ODD FELLOWS' CREAT DAY.

Signalized by a Gathering of All Their Degrees.

A GRAND STREET PARADE.

After Which the Delegates and Local Members of the Order Enjoyed an Evening's Pleasure at Goodrich Hall-To-day's Programme.

Doings of the Grand Lodge.

The session of the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. Wednesday was devoted to the hearing of reports. That of the grand master showed that since the last session the following lodges had been instituted: Keystone, 155,Omaha; Ansley, 156, Ansley; Plainview, 157, Plainview; Wood River, 158, Wood River; Frenchman Valley, 159, Culbertson; Elmwood, 160, Elmwood; North Bend, 161, North Bend; Sargent, 162, Sargent; Stockholm, 163, Stockholm. Seven lodges Rebekah degree have also been established.

During the year the order in Nebraska has furnished relief to 306 brothers, sixteen widowed families and furnished funds for 1,175 weeks of sickness; has buried thirty-five brothers at the expense of $962.25 and has paid in grand lodge dues $4,579.81. The total assets of the subordinate lodges is quoted at $234,132,69

The grand secretary's report was as follows: Total number of lodges, 123; number of members, 6,489; gain over tast year, 614; total paid for relief and benefits, 86,224.54; receipts of subordidate lodges, $59,142.42; expenses, $20,438.26; members Rebekah degree lodges, $1,015; receipts, $740.87; ex-penses, $278.74; balance on hand, $461.23. The amendment offered by D. A. Cline, the grand secretary, was considered yes-terday and warmly supported by that officer and others. He claimed that his object in introducing the amendment is to secure the means by which they could more successfully care for the work that they had already started in Nebraska. There is an increasingly large number of lodges that need the direct care of the grand lodge. The fact is, he claimed, there is a large number of subordinate lodges, say twenty or more, that need and must have the personal attention of the grand lodge by its grand master, or many of them will go right down soon. A number of these are practically defunct. They don't report or pay dues, and are getting deeper and deeper into debt, as rents accumulate and their membership becomes scattered, discouraged and indifferent. Early attention would save most of them, and keep them going until times change, the population increases, the country develops and their success is assured. More than one half of the representatives now come only for one year. Next year there is a new set. They come for one year. and so on. Now, everyone perhaps knows that scarcely any permaneut good can be gained by attending one session and no more It is impossible. Then the question resolves itself into this: Would it not be better to adopt the less expensive method of district representation, and save nearly, if not quite all the lodges, both subordinate and Rebekah that we plant in the state, and make them strong, robust and progressive, than pursue the present plan, and let one campfire after another go out, through linattention and neg ligence, and to the loss, not to say reproach of the order? Routine business followed, and during the time devoted to it patriarchs and chevaliers were warned against entering saloons while in uniform. The rest of the morning was devoted to the election of officers, and the result of the ballot placed the following in office for the ensuing year: George N. Beels, Norfolk, grand master; W. H. Barger, Hebsenior warden; John Evans, Omaha, senior warden; George H. Cutting, Kear-ney, and J. H. Hoagland, North Platte, grand representatives; D.A. Kline, Lincoln, grand secretary, and Sam McClay, Lincoln, grand treasurer.

Almost before the lodge took a recess crowds began to gather in front of the hail o witness the formation of the grand parade, thich left the lodge room in the following rder: Canton Ezra Miller, No. 1; Canton Ford of Lincoln, No. 2; Canton Excelsior of Kearney, No. 3; Canton Excelsior of Fremont, No. 4; Beatrice Canton, No. 5; Grand odke officers, representatives of the Rebecca lodge in carriages, grand repre-sentatives and visiting lodges. Among the latter were Keystone lodge, No. 155, A. R. Hensel, N. G.; representative of 155, A. R. Hensel, N. G.; representative of Richardson county lodges 34 and 36; South Omaha lodge, No. 148, J. B. Erion, N. G., L. Carpenter, V. G., 25 strong; Goodrich, North Omaha lodge, No. 144, B. E. Rogers, N. G., 60 strong; Blair lodge, No. 14, A. J. Taylor, N. G., 30 strong; State lodge, No. 10, F. W. Perkins, N. G., 40 strong; Beacon lodge, No. 20 James Palcener, N. G., 25 strong. lodge, No. 20, James Falconer, N.G., 25 strong and Omaha lodge No. 2, J. Harper N. G., thirty strong. The route followed was along Dodge to Fifteenth, thence to Douglas, down Douglas to Ninth, south to Farnam, west to Fifteenth, along Fifteenth to Howard, west to Sixteenth, north to Cuming and then to Goodrich hall, on Saunders street, where refreshments were served. The general verdict was that this procession was one of the best of the kind that Omaha has seen for some time.

