John Seigler, a German, who lives at the corner of Sixth and Pierce streets, was arrested yesterday afternoon for abuse of a woman. It is said that Seigler is in the habit of getting drunk and going home to the bosom of his family with a large able-bodied club, which he is said to use promiscuously. Last night he is said to have thrown one child out of the window, kicked his wife out of doors, and was stopped from further outrage by the intervention of the police.

Eimer Holmes, an Omaha newsboy, who is well known as "Big Jonah," was arrested yesterday on the complaint of John Kroeger for stealing his watch. Kroeger was traveling and arrived at Platt Center. "Jonah" was traveling also, and they both laid down in a box car to sleep. When Kroeger woke up both "Jonah" and the watch were gone. Kroeger arrived in Omaha eventually and met a man who said he had seen the watch in "Jonah's" possession. Kroeger was locked up as complaining witness, and says he can produce the man who saw "Jonah" with the watch.

All fine Liquor Stores sell Jarvis' Brandy. Avoiding the Hill. As was long ago expected, the Horse Car company have decided to abandon its track on St. Mary's avenue, as a through line, and run its cars to the park by way of Leavenworth street. In this way better time can be made and the annoyance of a weary pull up the hill be avoided. Stub cars, however, will continue to run on the old route for the accommodation of the people contiguous to the same.

A Gift to Bellevue. J. B. Findlay, of Kittingan, Pa., has presented to Bellevue college a set of instruments for the scientific department which is greatly appreciated and adds to the effectiveness of the course outlined by the management. Mr. Findlay is well known in Omaha, having visited here last summer and met natural science in the presence of the staff of this meeting is the gift above referred to.

All doctors recommend Jarvis' Brandy. Returning the Call. The excursion from Fremont of the business men of that section to Omaha and their hospitable reception here, it is asserted, will bear good fruit and open to the enterprise of Omaha jobbers a territory which has heretofore been supplied almost exclusively by St. Joseph and Kansas City. It is understood that the acquaintance made the past week will be cemented by a return visit to be paid by 100 of our merchants, who will proceed to Fremont and Superior in two special drawing room cars under the supervision of Mr. Babcock of the Northwestern, who made himself very agreeable on the recent trip. The excursion will be light on each of the participants and benefits, it is thought, of great commercial importance will be derived.

FIRST OF UNIVERSALISM.

A Preacher of That Faith Discourses in Omaha.

Among the many churches in Omaha there is none where the doctrines of Universalism are taught or where the members of that persuasion may worship, but yesterday the first steps were taken towards organizing one. The Rev. Dr. Shinn, who has been visiting this city for the past few days, had his attention called to the fact, and during a hurried investigation received the signatures of about two hundred persons as the nucleus of an organization. He leaves for Chicago today, and will proceed to Cleveland, from whence a district organizer will be sent to complete the work he has inaugurated. Yesterday he preached at the opera house, and for the afternoon text chose the words found in I Corinthians, 13:1-10. "For we know in part, and we prophesy in part, but when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away."

