A Lonesome Journey.

James McMichael, of this city, while con veying the remains of a deceased relative, met with a somewhat peculiar experience several days ago. His niece, Mrs. George Trowbridge, died at Redfield, Ia., which is a hamlet located about ten miles from any railway station. He was engaged in bring-ing the corpse to Omaha for interment, when darkness overtook him on his pathway, which was followed soon after by a violent storm. The moonbeams were shut out by threatening black clouds that curtained the heavens and the darkness became so intense that Mr. McMichael was compelled to lead his horses, at the same time feeling, his way along the onesome journey, reaching his destination at daybreak.

A Plattsmouth Man Slugged.

John Murphy of Plattsmouth visited Omaha Saturday for the purpose of buying goods. He had several hundreds of dollars with him and expended the greater portion of it before starting for home at night, but he still had about 840 when nearing the B. & M. depot. When near the ice house he was assaulted by an unknown man, who struck him over the head with some sharp instru-ment, cutting his scalp to the bone and knocking him senseless. Robbery was evidently the object of the assailant, but he was apparently frightened away before accomplisning his purpose, as Mr. Murphy's valua-bles were untouched. He was removed to Bell's drug store, where his wounds were dressed, but not in time to catch the train

Elect Officers.

The Cambrian (Welsh) Literary society met last Friday evening. The following officers were elected for the season: President, William E. Hughes; secretary, E. C. ns; treasurer, Mrs. E. H. Jones. A ommittee was appointed to amend the con stitution and by-laws, consisting of the fol lowing: Rev. W. Roland Williams, Mr. Hugh Williams and E. H. Jones. An executive committee was also appointed, consisting of the president, secretary and treasurer and E. H. Jones and T. C. Humphreys. The main object of this society is to cultivate the mind. The programme will consist of addresses, debates, declamations, singing, etc. Quite an interest is manifested by the Welsh people of Omaha in this society, and all are cordially invited to attend. Meetings will be held every two weeks at the Welsh Presby-terian church, on Saunders street, near Cuming. The next meeting will be held November 16 at 7:30 p. m.

of foot passengers could not be ascertained, as all those riding in vehicles except the driver are considered as such. An estimate of the number of passengers crossing can be obtained, however, by averaging three to each vehicle, which would include those on foot, and put the number at 25,000, which is considered low. Notwithstanding this im-mense crowd, there were no accidents, although as evening came on more than one though as evening came on more than one driver attempted to skim along faster than the authorities will permit, but they were all promptly stopped by the employes on watch. The scheme of climbing up the sup-ports and so evading the fare, is a thing of the past, as the lattice work of the supports is now thickly interwoven with barbed wire and offers an insurmoutable barrier. The and offers an insurmountable partier. The motor did not cross the bridge yesterday, and probably will not until Tuesday. At the Union Pacific bridge the traffic over the foot and wagon bridge was very light, but the dummy trains showed no diminution in the number of passengers that utilized them, and probably will not until the motor is running, even if they do then.

BE STRONG IN THE LORD. Rev. Harsha's Advice to Young Men

From the Country. The Rev. W. J. Harsha, pastor of the First, Presbyterian church, took for his subject last evening "The Young Man From the Country." . The scriptural lesson was the summoning of David before Saul to take a position as a general. Saul wisned a man comely in person, mighty in valor and strong in the Lord. David was a young man brought up in the quiet of rural life, and pos-sessed in an eminent degree these manly and noble qualities. His bright eye and hand-some features were not flushed with the use of strong drinks. The simple habits of the country lad had made him strong in endur-ance and powerful in physique, and the careful training he had received at home made him a devout and God-fearing young

