LINCOLN NEWS AND NOTES.

Noble Work Performed By the German Home For the Friendless.

A PROBABLY FATAL ACCIDENT.

Another New Industry Inaugurated in the Capital City-Patrick Egan on the Political Outlook.

LINCOLN BUREAU OF THE OMAHA BEE, 1029 P STREET, LINCOLN, Oct. 29.

When brought to the attention of the citigens of Lincoln in a proper way, deserving charities never receive a cold shoulder. Their hearts and pockets are always open to a needy cause or worthy person. But there is one institution, deserving as the best, which is working earnestly, quietly and effectively, but which has not come into general public notice. Way out in southeast Lincoln, beyond Fortieth street, there is a plain but commodious house perched upon the hill opposite Martin Heights addition, and upon the lawn and swards can be seen at any time thirty-four children, nine months to fourteen years of age, playing and frolicing about as contented, happy and smiling as a bright summer's morn.

This house is the German home of the friendless. Almost two years ago, Pastor Heine, of the little German church on the corner of Z and Thirteenth streets, purchased ten acres of land and built thereon the home, which has grown and prospered ever since and is now a charge of the church and under control of a board of the church and under control of a board of directors of which the good pastor is the president. Mrs. Solomon, a genial, pleasant faced German lady, is the matron of the in-stitution, and Mr. Gill superintends the gar-den and house. It is indeed a home for the friendless German children of the city and state, and has reached its rounded condition without ostentation. The general public has not been asked to contribute a cent for its prosperity and THE BEE representative has prosperity and The Bee representative has reason to believe that outside of Pastor Heine's German circle very few citizens of the city know of its existence. The house is plainly furnished, but still it is home-like and comfortable. It is certain that the thirty-four friendless German children of the home are in good hands. Their ruddy cheeks, sparkling eyes and happy faces teil the story better than it can be done in a brief pen picture. The good pastor the founder of the house, is a worthy man, and deserves great praise for the noble work he

PERHAPS PATALLY INJURED.

Mr. Henry C. Melone, partner of Hon. J.
C. McBride, met with an accident last night that may prove fatal. He was found in an unconscious condition this morning between 8 and 9 o'clock on a vacant lot at the corner of Fourteenth and F streets, was taken home and medical assistance immediately summoned. The attending physician fears concussion of the brain. Last night just be-fore dark he saddled his horse and went out for his usual ride. It is supposed that his horse became frightened, unmanageable, and threw him, his foot wedging into the stirrup so that he could not extricate it, and that he was dragged some distance before release from absolute peril. No bones are broken. A few bad cuts about the head are the only external marks to be seen, and yet his physicians do not think that he received any internal injuries. He remained unconscious for more than two hours after he was taken to his home. About 9 o'clock last night his horse drew up in front of Mr. Buford's residence, with saddle under his belly, but was not recognized at the time. It is supposed that he was thrown from his borse about that hour last night, and that he laid where he fell until discovand that he laid where he left until discovered this morning. His recovery is very doubtful. Mr. Melone is a widower with soven small children to care for and protect. He numbers his friends by the score, and one and all are deeply grieved over his sail tally injured this morning by a runaway team on South Eleventh street. He was picked up in an unconscious state and his physicians fear internal injuries. No one seems to know how the team became fright-ened. It was done in a flash and his life hangs

THE LINCOLN PAPER MILES.

The wheels of the Lincoln paper mills commenced to turn to-day. This inaugurates a new industry and enterprise for the Capital City that promises to be more than a spoke in an ordinary wneel. It is stated that the mills will employ forty men and keep them in constant work. This alone is no small item, for it means several hundred dollars each year for the grocer, merchant and clothier, as well as an income to the company from all parts of the state that will necessarily be renumerative from the very necessarily be renumerative from the very nature of the demand for the article manu-factured. It is also stated that the plant will turn out eight tons of paper each day. The prices of paper will be such that it will be to the interest of dealers throughout the state and especially the city of Lincoln.

POLITICAL POINTERS.

"Well, Mr. Egan, what's the word from the seat of war!"

You may sa, that I believe that New York will go repube an by 20,000 majority. The coolest headed political on-lookers are confident of this. I can see no escape for connect of this. I can see no escape for the democratic party this year, and the re-sult will be even more than has been claimed by the republican leaders. We had a grand meeting on Madison Square. Blaine was at his best. My countrymen see the inevitable at last, and they are falling into line by thou-sands. New York is all right." sands. New York is all right."
"How did you find the outlook at other

"How did you find the outlook at other points?"
"Very flatterin, sir; I found the utmost confidence wherever I went. There is no point of attack but what is guarded for election day, and as the campaign draws to a close the evidences of republican success become more and more apparent. I can not make it stronger. Harrison and Morton will be elected. I am now at home to do what I can for the success of the state and local tickets."