Touching upon the very limited knowledge of the fact which will be broken up, he said the universe we see suggests a greater one, and he endeavored to show that it is a great mystery, to enlarge the realm of knowledge, but some religious teachers have been unfriendly to his revelations, fearing that the foundations of their faith will be broken up. In answer to them George Ripley says: "A host of minds, of profoundest thought, find nothing in the disclosures of science to shake their faith in the verities of reason and religion." How welcome should these words be to every teacher who comes to make clearer the footprints of the Almighty? Such words have been heard, inspire of heaven, to interpret the meanings of life and to foretell its purpose and end. We have two classes of these—interpreters and prophets. The one teaches by reason, the other by faith. The one reports actual facts, gives the results of all knowledge that has been attained, all that is mastered in the different sciences, and interprets not only the great bible that is open to all, but the bible of human experience as well. Those who teach by faith are prophets, and their duty is to look into the future, and, reasoning from the known to the unknown, point out things that will come to pass, things that will prove themselves in the course of time. It is not for us to speak words of promise and hope, arouse ambition, encourage every tiler for truth, and it is through their teachings that all our moral and spiritual reforms are achieved, because they are men of faith who have these visions of the future. Many men speak and act as if we have perfect knowledge, but nothing is so fatal to progress as for one to think that he knows in full all the truth. The words of the text say that we only "know in part." We do not see from the summit yet. The mountain of truth towers far above us, and we only see a small portion of the summit. Some think that we may yet have a glimpse of the perfect day. Some men are narrow, one-sided and egotistic. Some are bigoted and conceited, because of partial knowledge. Some think that they know everything, but it is a fatal delusion that chills progress and paralyzes human effort. Jesus characterized such people as "pharisees," and there are political as well as religious pharisees to-day. Members of some churches refuse to hear the doctrines of another, and think all other churches are wrong and all doctrines except those held by them false. Why? They refuse to investigate the beliefs and principles held by others. Why? Because they think their church is the true church, and that they have all the truth. They have not. Every branch of the Christian church is "chosen," and no branch or sect should set itself up as "the" church. All are doing good in the world according to their faithfulness to the truth they have. Some people are afraid to investigate the Universalist faith, and attend its meetings, afraid to read its books or study its doctrines. How blind for a man to refuse to investigate the honest beliefs of his fellow men, for the wisest know only in part. What he needs to know is a great deal he does not know. The disciples of Christ were in confusion respecting the kingdom their master was to establish. They did not understand its spiritual power or how it could subvert all things and save all men. They did not understand the character of God as taught by Christ, and yet they knew vastly more than the kings and rulers of remoter years. The Jewish religion was a great improvement on that of the heathen, but it confined the mercy of God to its own people. Peter typed the limitation of the present day before he got his vision from heaven, for until then he restricted the benefits of the gospel to his own people. But this partialism and exclusiveness is to be done away with and will melt away in the dawn of the perfect knowledge. There are many practical benefits derived from the growth of knowledge, and we have also a larger freedom to think. Coleridge says: "For what is freedom but the unfettered use of all the powers which God has given us?" The mission of Christ is becoming clear, not to appease or placate deity, not to change God, but to change men. We are learning more as to the purpose of God; we are in his great school, and all his laws are the perfect use. All the partial knowledge, the prophecy, the promises will be supplemented at last with the perfect knowledge and we shall rise from lower to higher realms, while the steps by which we have climbed shall fall and fade away. God is good, and under him everything is working towards fulfillment. He will do for his children, the weak and misguided as well as the strong and faithful, even better than the greatest optimist has dared to hope.

In closing the speaker said, "I believe there will be compensation for all the irregularities of this life," and then wound up his discourse with an eloquent peroration.

Where there is nothing the king has lost his right. When you have lost your scalp, you are considered by the Indian a coward. Use Warner's Log Cabin Hair Tonic, which cleanses the scalp and increases the hair growth. Price, $1 a bottle at all druggists.

NATURAL GAS.

The Omaha Plant Likely to Be Further Developed.

The promoters of the natural gas project in Omaha assert that they have in no way abandoned the enterprise. A pipe 550 feet in length, extending from the tank to the intersection of Sixteenth and Burdette streets, has been laid, and the fluid has been brightly after being conveyed that distance. A new movement is now on foot to further investigate the supply by sinking a hole 2,000 feet beneath the surface. Several parties in the east have been communicated with and the lowest proposition for sinking the hole and removing the core is $10,000. This the stockholders regard as being too great to warrant the undertaking. Should they conclude, however, to do this they will receive support from the city, and give his name as Shane, W. A. Paxton, John A. Creighton and several others have put down their names for $200 each in case such a project is carried out. The object of removing the core is to ascertain matters in connection with a coal bed. It is generally believed that either substance can be found in this locality.

Two Women Who Were Drunk.

Stella Emerson and Mrs. Burgess were arrested on Tuesday last, charged with being drunk. They were taken to the police station, where they were held until they were sober. Mrs. Burgess is a well known confidence woman, and when arrested was very much under the influence of liquor. Last winter she was arrested for collecting funds for the relief of the bazaar sufferers, which she appropriated and escaped from jail. Two large bottles of whiskey were taken from the woman who had not been sampled. The Emerson woman went conspicuously in her cell. A man came to the station and gave his name as Brewer, claiming to be the father of Stella Emerson. He said that his wife had been doing Stella Emerson's washing, and that the Burgess woman had enticed his daughter away. Ella Burgess is known to the police as a drunkard and an altogether dissolute woman. Stella Emerson had the reputation of being a confidence woman, and she was taken from within the influence of the Burgess woman. Brewer says he will push the case against Ella to the limit.

FLOATS ON THE THIRTIETH.

The Committee Tells the Merchants What It Wants.

There has not as yet been much outward work done toward making arrangements for the trades' display on the occasion of the opening of the Omaha and Council Bluffs bridge, but privately a host of our merchants has been engaged in making designs and dressing floats for the great event. Many of the latter will be very elaborate, in fact a great advance on those that were used on "Drummers' Day" of the late Omaha fair. The same work is progressing in the Bluffs and it is expected that these features of the procession will be a couple of miles in length. The danger that the procession may be too unwieldy is now being apprehended, and for the purpose of guarding against this the committee has addressed the following letter to every wholesale merchant of the city.