In the evening a banquet and ball was given in Goodrich hall, which was attended by fully 1,000 people. It was the closing Booial entertainment to be given under the anspices of the local Odd Fellows, to the visfting members of the grand lodge, and consequence no pains were spared to make it an event long to be remembered. At the opening of the entertainment the members of the Rebekah degree conferred the degree of "Beautified Work" upon the members of the grand order. This is a system of conferring degrees but recently mangurated in the order, and is formulated from characters in ancient scripture. After conferring the degree, the ladies with their escorts repaired to the ball-room where dancing was in order. The programme in the ball-room consisted of twenty-two variations, which was opened by a grand march and waltz by members of the grand lodge.

The following constituted the committee to receive members of the grand lodge: S. R. Patton, No. 134; F. Spore, No. 20; J.H. John-Son, Hesperian, No. 2; William Schwarik, Allemanen No. 8; John Lewis, No. 10, and W. B. Anderson, No. 148. J. W. Nichols per-formed the functions of master of coremon-ies. At midnight 1,000 puates were apread in the ordinary, and the happy throng made a crusade upon the inviting delicacies. This being dispensed with dancing was resumed and was continued until a late hour.

To-day the transactions will be purely of a business character. Of the matters to come up before the assembly, the revision of the constitution pertaining to subordinate lodges and the naming of the place to hold the next grand session, will be the most important. This afternoon the newly elected officers will be installed. It is the intention of the assembly to complete its labors by this evening. Rebekah Lodge No. 53 of Port Omaha wil his evening, at which time a gold-headed ve a banquet and ball at Goodrich hal cane will be voted the homeliest representative of the male persuation in attendance.

The annual convention of the Rebekah degree, I. O. O. F., elected the following officers for the ensuing year yesterday: President, Mrs. R. S. Livsey; vice president, Mrs. E. G. Armstrong; secretary, Mrs. S. M. Wright; treasurer, Mrs. Bohanan.

TALE OF A DOG.

An Unusual Legal Rumpus Over

Valuable Canine.

A dog tale was unfolded at great length yesterday in Justice Anderson's court. It began to unfold itself at so o'clock in the morning and at nightfall was still wagging.

A. M. Dyer, of the Western Printing com pany, took cherge of a valuable Newfoundland dog belonging to H. J. Pickering, last April. The dog is valued at $150, and Mr.

Pickering brought him from Chicago and placed him in charge of Mr. Ayer. The dog was decorated with a valuable collar and after being in Mr. Dyer's possession for a short time, escaped; he was caught and escaped again in July, since which time Mr. Dyer has been unable to find him. A few days ago a bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Pickering saw the dog in James Falkner's saloon near the corner of Fifteenth and Dodge streets, and informed Mr. Pickering.

Mr. Dyer went to the saloon, recognized the dog and swore out a writ of replevin. The dog is claimed by Falkner. The evidence of a dozen witnesses on both sides established the fact that Falkner owned a dog of about the same description as Mr. Dyer's dog, and that he went astray about the same time as did Mr. Dyer's dog. The dog in Falkner's possession followed him to the house and was chained up. When Mr. Dyer went to see the dog he gave every evidence of joyful recognition. At 5 o'clock last evening while the case was being still argued, it was discovered that some one had sworn out a writ of re pievin in another court and that constable

Sullivan had captured the dog. The attorney for Mr. Dyer wanted the court to swear out an attachment, which was refused, the ourt contending that if the dog had been reevined by Falkner while it was under and he could be arrested for perjury. Hamilton & Homan acted as attorneys for the plaintiff, and R. A. I. Dick for the defend ant. The case promises to be a long-winded one, and not soon settled.

A Suspicious Draft.

