Coal Thieves. W. J. Hansen, a rather respectable appearing Dane, pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing a sack of coal from the B. & M. company. The theft occurred Saturday night, and Hansen said he was out of coal and money, and as he would not draw his wages from the packing house until to-day, he decided that the B. & M. was rich enough to furnish him a bushel of coal, and he helped himself.

Military Sinners. Sunday six convicts left Fort Omaha for Leavenworth military prison, namely: Privates Orbinson, O'Connors, Miller, Irving, Donahue and Hester. The City Printing. The city commission on printing to whom was referred the bids of several newspapers, has decided that although the Dispatch was the lowest bidder, that paper could not compete under the provisions of the charter, because it has existed but six days, whereas the law requires that a newspaper must have existed for at least six months.

The Tiger at Florence. The nine men who were caught gambling Saturday night at Florence appeared before Judge Olmstead yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The building, in which the quiet game is going on belonged to W. C. Lester's son, and was a most suspicious-looking house. The door is in the rear, and the place has no windows.

The man, Martin, who shot Mike Daly, ran the game until his departure. Mr. Tucker, the proprietor of the Tucker hotel, was authorized by Marshal Walker to take part in the game Saturday night so that evidence might be procured for the state against the men who, for some time past, have not only been playing themselves, but have been enticing others to play.

All persons having any claims against either the Grand Central or Midway hotels of Kearney, Neb., are hereby requested to present same, as I wish to settle all claims at once.

T. C. BRAINARD, Proprietor.

Motor Poles Again. Yesterday several more poles painted red were erected on Douglas street, it is claimed, by the Thompson-Houston Electric Light company. They are placed, however, where they can be utilized for the two wires across the street to permit of the suspension of the copper wires lengthwise with the street, for the motor line. These poles are at the corner of Eleventh, Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, at which places they may also be used to replace some of the older poles of the electric light company.

The two wires have been strung across Douglas street and between all the poles erected for the purpose, as far as the Millard hotel, the last wire being strung from one of the red poles to the main pole of the Postal telegraph company, which is in front of the office of that company.

It is expected that a couple of days will be required to stretch the copper wires, and following them will come the motor cars. These will run to the westward, thence to the Douglas, and returning, will take the Y at Twelfth street, thus enabling them to put the motor cars in front for the ride to the bluff.

AUSTRALIAN VOTING SYSTEM.

Percy Pepon Holds That It Ought to be Adopted. The following communication by Percy Pepon has been addressed to THE BEE, under date of January 6: "Your editorial in this morning's issue upon the Australian system of voting will be unsatisfactory and disappointing to the labor organizations which have taken up the reform, and it is to be hoped that, on a more thorough examination of the question, THE BEE will adopt the views held by the organized and unorganized labor of the country, and by the republican party of New York state, rather than those held by the D. B. Hill wing of the New York democracy."

"You say, under the peculiar conditions that surround our electoral system, the proposed reform is impracticable. What are these peculiar conditions? What conditions surround the electoral system of Nebraska that do not surround those of Victoria, New South Wales, and Canada, previous to the adoption of the Australian system of voting those countries? What conditions prevail in any cosmopolitan American city, to render the Australian ballot less effective than it has proven to be in that most cosmopolitan city, London."

The sole specific objection you urge against the Australian system is this: "In Nebraska, thousands of foreign-born English speakers are unable to intelligently cast their vote on the peculiar ticket, which the Australian system proclaims. I have never seen such a voter. In Nebraska, the foreign vote, aside from emigrants from English speaking countries, is almost entirely German, Scandinavian and Bohemian. These three people have compulsory education in their own countries, and can read and write their own languages, every man of them. Those who can read any language can vote intelligently on the Australian ticket. The names of the candidates printed thereon, and the names of the candidates in the newspapers published in his own language, the difference in the alphabets not being a serious obstacle to the voter, an American or foreigner who has resided here six months, and who can read his own language, can tell the meaning of the "provisional," "prohibition," and "prohibition," wherever he may see them; and it is thus that the politics of candidates is distinguished from the politics of the candidates themselves. Can a voter who cannot vote intelligently on the Australian ticket vote intelligently on any ticket? Moreover, the illiterate, blind or physically disabled voter is fully provided for by the law. The ballots will be read to them and prepared under their direction by election officers, who will be selected from all political parties, sworn not to advise or attempt to influence a voter in his vote, or to divulge how any such voter votes. For the violation of these provisions severe penalties are provided. These provisions evidently give the illiterate and blind a fair chance to exercise a free and intelligent ballot than under the present system of mob rule at the polls. In the illiterate voter system his vote is absolutely secret by asking the election officers to read to him the candidates for each office, with their politics, and designate the position these candidates occupy on the ticket. He may then retire to a private booth, mark his ticket as to the first office, and the election officers will read the names he has marked, and return to the election officers for information as to the names of candidates for the next offices. This mode of proceeding is provided for by the law to protect illiterate voters who care to take advantage of it. However, Nebraska's percentage of illiterates is small as to make it a very unimportant factor.

