

Largest Cloak, Suit and Fur House in the West.

Continued Special Sale.

Owing to the warm spell we have concluded to continue the following prices for the remainder of this week.

Fine Dresses $12.75, fully worth $18.50.
Fine Dresses $17.75, fully worth $25.50.
Extra Fine Dresses $22.50, fully worth $32.50.
Very elegant Dresses $33.50, fully worth $50.00.

SPECIALTIES
IN
DRESS GOODS
Displayed in our window.
Full Dress Patterns, with ornaments from $4.50 upwards.

HASCALL AS A HUSBAND.

A Terrible Chapter of Vice From the District Court Records.

SCANDALOUS, BRUTAL CONDUCT.

Kicking, Maltreating and Cursing His Children and Leading Young Girls Astray Under Promise of Marriage.

A Long-Suppressed Story.

For years past people on South Thirtieth street have talked about the scandalous behavior of Isaac S. Hascall, and since certain proceedings were had in court which terminated in a decree of divorce being granted to his wife.

His scandalous reputation has spread very generally among his acquaintances. It was known to but comparatively few people, however, that a suit for seduction had been filed in the court, and is still pending.

Out of consideration for his own family and the women he has wronged, publicity has been withheld up to this time by the press. But as Hascall is now a candidate for the legislature and has the backing of the very worst class of society, while thousands of voters are ignorant of his true character, it is deemed proper in the public interest to throw daylight on his conduct by reproducing the record of the court.

The following explains itself:

District Court, Douglas County—Sarah J. Hascall vs Isaac S. Hascall.
The plaintiff complains of defendant, that on or about the 23rd day of July, 1885, at the town of Irving, county of Cheyenne, and state of Nebraska, she was married to the defendant and has since conducted herself toward the defendant as a faithful, chaste and obedient wife. That on or about six months immediately preceding the time of filing this petition she has been a resident of Douglas county, Nebraska.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

The plaintiff further represents that said defendant, regardless of the marital duties and obligations, on the 15th day of February, 1886, in the city of Omaha, and at divers times since that date, without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, since said defendant, on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop, that on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Elizabeth Anderson, and on or about the 15th day of December, 1885, in the city of Omaha, did commit adultery with one Adelia Hansrop.

MORROW AND MORRISON.

The Official Plasterer of the Board Unbosoms Himself.

TALKING TO THE WRONG MAN

Revelations That Will Create No Little Surprise—Morrison's Right Hand Man Will Have to Explain.

$$$

During the controversy which arose some weeks ago in the board of school directors over the purchase of school furniture, the conduct of certain members aroused suspicion that something was wrong. Steps were taken by the board to ascertain what, if any, corrupt influence was being used. A reporter was detailed to keep his eye on the movements of suspected parties and follow up his inquiry as a detective to point that would place him in full possession of the actual state of facts.

The reporter went to work as directed and in a short time found that one William Morrow, a plasterer by trade and a ward burner and corner loafer by practice, had boasted of limited success with certain members of the board. This man Morrow has been on the payroll of the school board for many months as special plasterer and has drawn liberal allowance from the school fund for time which is known to have been largely devoted to political dirty work. Morrow's friends are well known to the board, and the fact he was the link between the board and the vulnerable members was established beyond a doubt by the reporter.

On a certain Sunday in September the reporter, in questing a furniture drummer in for a furniture factory, walked into the yard of Morrow's house and inquired whether Mr. Morrow lived there. A man with a very marked countenance, blue-eyed and bloated, responded, "That's my name," and when told that an interview was sought by the reporter, he motioned the reporter to follow him around the house out of hearing of his family. There the reporter, under the following confidential talk. During the conversation Morrow several times cautioned the reporter to lower his voice, as if to prevent anybody overhearing what was said.

Reporter—My name is Watson. I am agent of the Minneapolis School Furniture company and I want to secure the patronage of the board.

Morrow—Well, you are a stranger to me," interrupted Morrow, "and of course I might enlighten you provided I knew you better. Who referred you to me?"

Reporter—A member of the board (whom he named) to see Morrow, and succeeded in convincing the latter that everything was all right.

"Yes," mused Morrow, doubtfully; then a broad smile manifested over his countenance, and he continued in a confidential matter of business, you see. Of course you understand that we do not do this work for nothing."

Reporter—Yes, my experience has been that to gain a point in the desk business in a new territory a little currency is very desirable.

Morrow—You bet that's just what it is, and when agents don't look at it in this way they don't do very well. I have a few dollars in my pocket, and I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Yes, now my firm has given me a very big order, and I would like to have another manufacturer monopolize the trade. In fact, we have decided to reach out into this territory, and I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Now, Mr. Morrow, as I am well aware by your conversation that you understand how to put our scheme through, what are your terms?"

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Now, Mr. Morrow, as I am well aware by your conversation that you understand how to put our scheme through, what are your terms?"

