Omaha 5, St. Paul 4.

Never was the soundness of the old adage that a game of ball is not over until the last man is put out more strikingly exemplified than in yesterday's game at the local park between Omaha and St. Paul.

When the Apostles forged ahead in the eighth inning many of the spectators started to leave the ground under the mistaken idea that the day was lost.

But in the ninth McGarr came to the rescue as he has often done before, with the right kind of a hit, and finally he reached the plate with the tying run amid a scene of the wildest jubilation.
But read the details and chuckle to your selves.

The Poet opened things up in the liveliest, most promising kind of a way, by lining out a safe hit to left. Annis, Crooks and O'Connell went out however, and he was left. It was even shorter work with the Apostles Not a man even had a chance to start for

The Omahas netted a goose egg in the secyou could hardly make out how it was all done, they had gobbled up a couple of the largest, healthiest, most robust runs you ever Pickett made a line bit to center, and then Mr. Earle hit Mr. Lovett a smash that fairly made the audience gasp for breath. Away out over Billy Annis' head the ball soared like a thing of life, and finally fell a mere speck among the carriages. It was a home run, and the air looked murky with

But a little thing like that didn't amaze Lovett a particle, and he proceeded to strike out the next two men, and the third was retired just as easy.

Still there were those two runs upon the bulletin board and the people felt sad.

The Omahas fought deperately, and re-

The Omahas fought deperately, and resorted to everything which fertile brains could conceive, but they could not get a tally home until the sixth.

And this is how they did it. Annis made a hit, and Foxy Crooks after several commendable efforts to get in the ball's way, finally succeeded, and with a round bruise on his hip where the sphere had landed he ran and took his base. Everybody laughed on his hip where the sphere had handed as ran and took his base. Everybody laughed, of course, and hallooed "Good boy, Crooks."

O'Connell then stepped up and drove one with whiskers all over it right at the man who used to keep a hotel. But Mr. Riley was there and he froze to the ball and of course Annis was forced out, but Crooks made second on the play. Cooney hit to Pickett, and Pickett juggled, and he was safe while Crooks reached third. The next moment he scored, as Cooney adroitly stole

In the seventh two more runs were made. McGarr made a two bag-ger and Nagle followed with single, on which Chippey ran down to third. As Nagle essayed to steal second, Mac tried to steal home, but he was caught by a lightning threw of Corbett to Brough-ton. Lovett struck out, but Burns made his third safe hit, on which Nagle reached home. Annis' handsome two-bagger brought Burns in and Omaha was one ahead. Crooks ended innings by going out from Pickett to Morrissey.

In their half the visitors tied the score.

On an error by Cooney, Pickett got his base on an error by Cooney, stole second and scored on Broughton's hit.

It was a blank for Omaha in the eight, but the Apostles got in another tally and once more were in the lead. After Tuckerman had flied out, Murphy hit a hard, sharp grounder over the first base bag. O'Connell made a plucky dive at it, but just got his fingers on it and it swerved off to the right fleld fence, and hid itself in the grass long enough for Murphy to make the circuit.
Everybody was now ready to give up, tust stole second and scored on Broughton's his Everybody was now ready to give up, just as if they didn't know the Chippey wa deck. He opened up the ninth with a line hit over short, stole second of course, and then after Nagle had fouled out, Lovett made a corking single, and amidst a deafening up roar the game was again tied

It was a goose egg for both sides in the tenth, but on hits by Nagle, Lovett and Burns the Omahas managed to squeeze in a run in the eleventh, and the game was won Oh my! oh me! you ought to have heard the people yell.

The St. Pauls retired in order in their half and left the grounds filled with disgust and oatmeal water. It was a hard game for them to lose, and a great one for Omaha to It was the first extra-inning game ever played on these grounds.

The official score follows. It will show what great ball the Omahas played:

He scarcely alluded to Cleveland, but his speech was a perfect dampner on John Adams' presidential prospects.

THE HOSPITAL ROOF. Architect Meyers Insists that His Plans Are All Right.

Commissioners O'Keefe, Anderson and Mount yesterday accompanied Architect E. E. Meyers to the county hospital, to inquire into the complaints made by inspector Brown in regard to the strength of the iron roof, if made according to the specifications of the architect. Some of the iron supports were deemed by the inspector as of not suffi-cient thickness, but Meyers had no alterations to make. He said if any changes were made it would be to substitute iron of less weight for that which is being put in at pres ent. It is said there is some spite work in-volved in the complaint, the cause dating ack to the time when Meyers condemned a ron stairway in the Douglas county court house, that was being put in by the same company now doing the iron work on the company now doing the iron work on the county hospital. Meyers says he will take special precautions in seeing that the work is strictly in accordance with his specifications. Looking For a Model Building. EAMILY SLEEPERS. They Are a Step Between the Pullmans and Emigrants. The new style of sleeping car invented by Barkalow Brothers is a compromise between the Pullman and emigrant sleepers now in use. They will be finer in every way than the latter and the accommodations will cost only about one-third as much as would asked for in a Pullman. They are to be known as "family sleepers." They will be carpeted, have curtains, mattresses, blankets and pillows, and ladies' and gentlemen's toilet and wash rooms. They will also have upper and lower berths and will be divided into twelve sections. The contract of the Pullman company is They berths exclusive allowing none but holders of first class tickets to enjoy them. They are also so ironclad as to interfere with the introduction of any other system for that class of passengers. The family sleeper therefore can only call for second-class passengers.