On the 9th of this month a man registered at the Arcade hotel as C. C. Moffit, and was given room 51. He represented himself to be the selling agent of Fred Haak, a heavy cattle dealer of Davenport, Ia. Yesterday morning he came to Mr. Casey, one of the proprietors of the hotel, and tendered a draft

on a South Omaha firm for $35 from Fred

Haak, in payment of his board bill of $15, requesting the balance in cash. Mr. Casey, doubting the genuineness of the signature, took the draft to the Omaha National bank, who sent it to their South Omaha branch for acceptance by the firm on whom it was drawn. Mofitt became uneasy, and Mr. Casey asked him to telegraph Haak at Davenport, asking him to guarantee the draft, as the easiest way for him out of the scrape. Moffit wrote out a telegram which was so ambiguous as to be useless, and Messrs. Casey &

Campbell, of the Arcade, telegraphed Haak themselves. Pending Haak's reply, whose existence is doubted, Moffit was arrested, and the charge of suspicious character en-tered against his name at the police station.

Parks on the Avenue.

The improvements now in progress on Capitol avenue will make that thoroughfare

a beautiful one near the high school grounds.

The avenue is being paved to Twentieth street, at a width of seventy-two feet. West of Eighteenth street the parking system in vogue in many of the larger cities will be introduced. At the intersection of Nine-teenth street there will be a circular piot sodded and planted with flowers. Between Eighteenth and Nineteenth and Nineteenth and Twentieth streets there will be two areas, fashioned into parks thirty-two feet wide and extending nearly the length of the block with rounded ends.

These will be provided with fountains, trees and seats where, during the heat of the day or in the evening, people may refresh or rest themselves. The roadway on either side of these parks will be twenty feet wide, giving ample room for two large vehicles to pass in opposite directions. The cost of this improve-ment is to be borne by the property holders and

HE STABS HER EIGHT TIMES.

WANTED TO KILL HIS WIFE.

A Terrible Tale of Blood Which May End in the Death of Watter Edwards' Unfaithful Better Half.

Assaulted by Her Husband.

Shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday piere-ing cries of "murder" were heard to issue from the basement of Isaac Trice's restaurant, at 1122 Capitol avenue, and, in an in port was approved.

The building and property committee were instructed to contract for building a sewer and cesspool at the Walnut Hill school.

The following members were appointed to visit the schools to ascertain what, if any, recredibly short time, a large crowd had gathered and were horror-stricken to dis over a mulatto, named Walter Edwards dunging a murderous-looking dagger re catedly into his wife. A few of the more visit the schools to ascertain what, if any, repairs are needed: Charles Wherer, Paul and Dodge schools; E. A. Parmulee, Lake school; S. K. Spalding, Saratoga and Walnut schools; S. K. Felton, Walnut Hill and Central Park schools; J. J. Scoville, Omaha View and Frankin schools; William Coburn, Webster and Divernort schools; F. R. Mei courageous rushed forward to wrest the blade from the assailant when a desperate struggleensued. Mr. Trice stepped up behind Edwards, and throwing his arms around him jerked him away. At the same instant the View and Frankin schools; William Coburn, Webster and Davenport schools; F. R. McConnell, Farman, West Omaha and West Side schools; D. V. Sholes, Park, Davenport and Ambler schools; Samuel Reese, Mason and Pleasant schools; Samuel Reley, Hartman, Center and Bancroft schools; Morris Morrison, Castellar, Vinton and Forest schools; E. F. Goodman, Hickory and Pacific schools; H. T. Clarke, High and Center schools. dagger was sticking in the back of Edwards' wife, and as the husband was pulled away the blade, still in his grasp, was jerked out and a stream of blood followed it. In the midst of the struggle Officer P. C.

