The lavary case of M. M. Francis comes up for hearing today in Squire Schurz' court, as does also the assault case of Officer Frank Fowler.

The funeral of James Larson took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon from his late residence, corner of Seventeenth street and Nineteenth avenue. The deceased was twenty-seven years of age.

Landscape photographers from Omaha were in the city Saturday taking views of different points of interest about the city. The artists are in the employ of the Union Pacific railway company, and the results of their labors will soon be seen in the guides and other advertising material issued by the company. Other railway companies would do well to follow the example set by the Union Pacific.

The following companies are already booked for Dohany's for the next few weeks: Maggie Mitchell on the 23d; "Gent's Cane" on the 24th; Johnson & Stevin's minstrel on the 25th; Milton Nobles on the 30th; "A White Slave," November 1; "Little Puck" on the 10th; Murray & Murphy on the 12th; "Held by the Enemy" on the 13th; "The Kitty" on the 15th; "Little Nugget" on the 21st; "The Volkes family" on the 25th.

The telephone company has been painting its lines this week. The city the past week. Congressmen Joe Lynn was evidently ignorant of this fact. Saturday, as he leaned up against one that had just received its coat of red. His action was not due to indifference in a prohibition water, but simply force of habit. He is now branded so that there is no possibility of mistaking "our honest Joe." There are poles and poles, but Joseph will avoid the deep, dark red ones in the future.

Yesterday's snow was the first of the season. There was continued drizzle during the day, and more or less snow was mixed with the fall of water. The temperature ranged from 36° to 40° above, reaching the former point about 4 o'clock, when there was quite a little flurry of snow. Pedestrians were very few, and the streets presented a very lonesome appearance. The attendance at the churches was lighter than usual, as the majority of the citizens remained in their cheerful firesides during the entire day.

A man from the wild and woolly west visited a Madison street dive yesterday afternoon and succeeded in involving himself in an altercation with the proprietress, the inmates and their friends. He was thrown into the street and made Rome howl thereat. He visited the police station and aired his complaints, but could get little sympathy. Wherever he went for an hour the air was blue with whisky and profanity until his charge put a quietus upon him. His charge of being robbed in the above place will probably be investigated to-day.

Constable Bailey, of Underwood, arrived in the city last evening in search of two horses, which were stolen from that place about 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning. They were fastened in front of a dance hall. The thieves evidently stole them with the intention of simply riding to this city, as the animals were abandoned on Upper Broadway and were found by Charles Schenker about three o'clock at his breakfast. The saddle had been removed and thrown over the fence. The animals were taken to Neunmyer's stable and subsequently turned over to the officer, who will return with them this morning. There is no clue to the thieves.

COUNCIL BLUFFS CONCERNS. Atheism and Republicanism as Viewed From the Pulpit.

PLANS FOR THE EISEMAN BLOCK. The Wrecked Herald Floating Over the River—The Police Still Gathered—Victims Under the Prohibition Law—Short Items.

Atheism and Republicanism. At the Congregational church yesterday morning Rev. J. W. Crofts, the pastor, preached a very clear, practical sermon upon the above theme, his text being: "Hast thou marked the way which wicked men have trodden, which were cut down, out of time, whose foundation was overthrown with a flood; which said unto God, 'Depart from us?'"

This language was a part of the reply made by Elijah to Job, who had maintained that God did not deal with men in this world after their character. The experience of the past was the teacher of the present. History was the voice of God. It was full of warning and instruction and should be heeded. The path of wickedness was even in Job's day an old one, and was strewn with the wrecks of those who endeavored to build on a false foundation, instead of the righteousness of God.

This discourse was suggested by a recent article by Pere Hyacinthe, to whose heart and head the speaker paid a glowing tribute. Hyacinthe's position is simply that atheism is antagonistic to republicanism, and that to maintain a republican form of government it is necessary to maintain a national belief in a supreme being. Such a belief is the foundation of all morality. When a man believes in God he is not only self-governed, but he is a part of the government, a moral force, a principle incarnate. He who truly believes in God will do right from an inner motive and impulse, not because there is a mere written law. A republican form of government is of the people. The people's conscience is the spring. As Hyacinthe says—"Conscience is entered in the absolute God."

It is not urged that catholicism or protestantism or any dogma be taught in the public schools, but that God's existence and his ruling power should be taught. There can be no education without God, the author of the moral law, and a free government cannot be maintained without education. How should those be regarded who seek to destroy all religion and uproot all faith from the minds of the people? Are they friends or enemies of the popular government?

ment was taken across the river yesterday, together with all the other property, except the lumber cases. There was quite a rush to get all of the property across the river as soon as possible, and it was stated that everything would have to go yesterday. "If it took until tonight," the entire Herald force engaged in effecting the move, which occupied the whole day and evening. The ex-stockholders were very unwilling to talk regarding the matter, and in a few instances positively refused to have anything to say about it. It was stated that Mr. Vaughn's issue, out of the interests of the other stockholders, and that they now had nothing whatever to do with the matter. Mr. Vaughn was not in the city during the day, but remained in Omaha to attend to the disposition of the property. The numerous queries of THE BEE man were met with the stereotyped reply, "We are not ready to say anything yet, but in time the public shall know everything connected with the move."

