

AMONG THE SOCIAL PEOPLE.

Marrriages and Rumors of Marrriages. PRESIDENT ADAMS IS DINED. An Aesthetic Social—The Guild is Entertained—The Patrick Coaching Party—Minor Society Events.

He's Had His Day. Where is the count who cut a dash. The man of flatterer tongue. Who at the seaside used to mash. The maidens old and young?

Mr. Adams is Dined. A number of the leading citizens of Omaha tendered Mr. Charles Francis Adams, the president of the Union Pacific railroad, a dinner at the Union club on Wednesday.

An Oscar Wilde Sociable. The Ladies' Aid society of the Westminister Presbyterian church, gave a sociable last Tuesday evening at the comfortable home of Mrs. W. Randall, 829 Park avenue.

A large gathering of the youth and beauty of the city participated in the enjoyments of the evening and each guest was the recipient of a sunflower bouquet at the hands of the hostess.

The Guild is Entertained. Mrs. J. U. Rose and Mrs. J. J. Huston entertained the members of the Guild of St. Barnaby on Wednesday evening.

Quartet (two pianos). Slavische Fanzu Mrs. Williams, Rose and Tracy Drake. Duet. Mrs. Williams, Rose and Neck Song. Mrs. Williams, Rose. Best of All Instrumental solo. Mr. East.

The Coaching Party. The Patrick coaching party is having such a delightful time on their unique excursion that the members will not return to Omaha until October.

An Eastern Opinion. In her letter to the Chicago Inter-Ocean, last week, Lillian Whitney, the well-known Boston correspondent, has this to say of one of our Omaha people: "Mr. Max Bachert, of Boston, a gentleman well-known in musical circles as manager, critic, and connoisseur, and socially as one of the most courteous and polished of men."

The Riding Club. The evenings have been delightful for horseback riding, and the interest in the saddle party still continues, no less than four having been held the past week. On Monday evening the club took a jaunt to South Omaha and Saddle Creek, Tuesday evening another to Fort Omaha, Friday night they took in Lake Manawa, and last evening the members rode to the lake and enjoyed a delightful moonlight party.

P. C. B. Lotus Club. The K. of P. hall on Saunders street was crowded with youth and beauty a couple of evenings ago, and the interest in the club is still high.

Wooden Wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Julius Nagel celebrated their wedding anniversary on Wednesday evening, and a large number of city officials and other well-known citizens were in attendance.

Prospective Marrriages. Mr. Ralph B. Sprague took his departure for Burlington, Vt., on Tuesday, where he is to be married the coming Wednesday to Miss Harriet A. Allen.

Mr. Alfred Millard is to be married next week to Miss Nellie Huges, of Pasadena, Cal. The marriage will take place at the bride's residence, and a number of Mr. Caldwell's friends will accompany him on the trip.

HE DREW THE BALL OF DEATH

"Three Years from this Date I will Kill Myself."

BAROTHY KEPT THE COMPACT.

The Sensational Suicide of the Young Hungarian in Chicago, the Carrying Out of a Pledge of Honor.

He Fulfilled His Promise. In the report which has come to this city of the suicide of Oers Barothy, formerly of Omaha, disappointment in love was assigned as the cause of the melancholy act.

Both were greatly overwrought in feelings over the shooting, and tearfully produced evidence to show that their brother had not killed himself because of an affair of the heart. The evidence came, as it were, from the grave, because it was couched in words written by the deceased on the 12th instant, on the day of his death. The letter was received yesterday. It was written upon mourning cold paper and enclosed in an envelope with a deep black margin. It was a lengthy missive, in the Hungarian language, and was written in a bold and firm hand. It told of the intended suicide, and stated the act was in recognition of his pledge, made three years ago, to his native land, to an enemy with whom he had a personal quarrel.

Barothy was a Hungarian. He possessed the indomitable spirit peculiar to his race. His personal honor was dearer than life itself. Three years ago on the 12th of this month he was mortally offended by an officer in the army at home. He challenged the soldier. The challenge was accepted with the usual privilege of selecting the weapons or the means to be used of satisfying the honor of both parties. In Hungary there are three methods allowable in such events, the sword, the pistol, or what is termed the "American plan." This consists in each party drawing one of two balls, a white or black, and the one who draws the black ball is bound to dispose of himself either by shooting, hanging, drowning, or any other manner which may be decided upon by the challenged party before the balls are drawn. Barothy drew the black or unlucky ball. It had been agreed that the drawer of the unlucky one should kill himself by shooting on the third anniversary of the duel. That anniversary took place last Wednesday. The night before he walked to the shore of Lake Michigan, in Chicago, and in remembrance of his word and honor, sent three bullets into his body and died.

For three years the fate that rested in his own hands seemed to have cast a shadow over his life, which he could not shake until the company of genial companions. And yet, not a mortal claim of the cause of his discomposure save his adversary and the seconds in the duel. His grief was not sufficient to deter him from the keeping of his promise. When he was leaving Omaha he did not conceal from his brothers because, as he said in his letter to them, he feared their influence and that it might induce him to remain in Omaha. Once, while visiting his brother in West Point, both took a drive. The buggy was upset and Oers was injured. The elder brother went over him in his pain, but Oers bore his injuries bravely and wished that he had been killed. On the day of his death, Oers bought a box of mourning stationery for writing his will and envelopes, and a box of paper. Yesterday the box was forwarded to the brother at West Point. In it were enclosed his will and envelopes. The others had been used in notifying his brothers, his adversary and the seconds in his duel, of the approach of his death. With those envelopes came photographs he had given by his brothers and those by Henry Pundt of this city, one of which was a picture of the laughter which Oers greatly admired. He stated that he did not fear to die and that he did not want his brothers to doubt him because he had in defense of his honor and his word.

Mr. K. Barthy said that Mrs. Sherwood had in no manner influenced his suicide and the reason he had not returned her photograph was lest the act would lead to a suspicion that something was wrong and that he might be sent to prison for accomplishing the act which he thought preserved the honor of himself and family. When the envelopes were opened the suicide shall have existed for some time, but he had been buried in Fremont in this city.

A Hanging On the Coast. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—Alexander Golden, who shot and killed a fourteen-year-old school girl named Mable Kelly in November, 1887, was hanged in the county jail a few minutes after noon to-day. No hanging since the days of the vigilance committees has excited greater interest on the Pacific coast. His crime came near causing a riot, and two ineffectual attempts were made to lynche him by assaulting the city jail, but in each instance serious disorder was prevented by the police. Golden was only eighteen years old, but was a boy of vicious habits.