Foley rushed in, and holding a revolver in Edwards' face, ordered him to throw up his ands or he would shoot him. Up went the lood stained hands, and the fearful blade cking with gore, was taken from him. Meanwhile the stabbed woman, a rather attractive mulatto, fell in a faint, weak from loss of blood and seemingly conscious of the fact that the wounds that she received were mortal. Eight times had the powerful arm of her husband been raised and eight times the glittering blade sunk into her defense

She was carried up to the first floor and Drs. Ralph and Ricketts were summoned They found the woman fearfully mutilated One stab had extended into the stomach and the wound on the upper part of the left breast was alone sufficient to cause her death. In making the latter wound the assailant had evidently given the dagger a twist as it had cut off a circular piece of flesh larger than a silver dollar. The blade had severed The superintendent was instructed to close the Vinton school until further notice, on ac-count of the prevalence of diptheria in that the left bronchial tube and pierced the lung, causing internal hemorrhage.

fatal thrusts, Mrs. Edwards had throwing her hands and they too had been mutilated y the descending blade.

Upon being arrested, Edwards was marched to the patrol box with a loaded re volver at his head and an order was sent to police headquarters to send the patrol wagon without delay as the officers heard muttered threats of lynching.

As the wagon drew up to the box, the popular indignation had reached its highest point and cries of "Hang him," "Lynch the scoundrel," were heard. A rush was made for the prisoner but the mob was held at bay by the officers. The assailant was hurried nto the wagon, the lash was laid to the horses and in a few moments Edwards was safe behind the bars at the central station. On the way to the station Edwards, in sans froid, told Captain Green and Sergeant John son that it was his intention to kill his wife She had been untrue to him and he believed he had stabbed her a sufficient number of times to finish her.

The dagger with which the attack was made was taken to the police headquarters and turned over to the chief. It has a blade eight inches long, has a double edge and sharp point. No weapon could have done effective service than this fearful

Shortly after the arrest, a reporter visited the spot where the stabbed woman lay dying, and from the crowd of friends who had gathered about gleaned something con-cerning the events that led up to the attack. Mrs. Edwards was talking, with Mrs Trice in the basement of the restaurant.
when Edwards entered looking very much agitated. Going up to her he commenced to upbrail her for leaving him, saying he had worked hard for her and squandered all his earnings for her sake. She told him that she would never live with him again and that he might as well get a divorce from her. With an oath he replied that she should never live with another man and drawing his dagger he made the murderous assault detailed above. Mrs. Trice was the only person present, and although nearly frightened out of her senses she tells a mos coherent story of the assault.

At the request of the dying woman she was carried on a cot to her room on Cass street out of sight of the curious crowd who had gathered about the spot. At last accounts she was alive and the physicians in attendance had strong hopes of her recovery. Edwards was seen in his cell at the police station in the afternoon and refused to talk, as his attorney. Alex Green, had so advised him. Before the reporter had got through with him, however, he said that he had married his wife, whose maiden name was Dora Chivers, at Oskaloosa, Ia., in 1885. Edwards is twenty-four years and his wife nineteen years of age. The fruit of their marriage was a bright boy, who died on January 8. Edwards claims that his wife administered rat poison to the boy. At that time they lived at No. 1227 South Fifteenth street Edwards has been a bootblack at the Murray hotel, and has been a hard-working and steady fellow. About three months ago his wife drew $100, which be-longed to him, from the bank and left for Kansas City, where she visited her sister. Her mother was writing complaining letters to her daughter, and Edwards brought her to Omaha and cared for her. He claims that he has worked hard, worn second hand clothes and denied himself not only luxuries, but comforts, that his wife might have good clothes and a comfortable home. James Terrell, the man who has ruined his home, and caused him to commit the crime, was a waiter at the Paxton hotel, which place he left on Monday. Terrell was a con-stant visitor at Edward's house, and Mrs. Edwards became infatuated with him, often sitting up until midnight talking to him. Wednesday night Edwards brother-in-law came to him and told him that he had seen Edward's wife and Terrell walking together on Sixteenth street. This aroused all that was devilish in the mulatto's nature, and he went out and purchased the lirk with which the murder was committed.

His wife not returning that night, Edwards went to work in the morning feverish and excited. His brother-in-law, George Chivers, who has at one time been in the mail service, came to him and told him that his wife had engaged an express wagon and was hauling away all his household goods. He went to his house, found the goods gone, and started to search for them and his wife. He found his wife in the basement of Trice's restaurant, and said to her, "What kind of a way is this to treat a man? You have made a slave of me ever since I have known you." He continued to upbraid her until his anger blinded um and he attacked her savagely with his

A Question of Sanity.

