodations are good and the grounds are clean and well watered. The game will be made up, for the occasion, which will be divided as follows: First prize, $225; second prize, $125; third prize, $80. The entering clubs will be restricted to not up 25, or 10 per cent of the entire purse. Those wishing further information will correspond with C. A. Bemis, secretary of the association.

CRANSTON'S CHALLENGE.

He Wants to Win the Richard K. Fox Medal.

SOUTH OMAHA, August 11.—Sporting Editor of THE BEE: I understand from Richard K. Fox that in order to win the medal, four three minute rounds must be contested with six ounce gloves. I will agree to box Mr. Jim Lindsay ten rounds with three ounce gloves for the Richard K. Fox medal and the middleweight championship of the world. The contest to take place within twenty-five miles of the city of Omaha some Sunday morning to be mutually agreed upon between you and me. I will make a fair offer for Mr. Lindsay any place he may name to sign articles of agreement. Yours,

WILLIAM G. CRANSTON.

Wants a Bench Show.

To the Sporting Editor of THE BEE: With your permission I would like to ask the dog-fanciers of Omaha—Where is your ambition? You after years we have a fair in our city, where, with a little trouble and expense, we can meet and show our dogs. Every man has his hobby or fancy, and I am sure that all dog-fanciers will agree with me that there is no more fascinating and profitable hobby than dog-fancy. It is very hard to break. Once a fancier, always a fancier. With these facts before me, I thought I would say a few words in favor of the dog show of Omaha and elsewhere, to see if we cannot get up a dog show this coming September in connection with the poultry department of the Omaha fair. Brother fanciers let us hear from you through THE BEE.

RICHARD FRANCIS.

Jack Dempsey in Town.

Jack Dempsey, the redoubtable Nonpareil, and the champion middle-weight of the world, was in Omaha for several hours yesterday. He came in on the 9 o'clock train from Chicago, and left on the 12:30 train for Denver. While here the distinguished pug was the guest of Prof. Ed. Miller, J. P. O'Neill, the actor, Jack Nugent and little Babe Barnes. They dined and wined the peerless Jack in sumptuous style, and gave him a great deal of love and attention. The foot of the Rockies. A Bee reporter had a brief chat with the Nonpareil, who said he was going to Denver for a few weeks' pleasure and recreation. He has no fights on, but is in hopes of arranging for a go with Toff Wall, the noted English middle-weight, who is about to fight in the city. In case of a fallure here, the dauntless hero of the squared circle is ready for a meet with any man in the ring, having money and a good long tip-top, broad and brawny and rosy as a school boy, and looks, as he is, the ideal of his profession.

Prairie Gun Club Shoot.

The Prairie Gun club held its weekly shoot at Cut-Off lake yesterday, 25 blue rocks, 15 yards rise. Following are the scores made:

Table of Prairie Gun Club shoot scores. Columns: Name, Score.

Local Sporting Gossip.

Minnesota seems determined to guard the tail end.

The Minneapolis management have released Dave Rowe.

Mottis will be pitching regularly before the season closes.

John J. Hardin refereed a shooting match at Sioux City Monday.

Some woodcock and young teal and mallard have already been brought to the market.

La Roque had a brief experience with the Detroit. He is with the London, Canada, team now.

The Omahans have caught up with and passed Des Moines, and their friends are now looking for them to overhaul the Apostles this week.

Patsy Fallon, the popular sporting manager, has a little doubt as to whether Crayton and Lindsay will shortly meet for the Richard K. Fox medal.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat agrees with THE BEE that the recent Omaha-St. Paul 1 to 0 game in this city was a most remarkable contest. Omaha made fifteen hits, stole seven bases, made no errors and scored but a solitary tally. It was a most memorable game that Anderson umpired.

George Kendall, a well-known local all-round athlete, ran from Fort Omaha to Kirby's sporting headquarters on Sixteenth street, a distance of four miles, and ninety yards Monday evening, in 22:58. Kendall made the run for a prize valued at $25. The time probably covered for covering the distance was 23 minutes.

C. L. Erickson & Co. keep a nice line of fine Yacco, oranges and gutters. These goods are of the best make and sold very close. Call and examine them at 212 N. 10th st.

INTERESTING IOWA INKLINGS.

The Brown Poisoning Case on Trial at Mason City.

AN IMPORTANT WITNESS SECURED.

Discord in the Prohibition Ranks—Preparations Being Made For Grand Republican Ballies All Over the State.

The Brown Poisoning Case.

MASON CITY, Ia., August 14.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—H. B. Morgan, the detective who was employed in the Brown case, told his story to the court today. He related minutely the manner in which he let the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all he knows in the matter, and consequently startling developments are expected. Anderson was Brown's hired man. During Morgan's testimony Mrs. Brown frequently muttered: "What a lie! Unless his testimony is testimony is terribly false, the state back into the case, and the defendant. The coroner will be put on the stand to-morrow and will offer a letter in which Mrs. Brown states that she feigned sickness and requested him to hasten in his examination, as the strain was more than she could bear. Jim Anderson, who has thus far escaped a subpoena, and to whom Mrs. Brown showed such friendly relations, now promises to tell all