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Now, Mr. Morrow, as I am well aware by your conversation that you understand how to put our scheme through, what are your terms?"

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Now, Mr. Morrow, as I am well aware by your conversation that you understand how to put our scheme through, what are your terms?"

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Now, Mr. Morrow, as I am well aware by your conversation that you understand how to put our scheme through, what are your terms?"

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

MORROW AND MORRISON.

The Official Plasterer of the Board Unbosoms Himself.

TALKING TO THE WRONG MAN

Revelations That Will Create No Little Surprise—Morrison's Right Hand Man Will Have to Explain.

$$$

During the controversy which arose some weeks ago in the board of school directors over the purchase of school furniture, the conduct of certain members aroused suspicion that something was wrong. Steps were taken by the board to ascertain what, if any, corrupt influence was being used. A reporter was detailed to keep his eye on the movements of suspected parties and follow up his inquiry as a detective to point that would place him in full possession of the actual state of facts.

The reporter went to work as directed and in a short time found that one William Morrow, a plasterer by trade and a ward burner and corner loafer by practice, had boasted of limited success with certain members of the board. This man Morrow has been on the payroll of the school board for many months as special plasterer and has drawn liberal allowance from the school fund for time which is known to have been largely devoted to political dirty work. Morrow's friends are well known to the board, and the fact he was the link between the board and the vulnerable members was established beyond a doubt by the reporter.

On a certain Sunday in September the reporter, in questing a furniture drummer in for a furniture factory, walked into the yard of Morrow's house and inquired whether Mr. Morrow lived there. A man with a very marked countenance, blue-eyed and bloated, responded, "That's my name," and when told that an interview was sought by the reporter, he motioned the reporter to follow him around the house out of hearing of his family. There the reporter, under the following confidential talk. During the conversation Morrow several times cautioned the reporter to lower his voice, as if to prevent anybody overhearing what was said.

Reporter—My name is Watson. I am agent of the Minneapolis School Furniture company and I want to secure the patronage of the board.

Morrow—Well, you are a stranger to me," interrupted Morrow, "and of course I might enlighten you provided I knew you better. Who referred you to me?"

Reporter—A member of the board (whom he named) to see Morrow, and succeeded in convincing the latter that everything was all right.

"Yes," mused Morrow, doubtfully; then a broad smile manifested over his countenance, and he continued in a confidential matter of business, you see. Of course you understand that we do not do this work for nothing."

Reporter—Yes, my experience has been that to gain a point in the desk business in a new territory a little currency is very desirable.

Morrow—You bet that's just what it is, and when agents don't look at it in this way they don't do very well. I have a few dollars in my pocket, and I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Yes, now my firm has given me a very big order, and I would like to have another manufacturer monopolize the trade. In fact, we have decided to reach out into this territory, and I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Now, Mr. Morrow, as I am well aware by your conversation that you understand how to put our scheme through, what are your terms?"

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Now, Mr. Morrow, as I am well aware by your conversation that you understand how to put our scheme through, what are your terms?"

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Now, Mr. Morrow, as I am well aware by your conversation that you understand how to put our scheme through, what are your terms?"

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Now, Mr. Morrow, as I am well aware by your conversation that you understand how to put our scheme through, what are your terms?"

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

Reporter—Now, Mr. Morrow, as I am well aware by your conversation that you understand how to put our scheme through, what are your terms?"

Morrow—Well, that depends on how you want me to go to work. I would like to see you put your hands on it.

A WILD AND WOOLLY CITY.

Situate Amidst the Sterile Plains of Grant County.

THE GAY AND FESTIVE COWBOY.

A Rendezvous of the Border Tough—Experiences of B. & M. Officials—Doc Middleton and the "Razzele Dazzele."

Whittman, Nebraska.

A little shanty town, possibly one hundred souls, nestling amidst the sterile sand-hills of Grant county, on the line of the Aurora, Ravenna and Broken Bow division of the B. and M. railroad. But few know anything about this unpretentious little hamlet, and care much less, still it has a history of its own that is well worth chronicling, and which may severely tax the credulity of the unsuspecting reader. One year ago Whittman was the terminus of the branch of the B. and M. mention, and fairly bristled and scintillated with life in its most robust form.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, consisting of railroad graders, cowboys, ranchmen, hunters, gamblers, cut-throats and thieves, with an overwhelming representation of the demi-monde of the lowest, most desperate and vicious stripe. The houses were more board shells, and laid out in two straight rows at the base of a lowering sand-hill and to the north of the hills to the south, was numerous tents, occupied variously by graders, Dagos, Irish, Mongolians and blacks—as well as hunters, trappers and murderers. It was a veritable frontier town, with all its rough and rugged concomitants, and as wild and woolly as ever Leadville, Deadwood, Abilene or Poker Flat were in their most halcyon days. Whittman was a lawless, unbridled and unrestrained, the lawless characters who rendezvoused here kept up one ceaseless saturnalia from one week's end to another.

It was a town