An accident on one of the moters delayed travel for half an hour last evening. Some of the machinery got out of place while rounding the curve at the corner of Fourth and Broadway, and the car remained stationery for sometime until an investigation could be made and the trouble remedied. Waiting passengers fully appreciate the heaters with which the cars are now supplied.

Monday evening Mr. Lew Hibbens, lesee and manager of the Central Variety Theater, Council Bluffs, was the recipient of a handsome Christmas present, the gift of the employes of the theater, in the shape of a very elegant gold-headed walking cane, suitably engraved. The presentation took place on the could be controlled the public stage, and the warm plaudits of the people showed that they shared in the feelings of friendship shown Mr. Hibbens. Yesterday, Messrs. Kelly & Younkerman perpetrated a genuine surprise upon Andy Bell, the genial news agent on Upper Broadway. They cailed the young man from his work. He didn't know whether it meant a discharge, a raise in salary, or what not. When he was worked up to the proper pitch of anticipation the firm pulled a fine watch on Andy and told him to keep a "watch" on the customers' wants and not run too much on "tick."

Chief C. D. Walters, of the fire depart ment, was most agreeably surprised yesterday morning by the men in his charge, who presented him with an elegant gold watch. The affair was very neatly managed by the fire laddies. The big bell on the central station was cut out from the circuit, and an alarm turned in from house No. 4, on Upper Broadway. That brought the entire department, including Chief Walters, to the spot in short order. On arriving there the chief was invited to step forward, and Mr. J. R. Dietrich presented the watchwith appropriate remarks. The recipient was completely sur-prised, but managed to express his thanks for the honor done him as well as for the handsome token of esteem. The greatest surprise, however, was yet to come. As soon as he had presented Chief Waiters with his watch, Mr. Dictrich turned to Assistant Chief Nicholson and presented him with a fine silver watch. The assistant was too as-tonished to reply. He had been active in perfecting the arrangements for the first pre-sentation, and when he was called up was too utterly astounded to speak. The affair did not require much time, and passed off very pleasantly.

AND AT THE INSTITUTION.

A Day of Peace-With Gifts of Good Will-Sneak Thief Caught-More Light Wanted-Some Object.

Bow the Day Was Celebrated. Christmas day in the Bluffs passed as others have done in past years, very quietly. and yet joyously. Upon every corner was heard the familiar greeting, "A Merry Christmas," as friend exhibited to friend the gift which Santa Claus had brought him. During the early hours of the day a few stores were opened to deliver purchases of the day before, but there was no attempt to 'do business." There were numberless renions, and families broken by removals and narriages were gathered once more, without the loss of one, around the family board. At many tables there were vacant chairs and as the invocation for the blessing of heaven was raised many an eye was dimmed and hearts grew sad. But they are the changes the years bring to all-the record of human life. At St. Paul's .- In some of the churches religious services were held. That at St. Paul's Episcopal church was most appropriate and enjoyable. At 10:33 a. m., the rector, Rev. T. J. Mackay, delivered an excellent discourse. The musical exercises were excellent. The following programme was ralto; I. M. Treynor, solo; W. H. Treynor, This Christmas celebration will be concluded Friday evening, at which time the Sunday school and church quartette will render the pleasing Christmas cantata, "St. Nicholas." The work has been in good hands, is well rehearsed, and will prove an enjoyable entertainment.

The quartette was organized as follows:

First Baptist Church—Last evening the children and adult members of the First Baptist Sunday school and church gathered in their edifice. There was little attempt at in their edifice. There was little attempt at formality, no regular programme of exercises having been prepared. It was a merry crowd and with songs and short speeches the hours passed most pleasantly. There was an old fashioned Christmas tree, loaded to the top with beautiful gifts for the children, and a genuine live Santa Claus. Every child received a present at Santa's hands.

A pleasing feature was the voluntary giving to the poor. Many articles which will make the worthy poor more comfortable and happier, were brought together by those who came. To day these articles will be placed where they will do the most good.

Bethany Baptist Church—At the same time

where they will do the most good.

Bethany Baptist Church—At the same time there was a joyous gathering at the Bethany Baptist church. The scholars of the Sunday school gathered and spent a season in healthy enjoyments furnished by the teachers and adult members. The Christmas tree with its fruitage of wealth for the boys and girls was there. In the good cheer, exhibited, there there. In the good cheer exhibited there was that which promises much for the future of this young and rapidly growing church.