Dr. Brooks, prohibition candidate for vice president of the United States, preached at Bohannan's hall to-night. He was greeted by a full house, and at times it grew somewhat enthusiastic. He took for his text "The Republican Party," a passage of scripture familiar to all people of ordinary intelligence, and to his credit it can be said that he atuck to it very fervently. This was the only redeeming quality in the discourse.

Governor Thayer has been endorsed by nearly one hundred old soldiers of Lincoln and Lancaster county. Over their own signatures they endorse his course, commend his past loyalty to his party and government and denounce the flop of the Call and News. The old soldiers are loyal to the governor and will cast a solid vote for him on the 6th day of November.

When Sheridan was Frightened.

The Chicago Times: One night just before the Chicago fire Gen. Sheridan was entertaining a comrade of the Army of the Cumberland. The night was stormy. After a good dinner they were enjoying a post-prandial eigar. Just then Sheridan said: "Now in answer to your questions, 'Was I ever afraid?' Was I ever scared?' In answer to the first: I am confident no man in his right mind goes into a battle without a feeling of dread-a something that cannot be described, only experienced. This feeling will vary according to the neryous organization of the individual. In it are involved all the questions of moral responsibility and its effect on the individual, the future, etc. I know that it has its effects on me, but there come duty, which is above everything. In doing your duty outsiders lose sight of this, and in that way some men get the credit of being without fear.
"Now, as to the question of a scare.

"Now, as to the question of a scare. Show me the man who has not been scared and he will be a phenomenon. After the Tulahoma campaign, with its fights of Hoover's and Liberty Gaps, with Bragg forced beyond the Tennessee river, we went into camp. My division consisted of three brigades. Two were stationed at Deckard on the Nashville stationed at Deckard, on the Nashville & Chattanooga railroad. The third brigade was at the terminus of a branch railread which ran to some coal mines some ten or fifteen miles away. This road ran through some rich valleys called coves in that part of the country) in which some splendid plantations were situated.

"One day, just before we began the move that culminated in the battle of Chickamauga, I went up to the end of the road to inspect my brigade stationed at that point. I took a staff officer with me. We drove up the mountain in an ambulance and left orders for a handcar with a detail of men to be at the terminus at 6 o'clock p. m. to take a look at the junction and main camp at Deckard. I inspected my brigade and waited until 7, but no car came. I then took my staff officer and started down the track, expecting every moment to meet the car. We waited until twilight and no car came. Seeing a light at a short distance from the road, but still near enough to hear the car if it came, we went up and requested supper. The proprietor of the plantation was a court ly old gentleman, whom I thought re-ceived us rather coldly and seemed ill He gave us a nice supper, but at ease. I noticed everything was hurried. I also noticed a commotion among the

"After supper the old man approached me and said: 'I see by your uniform you are a major general in the union army, and I must enter my solemn protest against you being here in the posi tion you are without a proper guard or escort. You well know these mountains are full of ignorant, fanatical men, ignorant of the laws of war-in but little better than Indians. They would deem it a patriotic act to murder you. I say murder, for it would be murder. Since you arrived I have put every safeguard around you. I have sent my negroes in every direc-tion to watch and to give warning at the first intimation of danger. As I said, these men are ignorant, and, I am sorry to say, beyond my control. I could not protect you for one instant, and I beg of you for God's sake go, and l pray you may safely reach camp. And permit me the privilege of an old man, and let me beg of you never expose yourself to such risks again. You well know the terrible punishment taat fell on the community when General Mc-Cook was murdered in his ambulance. The innocent and guilty alike suffered. I shall pray for your safe return to camp, for should anything befall you. God help this community. You do not realize what you safety is to us. I don't want to appear inhospitable, but for God's sake go. I want you to come and dine with me, but with proper escort. Then I will feel free from all responsibliity, and will be happy to see you.'

"I hurried away, appreciating the old man's fears, although I frankly admit I had never thought of it before or of my personal danger or its effects on anyone in case of any accident to myself. As I walked away I must say grew anxious. The force of the old man's fears and words grew on me. Not that I feared for myself, but if an accident should happen to me, I could, in my imagination, see my division taking a terrible revenge. So I hurried on, hoping to meet the hand-car before we came to the big trestle-work, some seventy feet high and over 150 feet long -a slippery affair, with nothing but ties to walk on. I dreaded this more than anything else, for I always get dizzy trying to walk at any great height. After walking for about an hour (the darkness being intense) I heard the welcome rattle of the car, and stopped for it to come up. The sergeant said a mistake had been made, and that they had been sent down the main line to the tunnel. Not finding me, they came back to the junction, and had hurried on, hoping to find me. "I got on the car and remarked: "Thank God you met me anyway before I came to the big trestle over the ra-vine. That I could not have crossed.'