The new cars are to be ready for use tember 5, and at first but one a day will be used each way. The expense of the introused each way. The expense of the intro-duction of the invention is being borne by

She also said that his course had been a wayward for years that his course had been so wayward for years that she could but pray for him. She enclosed one dollar as a proof of her affection, and hoped that he a proof of her affection, and hoped that he would get better at the hospital, where he would get better attention than she could give him. Killed In a Collision.

BURLINGTON, Ia., August 27 .- About 3:30 this afternoon a collision occurred on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy main line, sixty miles west of here. A construction train had proceeded west from here and passed through Krum and did some work a few miles beyond. A flagman was left at Krum to ston any trains that might be following. After completing the work the construction train backed up to Krum in order to reach the siding and allow a train from the west to go by. In some manner as yet un-known the flagman allowed the west-bound extra to go past and through town, and just west of there it dashed into the caboose of the construction train, which was running backwards at the time. The engine of the extra and ten cars were totally wrecked and the track torn up, being blockaded for seven hours. Roadmaster G. A. Rose, Dennis Griffin and Patrick Kready were killed, and a number of others, including the engineer of the wrecked engine, were more or less in jured, but none seriously. Rose lives at Burlington, and the other two men at Pairfield All leave large families. Trains are running again to-night.

Struble's Popularity.

DES MOINES, Ia., August 27 .- [Special to The Bee. |-- Iowa has done pretty well by its congressmen this year. So far but one has failed to be renominated, and from present appearances not more than one, possibly two, of those remaining will fail to secure this compliment. Of course that doesn't imply that they will all be elected, but it is a compliment to be renominated by those who made the first selection. Among those re-nominated, Major Conger, of this district, is selected for a third term. Colonel Hen-derson, of Dubuque, and Captain Struble, of LeMars, are selected for fourth terms.
"Why is it," a gentleman from the Eleventh district was recently asked, "that

Congressman Struble has no opposition and is given the unusual honor of a renommation for a fourth term by acclamation. Are you short of statesmen in northwestern lowa that one man can have a perpetual lease on the office?

"Not that, at all," was the reply. "Captain Struble is kept in office because he looks after his constituents so faithfully, and treats everybody alike. Consequently, no one is fighting him, and he is the most popular man in the district. When it comes to looking after his constituents, no one can beat him, and it makes no difference to him whether they are democrats or republicans, friends or enemies—they are all well-treated. Why, some time ago Mr. Struble, who is a great prohibitionist, you know, prosecuted a saloonkeeper at LeMars and drove him out of the business, causing him a loss of a good deal of money invested in the business, not to say other losses incurred. Not long ago this ex-saloonkeeper took a notion he would go into one of the territories and take up land, but he needed some information about what to do, and so wrote to Struble. I don't suppose he had any idea that his letter would be answered, for he hated Struble like the dickens; but, will you believe it? our congressman started right out and nearly ran his legs off in trying to find out what his enemy, the ex-saloonkeeper, wanted, and then he wrote him a nice letter, beginning 'Dear Jim.' Do you wonder that he is popular, and that we have just nominated his for a second term!

Sioux City Jobbers. Sioux City, Ia., August 27.- Special to The Bee. - There is a grievous disappointment among Sioux City jobbers and business men over the final refusal of the Illinois Central to abide by its previously announced cut on fifth-class freight from 25 to 20 cents, between Chicago and Sionx City. They have been working for six or eight months to secure this concession They had gone to the extreme lengths of subserviency to the railroad companies, three time last winter and spring sending delega tions to Des Moines to lobby in the legislature at the bidding of the roads. They had absolutely isolated themselves from public sympathy in Iowa on the railroad question. hoping thus to "lay up" on the soft side of the corporations. Now they get their reward. The Illinois Central yields to the pressure of the other roads and refuses the relief which This puts the Sioux City jobbers back to where they were nearly a year ago-in fact, in worse plight, because the corpora relief which is claimed to be compatible with he further existence of the jobbing trade at sloux City. To say that the jobbers and business men are indignant is a weak expression, but they refuse to be interviewe or publication. They are confused as to what they will or can do. Attempts to inter view them show that they have a vague hope of relief somehow and at some time, but how Hot Congressional Campaigns. DES MOINES, Ia., August 27-| Special to THE BEE. |-Southwestern Iowa is likely to be the liveliest or about as lively a battle ground as there will be in the state this Congressman Anderson announces year. Congressman Andreas independent standing on his Imogene platform of 1886, and his record in congress the past year. In this way he hopes to unite the entire opposi-tion in his support. Mr. Flick, the republican candidate, will get many votes that went to Anderson two years ago, because he is a good deal of an anti-monopolist himself. He was a member of the farmers' granger legislature of 1874, and has always been strongly inclined to anti-monopoly. Both men wil make a vigorous hand to hand contest. The Sixth district will also be hotly contested. Weaver's majority two years ago was so small that the republicans think they can overcome it. Major Lacy, the republican can-didate, has announced his canvass, and he will conduct it on the neighborhood plan.