Mites From the Motor.—The motor line did a land office business. During the forenoon the rush was from Omaha to Council Bluffs. Every train was packed to its limit. Most of these persons spent the day with friends here. It was not altogether a one-sided artheir turkey with their Omaha friends, the moter doing by far the larger share of the carrying business. A good service was ren-dered, trips being made in about twenty five minutes. Beyond the sneak thieving nar-rated elsewhere, there were no accidents or eidents worthy of special note. The switch at the west end of the bridge is nearly completed. Two more cars have arrived and in four or five days a ten-minute service will be put on. The cars are well heated and the trip is made a most conforta-

The hotels were well patronized, although many regular quests accepted invitations to dine with private families, somewhat dimin-ishing the number that would otherwise have filled the dining halls. Still there were plenty to do justice to the splendid Christ-mas banquets spread at the principal hostleries. The saloons did a rushing business during the entire day and evening, vieing with the motor in securing a monopoly of the business. Disturbances were scarce, as the po-lice were on the alert, and promptly locked up all drunks and too hilarious parties.

Santa at the Institution, Santa Claus has some very heavy work for Christmas, but does it joyfully. Among his greatest and happiest was the caring for the pupils of the institution for the deaf and dumb. The family is of goodly size, there being 275 pupils and about fifty officers, teachers and employes. To care for every member of this great family, and make the day a happy one in every detail, is enough to make the head dizzy. Santa had able assistants, however, Superintendent Rothert proving to be a host within himself, and his worthy wife, the matron, being equally active in her department. The children spent Christmas eve very joyously. The chapel was very handsomely decorated, festooned with green, and glittering with holiday baubles. In the center stood as beautiful a Christmas tree as was ever seen. It was fully twenty feet high, and adorned elaborately. When lighted and surrounded by the happy faces it, was a picture indeed. The early part of the evening was devoted to an entertainment on the stage. The reci-tations were in the sign language. A very amusing hat drill was given well by six boys. Tableaux were given with charming effect. A series of comical shadow pictures closed the programme with great merriment. The rest of the evening was given to refreshments and social enjoyment. The pupils received bags of popcorn, nuts, can lies and fruits. Those were put up in attractive and bountiful packages. There was dancing, strangely enough without music, an orchesstrangely enough without music, an orchestra for them being needless. It is surprising, however, how gracefully they can dance, keeping excellent time, and going through all the usual figures and steps.

Yesterday morning there was an even happier time. The pupils were seated in the chapel, while Prof. Wyckoff gave them a Christmas talk. In the meantime the boxes and parcels received from friends were distributed through the various rooms. To the Al ware added numerous gifts by the inand parcels received from friends were dis-tributed through the various rooms. To these were added numerous gifts by the in-stitution, some of the pupils not having friends able to send them gifts. After the close of the exercises in the chapel the pupils went to their rooms, and each found upon his or her bed the gifts. A happier scene could not be imagined. Every pupil received some gifts.

A Christmas dinner was served. Some idea may be gained of the work of preparation by the fact that over seventy turkeys were cooked. It took a whole barrel of cranberries for the sauce, and to make the mince pies 130 pounds of meat was required. Following this came a series of surprises for Superintendent H. W. Rothert and his estimable wife. The teachers residing at the institution presented them with a beau-tiful silk umbrella. The officers and em-ployes came in with a full china dinner set, and the domestics in the various departments and the domestics in the various departments with a large group photograph of themselves. The gifts presented showed the esteem in which the superintendent and matron are held by all who meet them in daily contact. They were all received with the highest ex-

They were all received with the highest expressions of appreciation and regard.

Superintendent Rothert is a strong combination of executive ability and big heartedness. The arrangements for making the children happy clearly indicate this. It is no easy task to receive so many hundred packages and purcels, see that each one is properly delivered, notify the friends sending them that they have been received all ing them that they have been received all right, planning that they shall be all distributed at the same time, and perfecting every detail for so huge a Christmas gathering. For those friendless ones gifts had being. For those trendless ones gits and to be selected, or made, so that none might be slighted. The merchants of the city gen-erously donated some articles and many others were provided by Mrs. Rothert and the various departments.

