The church mission fair held at the National hall, corner of Williams and South Thirteenth streets Thursday night, was a grand success. A large crowd was present. This intricate question was solved by continuing the fair last night, and every thing was sold at low prices or given away.

While speaking to the firemen about the matter, Galligan, who was intoxicated, commenced to swear at him and call him vile names. He shook his fist under Haze's nose and struck him on the lip. It is Discussed at a Meting of Omaha

The meeting of the Knights of Labor and such other citizens as are interested in reforming the present system of voting, was held in the city hall Thursday night. The attendance was small, and some of the expected speakers were absent but shortly after 8 o'clock Charles Abernethy took the chair called the meeting to order. He explained that the slim attendance was due to a lack of advertising and then introduced H. D. Estabrook, as the first speaker, He referred to the recent elections, and said results would have been different in many cases had the balloting been done in absolute secrecy. He thought that the Australian system, or some suitable modification of it, would be beneficial, and that a clause should be added to the charter, enabling the city of Omaha, at least, to adopt it. He thought that any one should be eligible to run for office if backed up by a petition signed by 200 citizens.

G. M. Hitchcock was not surprised that organized labor had taken up the task of re-forming the ballot, for it was the greatest sufferer by the present system. The last election showed that in many cases it was money that voted, and not men, and it was in the interest of intelligent men to adopt some plan to overcome the evils of the present system. The Australian plan seemed the best, and if it was given a test in Omaha and proved satisfactory, it would doubtless be inorporated as a state law by the next legis-

Con Lynch was the next speaker, and said that all the evils of the country could be traced to the misrule of the ballot-box, where the use of money helped to form "what you almost can call a monarchy." The Australian system would do away with this, and the meeting should take steps to bring it before the legislature for the benefit not only of the workingman, but of

J. J. Points referred to the industrial slavery that was creeping upward in the land, and said that that the secrecy of the ballot alone could prevent money from carving the elections James Young thought a public meeting, properly advertised, should be called, and it was finally decided to have next Thursday night as the time, and the city council cham-ber as the place. The management was left n the hands of Messrs, Hitchcock, Esta brook and Abernethy as a committee, and the meeting adjourned.

AN EX-COUNTY ATTORNEY. E. W. Simeral Tells of His Work

While in Office. Yesterday E. W. Simeral, ex-county retires to the attorney, private practice of his profession. His is filled by T. J. Mahoney.

recently elected, whose assistant is Justice

Mr. Simeral was inducted to office in Jan uary, 1887, as the first county attorney of Douglas. That being a fact, it required on his part a formation of the machinery of the office almost entirely.

The great volume of his business has been the prosecution of criminals. This kept Mr. Simeral and deputies busy all the time. The fact that the county attorney in most cases takes the place of the grand jury, as lately decided by our supreme court, makes it an office of great responsibility, consequently one requiring judgment and discrimination. Mr. Simeral has tried during the two years he has been in office in the neighborhood of 175 jury cases, or an average of about thirty to the term. Out of that number, considerably over two-thirds were convicted. He tried six murder cases, two of which he in-herited from the last district attorney, Lee Estelle. He has paid into the county treasknown one-armed flagman at the Union Pacific ury $000 on forfeiture bond; collected fines of $1,500, has tried a number of civil cases for the county, and there has been hardly a a week in which he has not given a writ-ten opinion to the board of 'county commissioners or some of the county officials. Dur ing his administration, the county commis-sioners advised with him relative to the enormous expenses of the county jail the alleged abuses practiced there. He quested the judges of the district court to call a grand jury, the only one called during his term, for the purpose of investigating jail affairs. The report of the grand jury, as well as the subsequent action on the part of the county commissioners, which resulted in reducing the expenses of this institution fully one-third, is well known to the readers of The Bre. It was through the county attorney's action in securing a mandamus in the supreme court of the state that finally settled the city council-police board embroglio in favor of the city. This was a vexed question that excited and un-settled the business of the city for months. Mr. Sineral is of the opinion that it would be a grave mistake for the legislature to in any way tamper with the present law governing the police, or abolishing the po-lice commission as it is now constituted. He observed that if anything, greater power should be given to them so as to alienate the police and fire departments in a way that would relieve them from the whims of the city council. This could be effectively accomplished by so amending the law as to permit of this department to levy taxes for the support of these two arms of the govern nent, as is done in most metropolitan cities.

In retiring from office Mr. Simeral fully appreciates the kindness of the judges of the courts, before whom he has so frequently appeared; also the courtesies extended him y the county commissioners, county officials, chief of police and police force. Advice to Mothers. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should al-ways be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. 25c a bottle.

Nebraska's "Chicken Feed." Upwards of $5,000 in all species of United States coin, bilis and checks was received at the postofice Thursday. It is compulsory for country postmasters of Nebraska to send the cash accumulated during each preceding quarter to the postmaster of Omaha. This must be done during the first two weeks of each quarter. There are 900 postoffices in Nebraska, and as each has to report in a registered letter or package, the result is that a great deal of extra work falls to the lot of the clerical help at the postofilee. The pre-cious coin was conveyed in all kinds of pack-nges. One of these, which contained eleven silver dollars, seven nickles, three dimes and seventy-five one-cent pieces, was sent in a cigar box. Seventeen one-dollar bills were rolled in a piece of flannel and sent as a "wad." Five ten-dollar gold pieces were wrapped in cotton wool and forwarded in a pill box. Each receipt requires five entries and two receipts must be sent to the post-master remitting the money. A statement of account is sent here, that is forwarded to Washington with one of the receipts given by Postmaster Gallagher.

Die, Burglar.

When Lew Hawkins reached his home at 809 Howard street about 11 o'clock Thursday night, he found himself face to face with a burglar in the hallway. The fellow struck at him and attempted to knock him down, but Hawkins was too much for him, and a couple of well-directed blows left the burglar sprawl ing on the floor. He then jerked out a pecket knife in absence of any other weapon and planting his knee on the thief's breast threatened to end the latter's existence im-mediately if he did not surrender. The burglar readily consented to this proposition and Lew with knife in hand marched him to the nearest policeman. On returning home Hawkins and his wife found that although considerable rumaging had been done nothing but an abron was missing. It is supposed that the burglar intended to use this article to wrap up the valuables he intended stealing. At the police station the chopfailen burgiar gave the name of Harry Hiley
