Sherman and Allison on the Republican Tariff Measure.

THE OUTLOOK FOR ADJOURNMENT.

A Prophecy That it Will Come Within a Fortnight—The Irrigation Problem—English Sentiment Regarding Cleveland.

Not to be Bullied.

WASHINGTON HERALD (The Omaha Bee), Sept. 14.—The House of Representatives today took up the tariff bill.

A debate occurred in the senate this afternoon between Senator Vest on the one side and Senators Allison and Sherman on the other, which revealed the fact that the democrats are very anxious to have the republicans report their tariff bill immediately.

In reply to the assertion by Senator Vest that the republicans did not intend to report a tariff bill before the November election, Mr. Sherman stated that the republicans proposed to not only report a bill, but pass it.

They do not propose, however, he said, to be bullied or intimidated by having their measure reported by the senate until they have given a full hearing to the industries which the bill will most directly affect, and until such a bill is completed as will best foster American industries and American laborers and as will pass the senate.

He gave notice that if the democrats proposed to either force the republicans to report their bill before they are ready, or to wait until the senate takes the initiative in the matter of adjournment, the democrats will be sorely disappointed.

Senator Allison, who is at the head of the sub-committee preparing the tariff bill, scored the Mills bill and the party behind it. He agreed with Senator Sherman that the bill was an atrocious piece of legislation and would run our manufacturing and industrial interests.

He said the republicans proposed keeping right along in their work of preparing a bill till they have one which will be perfect in comparison with the Mills bill, and that they do not propose to submit to an adjournment of congress till they are ready to report the bill they have now nearly completed.

He reminded the democrats that the condition of the finances did not demand reckless tariff legislation, such as the Mills bill proposes.

In an interview to-night Senator Hissick, who is a member of the committee on finance, said that the democrats were determined to make a good bill, and keep at work upon it till it meets the approval of the senate.

He said that the republicans were very anxious to make a strong and judicious bill and that, as Senator Allison stated, they would not be led before the public the day it was completed. It is believed that the democrats in caucus next Tuesday night will agree to an adjournment of congress till they have a bill and that congress will not be in session more than from two to three weeks.

Major Powell, director of the geological survey, was at the capital to-day and said to The Bee correspondent in reference to the irrigation bill that he would be glad to make out his plans, but that work will begin in Colorado at the headwaters of the Platte and Arkansas rivers, and that the progress down the course of these streams.

There will also be parties sent to other sections of the country about the same time, but he has not yet received his plans, and he must first consider the question of the irrigation campaign in the United States, to which he replied that he would be glad to see the re-election of Cleveland; that Englishmen considered the success of Cleveland as one of Great Britain's most important commercial affairs.

He said that if Cleveland was re-elected that there would be practically free trade between the two countries within four years. He said that it would be of immense benefit to his business, and that he was willing to do everything he could to secure the success of the democratic ticket.

FIFTIETH CONGRESS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—In the senate Mr. Platt's resolution of yesterday in reference to the copper syndicate was taken up and there was an extended debate upon it. The discussion, which drifted to the question of the tariff bill, became general. Mr. Sherman, in reply to the charge that the tariff bill was a protectionist measure, declared that the committee on finance would report a "republican" tariff bill designed to protect and foster American industries, as against the free trade Mills tariff bill, which was intended to and did weaken many of the industries of the country.

The bill to be reported by the committee would be a tariff bill, and would "sweep away" the tariff laws now in force. It would give to the tariff laws the force of law, and would give to the tariff laws the force of law.

It would give to the tariff laws the force of law, and would give to the tariff laws the force of law. It would give to the tariff laws the force of law, and would give to the tariff laws the force of law.

Among the passengers were several from the Columbus encampment at Columbus. Hot water and steam from the boiler poured into the coaches, and the passengers that had not been hurt by broken timbers were scalded. The engine of the passenger train, which, with two express cars, had safely passed the switch, was immediately taken to Independence and Belleville, and all the doctors in those places were taken to the wreck. The passengers who were not hurt by the wreck were taken to the spot all but four or five were out of the engine coaches. Among the injured were Charles and P. Luckens, the express agent, were firmly pinned under the wreckage.

HARRY TOMLINSON, the freight engineer, was four between the switch and the wreck, his engine with the front part of his head blown off. He resided at Newark, O. DAY OF ATONEMENT.—IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES AT THE HEBREW SYNAGOGUE.—YON KIPPER, N. Y., Sept. 14.—A day of atonement for the Hebrew faith, commenced at sundown last evening. At 7 o'clock the Jewish synagogue on Harney street was thronged with the faithful. Rabbi Benson entered the synagogue clad in the vestments of his faith, and in the presence of the congregation, he read the white scroll, called "Levit," the emblem of purity, and the mitre, the headpiece of the Jewish priest, from time immemorial, was drawn over his head. The service was in Hebrew and English, interspersed with responses by the choir.

The most important of religious holidays observed by the Jews is the day of atonement, which is connected with historical and traditional observances. Even in this day of scientific theories, the Jews are not a Hebrew who would deliberately violate the observance of the day, and with a limited exception, every observance is scrupulously observed.

When the services opened last evening there were present on the rostrum with the rabbi, the president of the organization, Meyer Hellman, and the vice president, Samuel Katz. Near the ark sat the venerable Father and were given a reception. The party included ex-President Hayes, Governor Beaver of Pennsylvania, Governor Alger and Mrs. Alger of Michigan, Governor Frazier of Nebraska, General W. B. Kennerly, Colonel Fred Grant and wife, Mrs. Governor Foraker and Mrs. John A. Logan.

After the services had opened last evening and the prayers and anthems had been sung, the choir sang the Kol Nidra, or Oh, Day of Atonement, which is a beautiful and touching music. The music of this hymn is traditional, and was sung thousands of years ago in Solon's temple, and is still sung in the synagogues which rendered this and other ancient oriental music superbly. It is composed of Messrs. Pennell and Wilkins. Mrs. Cotton and Miss Benson gave as the text for his evening lecture, I Kings, III, 17. He spoke extemporaneously and touched the soul of Solomon, who when tempted with power, riches and fame, chose only wisdom. Riches, he said, brought oftentimes more misery than they conferred. He had known of the miser grasping for wealth, surrounded by more misery than poverty could bestow. Power, which was the outcome of wealth and influence, was also worthless. Fame was ephemeral and was not worth striving for. He always accompanied by good works in our prayers.

He said he urged his congregation to guard against the temptation of the day, and that their posterity should uphold the principles of the Hebrew people. From the large congregation assembled he knew that the Jewish faith was dead.

The audience was profoundly impressed with the lecture, and the services were very much solemnized. Dr. Benson also said, that during the past year he had buried more of the faith than during the two previous years of his ministry. The rabbi is the only one in the state, and all of the Jewish religion who die within his jurisdiction are brought here for burial upon consecrated ground. During the service the ark, which contains copies on parchment of the original Hebrew pentateuch, or five books of Moses, was opened four times. He certain phases of the services the president of the congregation stepped forward, withdrew the two curtains, and after the solemn services, closed them again. The ark is always placed at the east end of the synagogue, and during certain invocations, as a tribute of reverence, the doors are opened there.

To-day the Rabbi will conduct the services, assisted by M. Keller. The congregation numbers 113 members. Great credit is due Dr. Benson for the purity and prosperity of his synagogue which has been accomplished by such hard work.