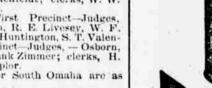

Many a young man comes to the city to-day as did David of old to enter upon the duties of a new life. The cities are great sores on the body politic, and are constantly growing. The great need of the hour is for the young men endowed, as was David, to contend with the hosts of sin. The great trouble with young men of to-day is neglect of little dayoung men of to-day is neglect of little da-tics. Attend to these and you are fitting yourself for future greatness. Be faithful to your duty. David lived just after the heroic age. How his heart must have thrilled as he listened to the stories of [Sampson and other heroes, and he strove to develop himself to equal them. He subjected himself to phys-ical discibling and toil and became herdy ical discipline and toil and became hardy and enduring. At the proper time he rested and refreshed himself by lighter pursuits. Recreation is proper and should be practiced with discrimination and discretion. One should rest, but not as some young men with a little wealth and little brains, who lie about all the time doing nothing. By proper about an the time doing holding. By proper rest and recreation we lay up strength against the day of trial. David played on the harp, and found in it rest and recreation, and the inspiration of this instrument softened the coarser elements of the man. David honored, loved and respected his parents. The young man who comer to the city and on getting high social standing becomes ashamed of his parents makes a great mistake. Prudence and patriotism were traits of David. He was a man of valor, He was a man who loved his countrymen. Patriotism is a great virtue. We have a land worth fighting for, a land worth dving

Young man, you may have a comely person like David, you may have patriotism, you may be exact in your attention to little things, but still these will not save your soul. The only way you can attain this is to trust in the Lord Jesus Christ and you shall be saved. You must be strong in the Lord.

GEORGIANNA CLARK.

Her Death Recalled in the Arrest of Her Mother.

The unpleasant episode with which the death of Georgianna Clark is connected was recalled yesterday in the arrest of Mrs. Phase Clark, mother of the deceased. It will be remembered that the former met her death while incarcerated as a prisoner in cell No. 2 of the central police station about one year ago. At the time several rumors were put affoat concerning the exact cause of her death, the more sensational being that it was the result of bodily inturies inflicted by members of the police department while she was being held a prisoner. The charges of this tenor were not substantiated, however, in a hearing before a coroner's jury, and the en-tire affair passed into memory. Yesterday, however, the monotony that surrounds the city bastile on a November Sabbath was broken when an aged colored woman was conveyed to the criminal docks, a prisoner on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. It was the mother of the deceased It was the mother of the deceased and the arrest was made at the intersection of Ninth street and Capital avenue, and was effected by Officer Bloom. As soon as the prisoner inhaled the damp-med atmosphere and caught sight of the ened atmosphere and caught sight of the huge iron bars that once contained the form of her offspring reposing in death, she be-came frautic and made desperate efforts to escape.

escape. "Don't put me in that cell," pointing to the one in which her daughter died. "That is where Georgia was murdered. You ruffians killed her, and you intend to kill me too. Don't put me in the place where she died." The jailor took the woman by the arm and led her to the chamber set aside for female prisoners, where she dilated on the situation in tones so audible, that many of the mi-gatory element, commonly styled "vags," were awakened from their slumbers, and treated to a metaphorical review of what the treated to a metaphorical review of what the old jail might tell could it but give utterance.

SUNDAY ON THE BRIDGE.

Twenty-five Thousand People Crowd the New Highway.

The nevelty of the new bridge has not worn off by any means, and the traffic over it yesterday was in excess of that a week ago, when it was first thrown open to the public. A few straggling teams made their appearance in the early hours, but about S o'clock they came in one continuous stream, that soon exhausted the supply of tickets, and left the company entirely at the mercy of its employes, so far as receipts were conof its employes, so far as receipts were con-cerned. They were kept busy until about 11 o'clock, when the traffic slackened up some-what, only to be renewed in greater numbers from 2 o'clock until 5. A count of vehicles going castward was made at the power house on the lowa side, and 110 passed that point in ten minutes, while nearly as many were passing in the opposite direction. This would give over eight thousand for the day, and is probably near the correct number, as five extra men were kept constantly employed in preventing them from crowding each other while on the bridge. The number