OMAHA, Oct. 20.—Dear Sir: The committee having in charge the parade and trades display on the occasion of the opening of the Council Bluffs and Omaha bridge, and its dedication to the public on Tuesday, October 30, 1888, desire to call your attention to the fact that the committee is now being apprehended, and for the purpose of guarding against this the committee has addressed the following letter to every wholesale merchant of the city.

On account of the large number of applications already made for places in the line of the committee finds it necessary to request that you will confine your display, if possible, to one wagon. It is not the length of the procession that the character of the display that is most attractive; and we trust you will co-operate with the committee to this end.

To make this a grand success in every particular it will be necessary that every merchant in town make up his mind as early as possible, and they are requested to send in their applications for positions in the line by return mail, or as soon thereafter as practicable, so the committee can assign their places.

A man must have confidence in himself if he expects the world to have confidence in him. With perfect health induced by Warner's Log Cabin Sarsaparilla, which makes pure blood, which makes good health, a man may have confidence for all his undertakings.

THE OPEN BOARD.

What Citizens Think of Its Chances for Success.

"All this talk of having an open board of trade is sheer nonsense, with our present elevator facilities," said a prominent member of the board the other day. "There is no basis upon which to operate, no grain to deal with. In order to conduct such business there must be at least an apparent supply of grain on hand."

"But did not the board recognize this fact at the time it took action in the matter of establishing the open board?" was asked. "Well, really no formal action was ever taken. It seemed to be the desire of a large majority of the members to establish such a board, and indeed, about fifty of them put their names to a paper which provided that steps should be taken toward this end, but the committee, who was delegated to make certain inquiries concerning grain receipts, etc., has never made the required report to the board."

"Why doesn't he do so?" "Well, it is his aim to squelch the matter utterly, and for obvious reasons."

Said another: "Of course the practicability of instituting operations at an open board, under present conditions, is not to be thought of, but the beneficial results flowing from such an institution, could it be established, are undoubted. A number of months ago we had a scheme fairly on foot by which we would have obtained an elevator of almost unlimited capacity, the newspapers, with their wonted alacrity and one-sidedness, hastened to present the public with the obverse of all the probable results of such an enterprise, and actually scared out the projectors by citing some exceptional instances where elevator owners had merely kept up the form of receiving and sending out grain in order to cater to the business interests of certain banks."

"I can't tell what the board of trade has been attempting to do of late," said another member of that body. "They are a set of old women up there anyway, fooling away their time in delegating and instructing, but never accomplishing anything. Yes, I'm in favor of the open board. It would enhance business in many ways, but where is the commodity? All action will amount to nothing until a magazine of supplies is established."

Other men were seen and questioned regarding the matter. Some had given it no thought, others were indifferent to whatever the board did, and still others regarded "the whole board of trade organization a huge joke."

ANOTHER FATALITY.

Isaac Johnson Killed by an Engine on the Missouri Pacific.

Yesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock, Isaac Johnson (colored) received fatal injuries by being struck by a locomotive on the Missouri Pacific track, at the intersection of Grace street. Johnson was walking along the track, and the weather being inclement, he sheltered himself with an umbrella. At this point, an engine that was running to the round house came along at a rapid rate, in the same direction that Johnson was moving, and without any warning he was hurled from the track a considerable distance and died from the effects a few moments afterward. The coroner was notified, and the remains were taken to Drexel & Maul's undertaking establishment, where an inquest was held yesterday. It was ascertained that at the time Johnson was struck the engine was being propelled at the rate of about fifteen miles per hour, and that no signal whistle or otherwise, was being sounded. It was further developed that the engine was in charge of Charles Sherman, "hostler" in the round house, and he is at present, the inquest was adjourned until 10 o'clock to-day, at which time he will be called before a jury. The deceased, a colored man, was a widow and four children, residing on Lake street near Twenty-sixth, were notified, and upon request the remains were conveyed to that of his relatives. A new suit for damages against the Missouri Pacific. The deceased was fifty-five years of age and a prominent member of several civic societies.

Tinder Boxes Burned.

At 8:50 a. m. yesterday an alarm of fire brought the various hose companies to the corner of Tenth and Leavenworth, where a couple of buildings occupied as a restaurant and saloon were found to be in flames. The buildings were old, the well-seasoned timbers burnt like tinder, and despite the efforts of the firemen they were entirely consumed. The flames were well under way before the alarm was sent in, and the work of the firemen proved useless. The buildings were valued at about $600, and were the property of Mrs. McCarty, wife of the police officer, and were without insurance. The corner building was occupied as a saloon by George Shuter, and the fixtures, which were valued at $100, were insured. The paragon of the restaurant, which was worth $200, was uninsured. The restaurant belonged to George Hamilton.