An Original Package Suit. CARROLL, In., August 27 .- Special Tele gram to Tue Bes. ] -A decision was rendered in the district court here to-day deciding the first original package case ever tried in the state, and will, if sustained, affect the entire temperance legislation of Iowa. The case in question was that of Offenback B. Selzer. with Blum of Chicago, for the defense, and M. W. Beach, of Carroll, for the plaintiff. Selzer is in the original package business here, and has an humense trade in liquors. The defendant set up the plea that "the right to import impiles the right to sell." and Judge Conner's decision upholds the defense and denies the injunction against Selzer. The decision has created quite a sensation.

Des Moines' Transit Troubles DES MOINES, fa., August 27.—[Special to THE BEE.]—Des Moines is having a great time over the various attempts to secure rapid transit to different parts of the city. One company will make a start, get a charter from the city council, and then an injunction from indignant citizens, and quit. Another project will be started and end about as ab Everybody wants rapid transit, but to have the cars go on the next street istead of by their own houses. At present the talk is for a noiseless steam moto as is being used with great success in Bir mingham Ala. But some of the propert owners are lighting it on the ground that if would frighten horses, be dangerous to pedes trians and depreciate their property.

An Attempted Assassination. DUBUQUE, Ia., August 27 .- | Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-A dastardly attempt at murder was made early yesterday morning. Mr. A. S. Wilkinson, assistant train dis patcher for the Milwaukee road, was awakened by a shot fired near his house about 2:30 a. m. After he had risen he found on examination that a bullet had been fired through his front window on a line with the bed occupied by himself and wife. The ball struck the bedstead within a few inches of his head, then passed through the folding door and lodged in the opposite wall. He is at a loss to know why such an attempt should be made

The Twelve Temptations at Boyd's Last Night.

A very large and enthusiastic audience was present at Boyd's opera house last even ing to witness the initial production of Gilmore's "Twelve Temptations" here. It can be said, that the performance was a brilliant success. The stage settings were marvels in their way, while the scenic effects and mechanical execution was something at once pronounced and increduious. It would be invidious to criticise other than in a compli-mentary way. With a little more activity with the infusion of a trifle more spirit and esprit, with a general symmetrical rounding, and the "Tweive Temptations" will prove an achievement that will create a furore throughout the theatrical and amusement circles of the country, if not the world. Everybody seemed pleased fast night, and the demonstrative approval of hand and voice must have been something delightfully encouraging to the management.

As a whole the production is a success, and and will prove a greater one after it has undergone a judicious condensing process.

Songs, specialties and strange and novel in-cidents are introduced with a rapidity that is as bewildering as it is pleasing. Every effort is made to gratify the tastes of a crit There are astounding illusious and impressive transformations, and a ver itable fantasy of hobgoblins, sprites, nymphs spooks, gnomes, dragons, abnormal birds ophidious monsters, colossal behemoths and innumerable ferocious and frightful creations of the earth and all and more than is therein. There are also no less than a triumvirate of ballets, whose wondrous evolutions, pirouettes and tortuous gyrations, whose dazzing habiliments and striking tableaux cannot fail in producing the most notable and extraordinary effect. The piece, too, is eplete with the most thrilling climaxes, and he spectator is kept in a constant fever to know what wonder comes next. The ballet of cockatoos was one of the most charm-ing features of the evening's entertain-ment and evoked tremendous applause. To the delicious strains from the orchestra twenty fairies appear in their terpichorean divertisement, with a live cockatooe each upon a gilt perch held aloft, and carried flut tering and chattering all through the reticu-lated evolutions of the dance.

To embody the "Twelve Temptations" within a single word, it is but necessary to say that it is a veritable microcosm, a world n miniature, a concatenation of wondrous preumstances, wondrous things and won trous doings. The costumes are paragons of magnificence, and the scenic and mechanical contrivances something that must command the admiration of all beholders.

Mr. Charles H. Yale, the author of this in eresting story and its ingenious dramatization, is the director of the performance and judging from the gentleman's long experionce and familiarity with such matters he will shortly bring the "Twelve Temptations" to a perfection surpassed by no spectacular production occupying attention in this age The performance will run until 11 o'clock to-night and the mechanical execution will be much nearer perfection than on last eve-ning. Same bill the entire week.

It would be well for people to purchase them as far as possible. so as to avoid the rush at the gates of the amphitheater. Everything is in readiness for the opening on Thursday evening, and judging from the pleasant smiles on the faces of the score or more who have the production in charge it will in every way be a brilliant and successful one, Mr. H. B. Thearle, manager, who is quartered at the Paxton, says there is much more money be ing expended in making this a grand and perfect exhibition than was done at an Beach, where Sebastopoi was produced with such marvelous success and satisfaction last season. The fireworks displays will be simply gigantic in their magnitude and