The trustees of the institution authorized

Mr. Rothert to select for them suitable gifts for the school. He wisely secured some Indian clubs, dumb bells and innocent games, chess, checkers, etc. These are given to the school as a whole to be used in the gymna-slum and playrooms, There have been great changes wrought in and about the institution of late. The elec-tric plant is one of the greatest. There are four hundred incandescent lights scattered through the buildings, so that there is not a dark corner or nook. When lighted at night it looks like a fairy city. The superintendent has had it so arranged that by a simple turn of the wrist be can give signals by these lights in any and all parts of the building. He was tell the children to make less ing. He can tell the children to make less noise, go to bed, warn them of a fire, or give them any needed information in accordance with a prearranged code of signals. As they depend upon the eye, rather than the ear, this Electric signal arrangement is very val-

The heating and ventilation are as per-fectly arranged as the lighting. Guages in the s perintendent's office indicate even the cona...ion of the great boilers, and he can see for himself that the rooms are not allowed to get either too cold or too warm. get either too cold or too warm.

For fire protection, there are escapes and hose for every part of the building. Watchmen are on duty all night, seeing that the temperature is kept suitable, and that no accidents occur. With commendable thought-fulness, the custom of having a man watchman for the girls' part of the building has been changed and in the part of the building has been changed, and a woman watchman is placed on the lookout there.

A passenger elevator is now running, though not fully completed. It is the only institution for the deaf and dumb thus favored. It is run by water, and every contri vance is being used to prevent all possibility of accident.

The water supply is now abundant and conviently arranged. The artesian well for a year furnished the water, sending it to the topmost story, but it was found that the supply needed some change, so a reservoir has been built, and a pump of large capacity now forces the water. Hot and cold water, closets, bathrooms, and all needed comforts for the pupils are conveniently arranged, so that the sanitary conditions are almost perfect. As a result a healthier, cleaner gather-ing of children can be found nowhere. The health of the institution is furthered by the food. The storerooms, bakery, kitchen and dining-room are all so conducted as to tend to the welfare of the children. All are scrupulously clean. In such rooms as need it cement floors and wainscots have been put in, doing away with all possibility for rats and mice, and drains and ventilation are kept so clean that no unsavory odors can creep in.

One of the greatest of the late improvements is that in the hospital department. The fifth floor, which was simply an attic, has been transformed into one of the most complete hespitals to be found anywhere. The various wards are made very attractive, the views from the windows being lovely, the rooms light and airy, supplied with hot and cold water, closets, bath-rooms, etc. The nurse has conveniences in a separate room for preparing delicacies. The physican has his room with all needed appliances at hand. One ward is called a preparatory room, where a sick one can be cared for if there are any indications of any contagious disease. When these are developed sufficiently to determine, the patient can be easily removed to the contagious ward, or to one of the others. The contagious ward is so arranged that no infection can possibly onter someter part of the basid. in, doing away with all possibility for rats gious ward is so arranged that no infection can possibly enter another part of the build-ing. By speaking tubes and other contrivances easy communication can be had with other parts of the building, and without any danger of contagion. The health of the pnpils is evidently good, for the hospital de-partment is empty, not one being even in the convalescent ward.

A visit to the institution and a mingling with the children reveals a very happy state of affairs. The avowed policy of the present management is that the institution is for the pupils, rather than for the officers and employes. In every arrangement there is evinced a desire to make these people happier and better. They are taught table man ners and the tin cups and battered plates common to reformatory institutions are re placed by the crockery more in keeping with such an educational institution. The pupils have their meals served first. In fact, they are first in everything. This was pleasingly illustrated in the distribution of fruits and candies. The smaller ones were the first to receive their bags, and the older and larger ones, who could better brook a little delay, came afterwards. The pupils show in their mien and appearance that they feel that they have a home, and are at home in it. Their individuality is also respected. They are not numbered simply, as though they were branded cattle, but each has his or her peculiar wants and wishes considered. Their clothing, their beds, their places at the table, their personal property, is treated as really theirs to have and control, under such general regulations as are of course necessary n such a large household. Prof. Wyckoff, who has charge of the edu cational department, is keeping that fully abreast of the others. The course of intellectual training is thorough and successful. In the art department there is good work being done also, as the numerous pictures upon the walls throughout the institution testify, they being all the work of pupils. The industrial departments are giving the pupils practical training, a portion of each day being devoted to these. Iowa can well feel proud of its institution. Its legislators should not be niggardly in making appropria-tions to further the efficiency of the institu-tion. There are numerous needs, and the expenditures made by the trustees show that the money of the people is not being used for mere luxuries, but for the bettering and the education of the pupils themselves.