Mrs. Max Klette, residing on Twenty-fifth and Chicago, was before the commissioners for the insane yesterday. The woman is said to possess an idea that spirit messengers from the beyond are with her, and when under such impression converses with the genius of her imagination as though she was actually conversing with some of the inuntes of the house. She is the mother of two children and is about thirty years of age. Last September she entered suit for a di-vorce from her husband on the grounds of cruelty and inhuman treatment. In her preferred charges now pending in the district court she alleges that her helpmate threat-ened to take her life. Her husband states that the charges were preferred and the ac-tion taken while the woman was laboring under hallucinations.

An Angry Woman Pacified.

Mrs. Josie Barnick, who lives at Twentieth and Walnut streets, complained at the police court yesterday that Rosa Wagner, Minnie Stagerman and another woman by the name of Wagner, her neighbors, had been abusing her and calling her offensive names. She demanded their arrest, but Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Cobb cooled her down, and got her to go home and give them another trial, and if they persisted in their conduct a warrant would be issued for their arrest.

MARRIED AN INDIAN MAIDEN. Wealthy Briton Ensuared By

Sioux Squaw's Love. STANDING ROCK AGENCY, D. T., Oct. 18. Last week a small party of eastern gentlemen, who were scouring this section of the country on a hunting and pleasure expedition, lost their bearings and wandered to the agency, where the Indians gave them the information in regard to their route. The tourists decided to remain a few days at the agency to pick up information regarding the Sioux, over whose reserves they intended to shoot. One of the company, Henry Ashburton, son of a wealthy manufacturer of Leeds, England, at once took a deep interest in the strange every-day life of the abortgines, and was quite enchanted with his romantic surroundings. While preparing dinner in their tent the first day after their arrival a daughter of one of the lealing chiefs entered, approached the astonished young Briton, threw her arms around his neck and repeatedly cavered his face with neck and repeatedly covered his face with sisses. Though considerably surprised, the young man made no attempt to interfere with the girl's strange behavior, for he seemed to be well pleased with the perform ance, and when she ceased showering kisses he in turn caught her up in his arms with an affectionate hug and kiss. His companions gazed upon the scene with unfeigned amazement. The girl accepted his attentions. Soon after an interpreter dropped in and he was informed of the remarkable proceedings, He told the travelers that the girl had undoubtedly taken a liking to their companion and in accordance with the Sloux laws he must be her brave should she demand him The others remonstrated, but the young man was only too happy to abide by that law and make the pretty young smaw his bride at a moment's notice. The pleadings and expos-tulations of his companions had no effect upon the young man, and the marriage cere many was performed this morning according to the Indians' strange fashion. The con tract is considered by the Indians as being egal and binding, but it is thought the foolish young Englishman will soon tire of his Indian bride, and make himself scarce in this region.

Placed on the Records. NEW YORK, Oct. 18 .- [Special Telegram to THE BEE. |- Notwithstanding the first day's registration reached the unprecedented fig ures of 90,979 and vesterday 96,047, a total in two days of 187,026, there were many rea sons for believing that a total pregistration of 200,000 would have been reached had the polling places in recently divided districts been more thoroughly advertised. Many business men stood in line at the old polling places, in some instances half an hour, waiting for their turn to register, and after taking oath, and giving their address discovered they were in the wrong place. This invariably made them angry and a large number deciared they wasted all the time they could spare and would not vote this year. Others, relying on their per-sonal acquaintance with one or more of the sonsl acquaintance with one or more of the inspectors, left the politing places in high dudgeon because they were sent after their naturalization documents. Many of this class did not return, and will in all probability not vote this time. Many naturalization papers were so illegible that much valuable time was wasted in trying to fathom the traiting. the writing.

FREDERICK'S MEMORY

To Be Perpetuated By the Foundation of an Institute in Berlin. Bentan, Oct. 18. | Special Cablegram to The BEE. |-The foundation stone of the mausoleum of Emperor Frederick at Potsdam was laid at 2:30 p. m. to-day in the presence of the empress, the Dowager Empress Victoria and her daughters, the Duke of Spana and others. Prince Frederick Leopold of Saxe-Memengen read an address on the objects of the memorial. The municipal authorities today presented to Empress Frederick an address stating that in grateful recog-nition of Emperor Frederick's efforts to develop the capital of the empire the people desired to found an institute to per petuate his memory and that £25,000 will be granted for this purpose. The precise objects of the proposed institute would be left to the discretion of the empress, the noble partner of Emperor Frederick in his efforts for the people's welfare and enlightenment, and they were confident that she was best fitted to carry out the emperor's wishes. The em press appeared deeply moved and expressed her heartfelt thanks and said she would do her utmost to make the institute useful.

