The following letter is self-explana-

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 3.—Hon. John A. McShane, Omaha, Neb.—Dear Sir: You and I have been made the nominees of our respective political parties for the governorship of this commonwealth. It seems to me that a fair and candid discussion of the issues which divide the two parties, state and national, will be of interest to the people. I therefore respectfully invite you to such a joint discus-sion. The same shall be conducted on my part in a respectful and manly way, observan of all the courtesies which characterize a legitimate debate, though you have been pleased to wage a personal and scurrilous warfare upon me since my nomination, through the Omaba Herald, a paper which you own and completely control, or you have sanctioned the same. Yet I pass that by. I have no liking for such a contest. It has always appeared to me to be characteristic of ignoble minds.
You have, through the Herald, sought to make it appear that I am an enemy of work-ingmen, because I signed the penitentiary contract extension bill. You have stated in the Herald: "It is plain that the exposure of fraud in connection with the work of the last rou have through the same channel charged me with dereliction of duty, because I did not drive the so-called "Pinkerton men" out of the state.

Now, it will give me extends

Now, it will give the extreme satisfaction to discuss these very questions fully and unreservedly before the people of Nebraska, to whom I am answerable for all of my official acts, and whose most rigid scrutiny I invite into every measure of my administration. If you have any evidence of "fraud in con-nection with the work of the last legislature" you cannot expose it to soon to suit me. The chairmen of our respective state central committees can designate the time and places for this debate.

An early reply is requested.

Very respectfully yours,

John M. Thayer.

GUS, MARY AND THE BOY.

Gus Saunders vs Mary Clark, is the title of a cause commenced in the county court yesterday afternoon, and there is an air of mystery about it that gives it zest and interest. Saunders is a well known gambler of this city and Miss Clark is recognized as a dove of the soiled variety. The contest between them is over the possession or guardi-anship of a four-year-old little boy. It develops this morning that neither of the parties claim the child's parentage Saunders gave his bond of $500 to antime, and in that way got possession of the Mattle fellow on an order from Judge Stewart, and went into hiding. Last night Mary secured a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Field and placed it in the hands of Sheriff Meleck for service, and Saunders was run to his hiding place, but the sheriff thought the matter over and concluded not to serve the writ unless he was secured by a bond. He feared that it might not prove healthy to break into the house and take the child without indemnity, and the matter thus stands at this, hour. What the rumpus is really over no one seems able to fathom. Mary wants the boy and so does Gus; this much only is evident. The parties to the contest both claim the little fellow by some unknown right, but refuse to make it known. The conviction settles that the parents of the child are playing a part in the drama, but the facts will probably deyelop when the case is called for hearing to-morrow.

The report of the commandant of the soldiers' and sailors' home shows that the institution has twenty-five inmates all of whom are in good health with a single exception. From five to seven-teen employes find a place on the state's pay roll, almost an attendant for each one of the inmates, and each one draws from $1.50 to $4 per day for the pleasurable work he performs. The institution seems to supply a long felt want from a good many standpoints. As a of the state it is all right, but when it goes beyond that it is all wrong.

Lincoln's Military Study.

In the following from the October in-stalment of Lincoln's Life in The Century, the fact is brought out that Lincoln was a serious student of mititary matters, even from a technical point of view: "All his [McClellan's] demands were complied with to the full extent of the power of the government. Not only in a material, but in a moral sense as well, the president gave him every-thing that he could. In addition to that mighty army, he gave him his full-est confidence and support. All through the autumn he stood by him, urging him in private to lose no time, but de-fending him in public against the popular impatience; and when winter came on, and the voice of congress, nearly unanimous in demanding active operations, added its authoritative tones to tions, added its authoritative tones to the clamor of the country, the president endangered his own popularity by insisting that the general should be allowed to take his own time for an advance. In the latter part of December, McClelian, as already stated, fell seriously ill, and the en-forced paralysis of the army that re-sulted from this illness and lasted several weeks added a keener edge to the public weeks added a keener edge to the public anxiety. The president painfully ap-preciated how much of justice there was in the general criticism, which he was doing all that he could to allay. He gave himself, night and day, to the study of the military situation. He read a large number of strategical works. He pored over the reports from the various departments and districts of the field of war. He held long conferences with eminent generals and admirals, and as-tonished them by the extent of his special knowledge and the keen intelli-gence of his questions. He at last convinced himself that there was no necessity for any further delay; that the army of the Potomac was as nearly ready as it ever would be to take the field against the enemy; and, feeling that he could not wait any longer, on the 10th of January, after calling at General McClellan's house and learning that the general was unable to see him, he sent for Generals McDowell and Franklin, wishing to take counsel with them in regard to the possibility of beginning active operations with the army before Washington."

Two Bad Dogs.

