MINOR MENTION.

N. Y. Plumbing company. Council wood. E. E. Mayne, 619 B'way. The city council meets to-morrow evening in regular session. The smallpox case seems over. There was never much to cause it, and there isn't that much now. Building permits were issued yesterday to Mrs. Lucy for a 500 cottage, and to M. E. Miller for a $1,000 residence.

The Jealousy of the Stars. For the past two or three days several of the local papers have been trying to decide who ought to have the credit for the arrest of the man Rice, who was detected disposing of the rare coin stolen from the Edison Museum in Omaha, a few days ago. One paper says that Chief Lucas worked up the case with infinite skill, and should have full credit, and another details the experience of Captain Dyer during his midnight vigil while watching the fellow spend the money, and insists that it belongs to the credit of praise.

The annual report of the board of trade has the list of the members and a page "in memoriam," with the name of Elijah Elvira Harkness, that being the only death during the year. The meeting of the board of trade on Tuesday evening will be an important one as it involves the reorganization of the board, election of officers, final reports of committees, etc. Everyone should plan to be present.

Chief Lucas leans very favorably to the former version, but insists that he is not looking after praise. He has no reputation to make, etc. He wants the boys to have full credit, and get all they can. When asked by a reporter for the actual facts in the case above referred to, the chief was quite reticent, but finally told his interrogator to see a colored man named Brown, who was present at the dance where the arrested man was.

The winter vacation is now over and the public schools will open as usual to-morrow morning. There will be no changes outside of those attendant upon the opening of the new Atkins building, the which have already been mentioned in these columns. Past Grand James F. Spore, of Hawkeye Lodge, I. O. O. F., and captain of the degree team, combined and captured and subordinate regalia, by the members of the degree team, as a token of their regard for him as a leader and respected member of the order.

Contractor Chris Straub has completed the brick work on the new four story building now in course of erection at the factory on the Keyes Bros. Cart and Buggy company. The building is a handsome one, and one that will reflect great credit on the city. It will be ready for occupancy in about a month, and the work done then will give employment to about 100 hands.

There is a discordant element that is continuing to disturb the peace of mind, and with a certain jealousy, is responsible for all this difficulty. A thorough overhauling of the force would undoubtedly be productive of as much good as any increase of the number of the body would be an increase in numbers in its present unsatisfactory condition.

Mr. George E. McMahon and Miss Nettie B. Moomaw were united in marriage yesterday at the residence of the bride's parents, on Logan street, by Rev. D. C. Franklin, of the M. E. church. The newly wedded couple are both well and favorably known in this city, where the bride has always resided, and the groom has passed a part of his life. They will immediately take up their residence at his farm in Hardin township. The best wishes of many friends are theirs for life's greatest happiness and prosperity.

Major Hendershot, the original drummer boy of the Rappahannock, and his son assisted by the local talent will give an entertainment at the opera house, Wednesday evening, the 10th inst. Major Hendershot's performances on the drum are simply wonderful, and the old soldiers almost imagine the war is not over yet as they listen to his imitations of a battle.

mustn't do it though. But I'll tell you on the quiet, that there isn't one patron out of ten that follows the instructions published for the benefit of subscribers. Now, for instance, you know that one ring is for the central office, and that to call a subscriber two rings are to be given. Then you know that the operator at the central office will talk with you and so let up there. Then, when the subscriber has got through talking with the other subscriber, he wants to call another number, and so he rings for central again. The operator, fearing that he will offend by again responding, pays no attention, and after a little while, down for not answering. Lots of such cases occur, and it is very perplexing. We're going to make a strict rule after this, and when there is one ring we shall take it as being for the central and shall cut it in. It is the only way to get the subscribers of the future to have some system about the use of signals. The telephone system won't run itself. It's like any other system. We have some system about it. If subscribers would only pay a little attention to this, the service would be much more satisfactory. When you have a little space to spare in the New Year, you would fix up something about it. You know how I don't want to give offense, but you can suggest in some way that will strike them all right.