Kitchen was chosen referee and John J. Hardin and Billy Brewer, judges. There was a large crowd in attendance, and despite the fact that a high wind was blowing from the north both men shot remarkably well, as the scores below will attest:

THE SOUTH IN THE SADDLE.

A Voice From the Land Where Free Speech is Unknown.

ARE TRAITORS TO THEIR RACE.

Colored Men in the North Who Vote the Democratic Ticket-The Regulators and Kn-Klux Holding High Carnival.

Still in Bondage.

REHOBETH, Miss., Oct. 15,-{Correspondence of THE BEE.]-The shotgun quarantine in Mississippi and adjoining states have had all mail matter bottled up several weeks, owing to the yellow fever scare. Your editorial on "Negro Democrats" was well received by republicans here. There are very few, if any, negro democrats in the south. How could be espouse the cause of democracy when that party murders his race by the hundreds whenever a few of its followers desire to have a little fun. Like the small boy who pelts the frog with stones, it is fun for the boy, but death to the frog.

Hundreds of negroes are being killed daily in the south, to prevent them from exercising their rights as citizens of this great republic. The negroes in the north, who have espoused democracy's cause; be it said to their discredit, do so for a few pattry dollars. Now, will these Judases do the negro race the justice to hang themselves after November 6? If not, they have not the courage of their father, Judas. Every negro must know that the republican party is the ship. all else the sea. The solid south is kept so by a criminal supervision of the negro vote. If a fair election could be held in the south Harrison and Morton would be as sure to get the electoral vote of three states as day follows night.

The rebel brigadiers boss Cleveland like a school boy. The south controls his actions in every respect. Free trade is a relic of the confederacy, and this should cause it to be snunned the more. They seek to accomplish through fraud, deceit and duplicity what they failed to accomplish by the sword.

The sentiment of 1861 still remains in he south. Give the democrats complete control of our government and you fill see every one of our northern manufacturing cities close business. "Free trade" will do it. The democrats always say one thing and mean another. Free speech is denied every republican in the south, be he white or black, Yankee or ex-confederate. William Adams, a white republican and an exconfederate soldier was killed at Monroe. La., for issuing republican tickets at the late election in that state. Regulators and ku-klux are holding high carnival in many of the parishes of Louisiana to-

The cotton picking season has opened n Mississippi now, and every able podded newro, woman and child is wanted in the cotton patch, and should the regulators open business here, it would result in the loss of the entire crop; hence the voting will be allowed to go on in the day, but the real election will begin at night.

The Mississippi plan beats Louisiana's by many odds. The day is near at hand when an exodus far in proportion to the one inaugurated to Kansas a few years ago will commence. The treatment rethe poor colored people at the hands of democracy cannot be borne much longer. Yet in the face of all his ills the negro is loyal to republican party The negro in the south to-day is advanced from his condition of a decade Many own comfortable homes and re highly intelligent. They ask no special laws in their favor, but justice and equal rights before the law. They ask determination in each to consider the love of the other of more value than any object whatever on which the wish had been fixed. How light, in fact, is the sacrifice of any other wish when weighed against the affections of one with whom we are to pass our whole life. And no opposition in a single instance will hardly in itself produce alienation, yet every one has his pouch into which all these little oppositions are put, and while this is filling, the alienation is insensibly going on, and when filled it is complete. It would puzzle either to say why, because no one difference of opinion has been marked enough to produce a serious effect by itself. But he or she finds his or her affections wearied out by a constant stream of little checks and obstacles. Other sources of discontent, very common, indeed are little cross purposes of husband and wife in common conversation; a disposition in either to criticise whatever the other says; a de sire always to demonstrate and make him feel himself in the wrong, especially in sympathy. Nothing is so gooding on the part of either. Much better, therefore if our companion views a thing in a light difference from what