Philadelphia Record: A down-town colered caterer named George Wolford has a fine syke-terrier that answers to the name of Bob. On August 7 Mr. Wolford went to the "lodge." Bob pricked up his ears and wagged his tail as he made to the front door with his master. He wasn't wanted that night and was ordered back. As soon as the front door slammed, and Mr. Wolford was not in sight Bobby gave vent to his anger. He ran all over the house in search of his mistress to try his teeth on her, but, not finding the lady, he made a substitute of Jenny Minor, the colored servant girl. Jenny was bitten severely in the hand, which resulted in the amputation of a finger, and a sickness which deprived her of her sense of hearing on one side of her head. Yesterday Lawyer William C. Gross instituted proceedings for damages in the common pleas court in her behalf against Wolford. She claimed $5,000 lamages.

Mrs. Mary Seamans, aged 72 years, was attacked by a bloodhound belonging to Mr. Alfree Woolfram, who keeps a grocery store on Washington street, Mount Holly, on Friday, and was so badly bitten that her life is despaired of. The dog, which has heretofore been very peaceable, jumped at the woman and tore great strips of flesh from her arm before he was driven off. The animal was shot.

Canadian Courting Limit.

Detroit Tribune: Canadian girls, it is said, allow their lovers six months to make a decision. If the youth is particularly bashful and the young lady is indulgent she may give him a place on the sofa and accept contributions of the sap of the maple, with which he comes laden to her fresh from the forest, for another three months. But unless somewhere in that time he asks her to be his own he must seek other firesides. She doesn't weep at the parting or make any fuss over it. There are as good fish in the sea as ever were caught, she argues, and in that reflection she finds consolation for the misspent time. Canadian I were not even cotton gloves, and I'll girls are not only pretty, but they are tell you why: I didn't have money all trained to make good housekeepers. | enough to buy them."

"Nasal Voices, Catarrh and False Teeth."

A prominent English woman says the American women all have high, shrill, nasal voices and false teeth. Americans don't like the constant twitting they get about this nasal twang, and yet it is a fact caused by our dry stimulating atmosphere, and the universal presence of catarrhal difficul-

But why should so many of our women have false teeth? That is more of a poser to the English. It is quite impossible to account for it except on the theory of deranged stomach action caused by imprudence in eat-ing and by want of regular exercise.

Catarrhal troubles everywhere pre vail and end in cough and consumption, which are promoted by mal-nutrition induced by deranged stomach action.

Both conditions are unnatural.

The condition is a modern one, one unknown to our ancestors who prevented the catarch, cold, cough and consump-tion by abundant and regular use of what is now known as Warner's Log Cabin cough and consumption remedy and Log Cabin sarsaparilla, two oldfashioned standard remedies handed down from our ancestors, and now exclusively put forth under the strongest guarantees of purity and efficacy by the world-famed makers of Warner's safe cure. These two remedies plentifully used as the fall and winter season advance, together with an occasional use of Warner's Log Cabin rose cream, to strengthen and protect the nasal membranes, give a positive assurance of freedom, both from catarrh and those dreadful and if neglected, inevitable consequences, pneumonia, lung troubles and consumption, which so generally and fatally prevail among our people. Comrade Eli Fisher, of Salem, Henry county, Ia., served four years in the late war and contracted a disease called consumption by the doctors. He had frequent hemorrhages. After using Warner's Log Cabin cough and consumption remedy, he says, under date of Jan. 19.1888: "I do not bleed at the longs any more, my cough does not bother me, and I do not have any more smothering spells." Warner's Log Cabin rose cream cured his wife of ca-tarrh and she is "sound and well."

Of course we do not like to have our women called nose talkers and false teeth owners, but these conditions can be readily overcome in the manner in-

General Alger's Great Fortune.

Chicago Times: No one knows how much General Alger is worth. It is said that $10,000,000 would not exaggerate the amount. His money is all invested in pine and mineral lands, a rail-road of 150 miles, car works and a bank. He has made all his wealth within fifteen years. He saw far enough ahead to justify an investment in pine land of the few thousands of dollars he possessed by selling a small home in Detroit. He borrowed all he could secure besides with a good personal credit. For a few years he was several thousands of dollars worse off than nothing. Then pine grew scarce or became a part of large holdings and began to rise in value. That settled it for Alger. He was "all right." He had just displayed a lawyer's shingle in Grand Rapids, Mich., when the war broke out. A few months previous he had married. General Alger, in recently congratulating a young friend upon his matrimonial prospects, recalled his own.

"My wife wore a white dress and a pair of white cotton gloves when we were married," he said. "We took our wedding trip in a buggy from Grand Rapids to a little settlement called Grandville, about seven miles distant.

As the weather grows warm, the sale of James Pyle's Pearline Washing Compound rapidly increases. This proves that many women recognize the fact that PEARLINE makes washing and cleaning very much easier than when done with the ordinary means. Proves also that summer clothing, being of delicate texture and color, will not stand the rough usage necessary when washed with soap, and establishes the fact that PEARLINE, in doing away with the rubbing, lessens the wear and tear and fills a very important place. Delightful for bathing in fresh or salt water. " Its ingredients render it harmless to the most delicate skin. Especially during the hot weather it is to your advantage to use PEARL-INE, and only humane to supply your servants with it, and thus lighten their labors; besides you insure much better results. Beware of imitations. JAMES PYLE, New York.