AN ELECTRICAL ARSENAL. The Danger of Guy Wires Attached to Poles. An electrical freak of a most peculiar nature occurred on Common street, near Holivar, says the New Orleans Picayune, which resulted in the destruction of a shade tree on the sidewalk. A guy wire leading from an electric street lamp at the corner had been made fast to the tree, and as the ice came in many places in this city, it became fully charged with the electrical fluid. The tree was in some manner coming in contact with the live wire of the Louisiana Electric Light company. Whenever the weather was damp or rainy the current found its way down the guy wire to the ground, and at times a bright spark was visible when the wire touched the trunk of the tree about seven feet above the ground. The facts were reported to the company, but the tree was not removed, although it was considered as dangerous. The other night the contact between the wire and the tree appeared to have been almost constant and perfect, and the tree was so completely permeated the atmosphere in the vicinity. The next morning the top of the tree from the wire encircling it fell, being doubtless pushed over by the weight of the ice. On examining the stump of the tree it was found that the heart and wood around it was much more charred and burned than the bark, and the tree from the top of the stump was in a large group was virtually a large tube, the current having burned out the wet portion of the tree (which was the heart) in seeking the ground.

A Failing Industry. "Pack," "And if you can't make any more of 'em, trade 'em for poor fellows," said the old lady, as she gave the tramp some luncheon, "why don't you try your hand at something else?" "Me health, num," he replied, "won't permit me to undertake other work. It's a shrikebird of a trade, num, but the business appears to be pretty well played out."

THE COAL BILLS. "Have you got about ten minutes?" asked one of the coal dealers yesterday. "I want to show you some invoices and freight bills. I don't see how any business man can figure as you say in the papers. The idea of there being 100 per cent profit in coal is an all right thing in the first place, no one is paying $5.50 a ton for soft coal. Most are selling for $4.50 to $5, according to quality. Now here is the quotation from the Whitebreast mine, December 10. You see lamp coal is $2.25 at the mines. Here's the freight rate, $1.24. That makes $3.99 a ton. Now we are actually paying 40 cents a ton for delivery, and we cannot figure less than 25 cents a ton for storage. That makes the coal cost us $4.24. That leaves a profit of 90 cents a ton. You don't call that too much, do you?"

TEXAS IN 1837 had no jails, and had just cut loose from Mexico, and there were no money, and the country was a lawless whirling, large whirling and branding for minor crimes—death. For murder, horse stealing and forgery—death. I was a soldier in Gen. Houston's army and recall one instance of horse stealing when the guilty party was permitted to escape. It was in Montgomery county in 1837. The man was tried, found guilty, put upon the horse he had stolen, his legs tied under the horse and he was led to the edge of the tree by a log, some twenty or more members of the "court," all mounted and armed. Arriving at the end of the timber, all dismounted, except the prisoner, and setting their feet upon the log, they commenced looking around for a suitable gallows tree. One of the party discovered, about 300 yards out on the prairie, such a tree with a large limb growing at right angles to the trunk, some ten feet from the ground. He remarked that the Lord had planted it there to hang our horse thief on. Agreed, and the whole party walked, leaving the guns and horses behind, leading the condemned to the edge of the tree. It was found hard to climb the tree. The discoverer of it asked for a "boost." Being a large, fat man, it took all that could get around him to give the boost, but they did it, and he climbed to the limb. One end of the rope was around the prisoner's neck; to get the other end fast to the limb was the task set for the man up the tree. After several throws he caught the rope in one hand, but every time failed to catch the end. The committee all had their eyes on him, looking up. The prisoner at the other end of the rope, and liberty in it. He drove his heels against the horse's sides. Luckily he had stolen a good fast horse—and like a flash away went horse and rider, and in no alarm of the outcry the fat man up the tree missed his hold and fell to the ground, badly hurt of course. The fugitive went flying over the prairie, the rope streaming behind his neck. The vigilance party followed him. The vigilance party followed him. The excitement was over a meeting of the court was held, to reconsider the matter of nature having planted that particular tree to hang that particular man upon, and was unanimously carried that it was not.

THE PERMANENT PIMPLE. The American Analyst, a very common error is the belief that a red nose or chin, or pimples or "blossoms" about that part of the face, are the result of hard drinking, and are always indicative of that vice. With many persons this is the case. The more rapid the movement of the heart, the rapid heating of the body and the slow weakening of the blood, three of the chief results of the use of alcohol upon the system, two of them being symptoms mentioned, as well as others more serious. These symptoms often rise from other and very different causes. In some instances exposure to the sunlight, protracted riding a hard, distasteful horse from those of alcoholic indulgence, more especially with those with impure blood, or whose habits have not been marked by the regularity demanded by health. Tight lacing or even the mere wearing of stays, no matter how loosely these may fit, or how soft and flexible the material from which they are made, frequently excite the same effect in woman and abstinent maid has acquired the reputation of being a hard drinker from the appearance of her face, when, as a matter of fact, her only fault has been to desire to look attractive and to foolish expression in the compression of
