A Big Bustle on Broadway.

The Council Bluffs and Omaha Bridge company will begin this morning the work of laving their double track on Broadway for the new electric motor line. It is imperative that the work shall be done at once, as the iron must be laid before the paving can be done between Twelfth and Sixteenth streets, and the pavers will be up to Sixteenth street Wednesday. That an arrangement has been made between the bridge company and the local street car company for the use of the latter's Broadway line is certain, the "careful inquiries" of a morning contemporary to the contrary notwithstanding. The stone paving on Broadway is to be torn up and a double track laid from Sixteenth street to the Methodist church.

It is also stated that the bridge company will begin laying their tracks on Avenue A next Wednesday, and rush it along at the rate of a mile a day. The iron and ties are already on the ground and the work is in charge of Mr. A. Egbert, an old railroad man thoroughly skilled in track-laying, and formerly superintendent of the mountain division of the Union Pacific. Under his careful supervision there is no doubt as to the result. At the bridge all is bustle and activity. The work is being pushed as rapidly as possible, both day and night, and seven days in the week. fact there is to be no let up to the work until it is completed. At night the scene is lit up by two 2,000 candle power arc lights, turnished by the Omaha Electric Lighting company. One is placed on pier 1, on the west bank of the river, to light up the space be-tween that and pier 2, where the false work is being put in preparatory to erecting the first span across the channel. The other is placed on pier 2, which is erected on the large caisson. The great dent in the north end of the caisson, that was made by the driftwood

The Young Men's Meeting.

It was eminently fitting that one of the series of union services should be conducted by the christian young men of the city, a service essentially by the laity. Such an one was that of last evening at the Presbyterian church.

The service, though typical of the Y.

M. C. A., was none the less interesting.

An exercise of song began the services. In this Mr. Frank Wescott rendered a beautiful solo entitled "Over the Line." A prayer by Dr. Phelps and scripture reading by Dr. Cooley followed. Mr. E. E. Harkness, president of the association, conducted the exercises and made the in-

A Sound of Revelry By Night. There was a ball, also a brawl, at the Western house Saturday night. At the outset everything went smoothly, but after a while the good boys went home. Then it was "tuff." Bug juice was plenty. Somebody called somebody a liar and dared him to knock it off his shoulder. He knocked it, and there was a general melee. Frank Peterson tried to kick a hole in the wall, and the police put him in the hole in the cooler. Henry Hansen was invited outside to see somebody, and "somebody" drove a pair of "knucks" into his temple. Some others caught it in good shape, but they "made a sneak" before the police ar-rived. Obstructed Public Justice.

Colonel Dailey, county prosecuting attorney, waxes very wroth over the actions of Whitaker, the prosecuting witness in the case of Stark vs. Reese. in persistently keeping out of the way so as to avoid the necessity of appearing in court. The doughty colonel now proposes to make it interesting for Mr. Whitaker. The matter will be brought to the attention of the grand jury. and Whitaker will be charged with obstructing the administration of public justice, the penalty for which is a term in the pen. It seems that it is not so funny a matter after all for a witness who allows himself to be bought off by the other side.

Career of "Uncle" John Robinson. N. Y. Times-John Robinson, the veteran showman, died in Cincinnati a few days ago. He had been for some weeks in a critical condition. He was more than eighty years of age, yet until within a very short time 'he main-tained a remarkable degree of vigor. "Uncle" John Robinson's father was

A shipwreck in Hell Gate cured him of a desire for a scafaring life. A not very pleasant experience under a Newport landford gave him a distaste for hotel keeping, and he jumped at a chance to travel with Colonel Page's menagerie. Thus began his connection with the traveling show, and for about twenty years he was first a familiar and then a prominent figure in some one of the many exhibitions which were then delighting both city and country people Four years with Page & McCracken's circus made him an accomplished and daring performer. He traveled all over the country. He was with Turner's cirus, Stewart's amphitheatre, in Boston; Hawkin's circus, Benedict & Haddoch's circus, and the Zoological institute, all well known in their time.

By this time he had begun to think that he might turn his experience to more profit. He organized a circus of his own at St. Louis, and, under contract with the American theatre of New Orleans, exhibited in Havana and this country. Then he traveled on his own account, his purse filling rapidly as the years passed, and in 1840 he was able to build the National theatre in New Orleans. Two years later he sold out his venture in that city with great profit to himself. Since 1652 Cininnati has been his headquarters, and from that city he directed for many years all his enterprises, and univerally with success. His fortune has been placed at over $1,000,000.

The Lightning Flash.

An interesting report of the Royal Meteorological society of London, England, has been recently published in science, relative to photographic representations of lightning flashes. From sixty photographs obtained there were six distinct types of flashes observed,

1. Stream lightning, a plain, broad smooth streak of light. 2. Sinuous lightning, an irregular flash, preserving, however, a tine in one general direction. The thickness of this line varies greatly, often expanding considerably in the middle.

3. Ramified lightning, in which the flash is branched at one extremity, like the roots of a tree. 4. Wandering lightning, a wandering flash, often forming loops, and preserving no definite course.

5. Beaded or chapleted lightning.containing distinct brighter spots along the line, supposed to be points where the flash was altered in its course ab-

6. Ribbon lightning, a common type. often partaken of by other forms in part in their course. There is some doubt about the accuracy of ribbon flashes by the camera, and the society hopes to be able to make new trials to verify these results. It is a noticeable fact that the zigzag form is nowhere seen. The society is desirous of obtaining other photographs of lightning flashes, and invites contributions from any who may have obtained

American match-makers say that"the improvements to be looked for in the matches in the future will concern quality rather than cheapness." is as it should be. Some of the matches recently made were of such poor quality that the marriage was soon followed by a divorce. Matches of the future should have no brimstone about them. Some of the most expensive ones of late years have been much poorer in quality than many which were so cheap that the minister received only 50 cents for making two one.