Mr. Horace Everett, who is generally known as "Blue Front," and who is the building in which the Herald office is situated, appeared on the streets about 4 o'clock, and was surprised to find the move in full action. He stated that the company was in arrears as to rent. Everything with the exception of the cylinder press, was gone, and the men were waiting for the return of the teams to load that. Mr. Everett began to rustle around to secure an attachment on the press. He stated that eight times he went to see and that the lease of the building does not expire until next March. He understood that Mr. Vaughn had agreed to assume the rent and the lease when he bought out the interests of the other stockholders. Mr. Ingraham denied that any rent was due, and said that he had receipts up to November 1, 1888.

The teams returned about 6 o'clock, but were dismissed unloading. It was stated that an attempt would be made to have everything in running order on the other side for the Herald office, and Mr. R. B. Westcott will remain on this side to conduct the Council Bluffs department.

Found and Fined. Several of Saturday's police victims preferred to plead guilty and pay their fines rather than remain in the cooler over Sunday. Among the number were J. Ettinger and D. A. Mott, who contributed $8.10 each.

Frank Bartelle paid $11 for a brutal assault on an inmate of a house of ill-fame on Lower Broadway. Bartelle is the woman's "lover," and kicked and pounded her almost into insensibility as a mark of his undying affection. He pleaded not guilty, but when he heard that the woman was recovering, he would appear against him, he withdrew the plea and pleaded guilty.

Chris Macielin paid $7.00 for a gaudy boogie whirl with crimson trimmings.

G. P. Kimmel intended to take out a license before peddling any more shoe strings and was released.

Promise of Another Church. The Universalists of the city have for years desired to have a place of their own in which to worship. No definite move in this direction has been made until now, but with the increase in numbers during the past two years it is now thought that the project of erecting a church building can be successfully carried through. For this purpose Mr. Q. H. Shinn, an able preacher of this denomination, has been secured to come here and work. Nearly every other religious denomination is well supplied with edifices, while this one has none in the city, and the opinion is very strong that the project is a good one. The ground will be carefully looked over to that end.

Trusts Condemned in California. Chicago Tribune: The supreme court of California emphatically condemns trusts and pronounces them illegal. The case before the court was a lumber combine, and the members got enough of it and backed out. A suit was brought to hold him to the trust agreement. The supreme court pronounces the contract one against public policy, illegal and not to be enforced. It cites and approves what was said by another court of a coal combine: "Every producer or vendor of coal or other commodity has the right to use all legitimate efforts to obtain the best price for the article in which he deals. But when he endeavors to artificially enhance prices by suppressing or keeping out of market the produce of others, and to accomplish that purpose by means of contracts binding them to withhold their supplies, the restraints are even more mischievous than combinations not to sell under an agreed price."

The court points out that in the case of many contracts the grievance complained of is "personal to the injured party." But in the case of an agreement or combine "resorted to for the purpose of taking trade out of the realm of competition and thereby entailing or depressing prices of commodities," the public interests are involved, the wrong is far-reaching and is done to society."

Not That Kind. Detroit Free Press: They were holding a auction of smuggled goods at the custom house yesterday, and the auctioneer was crying for bids on a shawl that was worth a couple of dollars, when a woman on the outskirts of the crowd called out: "I bid $100!" "Third and last call and gone!" exclaimed the auctioneer. "Come and get it, madam!" She pushed her way in, saw what it was, and backed out with the remark: "That's no silk dress."

"Nobility said it was, madam."

"But that's what I came for. They told me that silk dresses were going for $4 apiece, and I like to have killed myself running to get here. Four dollars for a shawl!"

"How much will you bid?" "Thirty cents, sir, and not a penny more!" "Stand back, please."

"Oh, yes! Because I won't go about with my feet on the ground and a $4 shawl on my back, and not a cent, if you please! I'll stand back, sir, but I'm not that kind of a woman. I believe in consistency."

"But you wanted a silk dress," suggested one of the crowd.

"And wasn't I going to mortgage the house and lot to buy a bonnet to go with it?" she retorted.

Proposals Wanted. Sealed proposals will be received at the office of Henry Eiseman & Co.'s People's store for the purchase of the building now standing on the east half of the Pacific house property. This includes the building known as the "Blue Front," commencing with the east wall of said "Blue Front" and extending west sixty-seven feet. The building to be removed within twenty days from date contract is awarded.

Bids will be received up to and opened on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, October 23, 1888. Bids must be accompanied by a good bond of $2,000 for the faithful performance of the contract. We reserve the right to reject any or all bids. Copy of contract can be seen Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday at our office. HENRY EISEMAN & CO.