'The big trestle,' said the sergeant, 'why, you walked that over a mile back.' The car soon brought us to camp. Thinking of the risk of the walk over a trestie-work seventy feet or more in height-walked by stepping from tie to tie in the dark-and that without knowing it, the effect was such that when I got to my tent I was the worst scared man in the Army of the Cumberland. The retrospect weakened me. Never again during the war did I expose myself where any evil befalling me would entail punishment on innocent people. "The next day the old man visited the camp, congratulated me on my safe return and gave me a formal invitation to dine with him, stipulating for a strong escort. I accepted the invitation and had a royal good time. This time if found my host charming—in fact, my beau ideal of an entertainer. You see, conditions make all the difference in the world in the actions of a man. He and I afterwards became good triends, and I have many pleasant remembran-ces of him and his family. Soon after-wards we moved. The battle of Chicka-mauga followed, then the famine of Chattanooga and Lookout Mountain. After this came my transfer east. I have never seen or heard of the old man since.'

The Girls of Long Ago. At the banquet given by the Deita Kappa Epsilon Fraternity of Hamilton college, New York, says the Utica Ob-server, A. Miner Griswold (the "Fat Contributor") responded as follows to the toast, "The Girl We Left Behind that touches a very tender chord in my heart. I have always felt sorry for the girls we left behind us. It seemed cruel at the time, but how could we help it? Circumstances were such that we couldn't possibly take them along-we had to leave them behind us. I think I promised three or four to come back for them in the spring or early autuma, but I was too busy for several years to attend to it, and after that—well, I was afraid my wife would not like it. I met one of the girls we left behind us in the street to-day. Thatis, I thought I did. The same soft, brown eyes, the same sweet, sunny smile.

"Is it possible," I said, "that I behold

Miss Sally Jones?" "That was my mother's name," she smiled, "before she was married. I am married now, and I have named my baby after ma. Great heavens! The girl I left behind me was a grandmother!

I told the young lady who I was, and she said she often heard her mother speak of me as one she used to know a great many years ago. Then I asked about the girls I used to know, and what had become of them. I found that some, alas, were dead. Others, who were married, wished they were dead. Some, who were widows, had lovers seeking for their hands. Others, not yet widows, were seeking for divorces. Oh, those seminary girls of long agohow we did regret leaving them behind us-except one poor fellow who eloped with one of them. He has regretted all his life that he didn't leave her behind with he rest of them. But we had to go and leave them. Fate beckoned us on. And, in some cases, the faculty urged us to go. Were we to blame, then, for temporary forget ting the debts-I mean the girls we left behind us? Why, some of us had to leave our trunks! A rare collection of girls they were, gentlemen, as I recall them now. Tall, willowy girls; short, plump girls, blackeyed girls that made us blue, and blue eyed girls that we were ready to take a black eye for any time; fair complexioned girls; brown girls, Smith girls. girls with auburn hair and girls who, not being able to match their own hair in auburn, were compelled to buy it in Utica or Syracuse. It fact there about every kind of girl then that there is now, except the tailor made girl. who seems to be altogether a modern creation. Still, the latter has points in her favor. While the girl I so ten-derly recall possessed virtue, beauty, intelligence and many engaging ways. I must admit that sne somehow lacked the get up—in fact she hadn't the bustle of the girl of to-day.

No. brothers of the olden times, we must confess that, in comparison with the tailor-made girl of to-day, the girl we left behind us had very little left behind her.

Still we remember her with tenderness and respect, and let us all join in a bumper to the girls of long ago. A Challenge-The proprietors of Dr.

Bull's Cough Syrup hereby challenge the Faculty to prescribe a remedy more effective than theirs. I cordially recommend Salvation Oil to all suffering with rheumatism. Jos

Kansas City Star: A lady living near Troy, Kan., had occasion to look over the records of the county recently, and in doing so discovered recorded against her farm a mortgage purporting to be security for the sum of $3,500 borrowed from the Lombard Investment company Knowing that she had never borrowed the money, the lady at once notified the holders of the mortgage that they had been victimized. Then she found the notary before whom the investment purported to have been executed, and secured a sworn statement from him to the effect that he had never seen the paper and had nothing to do with it. This she laid before the loan company and they are now searching for the rogue who secured the boodle.

S. and by the time one bottle was gone her head began to head and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full and heavy bead of hair—a robust, hearty child. I feet it but my duty to make this statement. Respectfully, H. T. Shose. Charranceda, Tens., June 7, 1885—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: in 1886 i contracted blood poison, and at once sought a physician, who treated me for several months. By his advice I went to Crab Orchard Springs, Ky., where his course of trainment was carefully observed. I recovered as I thought, but the next spring pimples began to appear on my face at 1 body. These gradually increased to sores and running ulcera. I was advised to try S. S., and immediately after taking it I commenced to improve, slowly at first, but more rapidly afterwards, and soon nothing remained to tell of my trouble. My blood is now horcughly cisansed, and my system free from taint, and I owe my present condition—perfect cure—to your medicine. I cheerfully give this statement that others who have a fifered as I have may reap the same benefit. Handy M. Burn., 14 West Ninth St. Homes. Atlanta. Ga.—Gentlemen: A best and the same benefit.
