NORA ROSS CASE.

She is Acquitted on the Charge of Cutting Dice.

The case of Nora Ross was brought up in the police court this afternoon. The charge of cutting Charles Dice was dismissed, as Dice could not prove that the woman had cut him. He could not tell whether a woman or a man had done it, and admitted that he was too drunk to know whether he did or not. The woman was then arraigned on the charge of disturbing the peace. Attorney Alex Green defended her. He and Assistant City Attorney Strawh had a little controversy, which McFawn felt agreed to the extent that he declared his intention of resigning his position.

J. M. Tanner, a reporter, testified to the fact that Nora Ross had him in an interview that she had not cut Dice.

Leonard Heywood told the story of the Rosses. How he had accompanied Dice and Nora Ross to the Casino, and thence to Dot & Dart's saloon. His story was substantially the same as published in the papers when the fracas occurred.

The reporter was a witness to the effect that both parties were guilty of the charged disturbing the peace. The court fined the Ross woman $50 and costs, and Dice $35 and costs. "Auntie Gould" paid Nora's fine and Dice went back to the "tank," being unable to pay the $35. Dice had a silver dollar and shovled it across the desk at him, saying: "That's for you." The judge looked up in amazement. Then realizing the situation, he picked up the dollar and handed it back to Nora, privately gatting the money and handing it to "Auntie" who grinned. His honor excused "Auntie" on account of her ignorance.

LOOKING TO LINCOLN.

The direction in which are turned Democratic Delegates' Eyes.

The democratic state convention is to be held in Lincoln this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

It has been called to nominate a governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, auditor of public accounts, attorney general, commissioner of public lands and buildings and a superintendent of public instruction.

It will consist of 405 delegates, thirty-five of whom are from Colfax as follows:

Hussie, A. Hoben, C. F. Williams, Edward Martin, J. F. Gainer, J. G. Shaeff, McMenamy, Frank Powell, J. Waiters, E. H. Stout, B. F. Hayes, J. W. Goodhart, W. G. Geisen, J. W. Paddock, Charles Williams, James McArdle, M. M. Barr, L. W. Denton, Charles Tietz, Ed. Walker and Dr. H. Link.

A mass convention of democratic clubs of the state will also be held to-day in Lincoln. This will be attended by a large number of delegates from all parts of the state, the number being variously estimated at from two to five thousand. The object of the gathering is to decide upon an energetic campaign by the holding of meetings under the auspices of local clubs, disseminating campaign literature and advertising the names of candidates.

At the time of the meeting it is to be expected that the state convention, which it is believed will be received from John A. McShane. In it, it is claimed, Mr. McShane positively declined to be a candidate for re-election to congress. This fact emboldened the members of the convention to hold a vote against Thayer, on the ground that he might possibly defeat that gentleman. McShane's friends hold that the gubernatorial position would not interfere with McShane's health and business. McShane's side moved, and then pointed out to be right. Charles Ogden is to be run, Charles Ogden will be nominated for auditor.

BIG CONFIDENCE GAME.

A Worthless Draft on an Omaha Firm for $3,374.

The name of Savage & Green, of South Omaha, was used in St. Paul the other day by a swindler in several confidence games. A roguish passing under the name of L. S. Burns, bought $100 steers of Cunningham & Haas of St. Paul for $3,374.30. He said he was a lawyer from South Omaha representing Savage & Green, and having an oily tongue he succeeded in getting the firm to accept a bill on the Omaha firm for the cattle. Burns then sold the steers and disappeared. Savage & Burns deny having such a man in their employ and disclaim all responsibility for the transaction. Of course they refused the draft. But it is supposed that he had to the state. Detective Dan O'Connor of St. Paul is on his trail, and has requisition papers ready for business.