"The California system, which you advocate as preferable to the Australian system, is worthless as a reform measure, because it reforms no real abuses. It differs from the laws of other states merely in forbidding the presence of ticket peddlers and political workers within a certain number of feet of the polling-places. Experience has shown, what should have been evident in the beginning, that the ticket peddler system is not less bribery and intimidation. The man who desires to sell his vote receives his ticket outside of the 'dead-line,' keeps it in sight until he hands it in, and surrenders it to the election officer. The man who has watched him from beyond the magic circle. Depend on it, voters are intimidated in the same way. The employer, boss or striker gives him his ticket and gives him to understand that it is in his interest to keep his ticket in sight until he hands it in, and until he hands it to the election officer.

"The Australian voting system has been brought to perfection by thirty-seven years of actual experience in that country, under the same conditions that exist now in Nebraska. The first election act passed in Australia in 1856, was constructed on the principles of the laws now in force there and in Great Britain, Canada, and the Massachusetts law and New York bill cover all of the changes and improvements upon the original act of 1856, which experience has shown to be necessary. It prevents bribery and intimidation, which the other system has done and can do, by destroying the party booth and the machine it compels the nomination of good men by all parties. It compels parties to rely for success on an appeal to reason instead of political management. It is more economical than the present system. It is as much the function of the state to print and distribute the tickets as it is to provide and pay election officers and rent polling places. When left to private parties forty times as many tickets are printed and distributed as are voted. The state assuming its proper functions would thus effect a great saving to the community as a whole in the printing of tickets. The expenditure of vast amounts at each election for paying ticket peddlers, running the political machines and bribing voters is thereby considered a necessity in doubtful states, would be saved and allowed to remain in legitimate business. Such general reforms as we hope for will be possible when money and undue influence cannot command majorities.

"The last mentioned is the chief reason why the organized labor of the country is solid for the Australian system. On this point there is no longer any difference of opinion among workmen, because reform has been endorsed by the official representatives of every labor organization in America. In the labor organizations are moving together, with every hope of success. We naturally look to THE BEE for sympathy and help."

From the Council Bluffs Nonpareil, Dec. 12, 1889.

We are exceedingly informed that the mortality from diphtheria in the treatment of Dr. Thos. Jeffers of this city is merely nominal, not exceeding one-fifth of one per cent. Such a record is a case no time should be lost in placing his remedy within the reach of every family and thus save annually hundreds of thousands of lives. Diphtheria is the most universally destructive pestilence that has afflicted the world during the last hundred years.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, COUNCIL BLUFFS, Jan. 7, 1889.—I do not hesitate to say that the success attending the use of Dr. Jeffers' Preventive and Cure for Diphtheria has no equal, I speak from experience, having used it in my own family. I am also well acquainted with the facts connected with its use in our city.

No physician required. Price of remedy $3. Address, box No. 457, Omaha, Neb. (Dr. Jeffers has retired from active practice.)

Farmer Craig Discovers Two of His Horses in This City.

Saturday THE BEE contained a report of a holocaust that occurred on the farm of John Craig, about six miles from Schuyler, Neb., in which forty-five horses, seventy cattle and twenty hogs were burned up, likewise $1,000 worth of other property and a number of blooded cattle, entailing a loss of over $20,000.

Friday, Marshal Degan, of Schuyler, arrived in Omaha in search of a man formerly in the employ of Craig, who was found missing the following day. The latter seeks under a number of aliases, and was in the employ of Craig gave the name of Adams. Mr. Craig also accompanied the marshal to Omaha.

The two, with an officer of this city, started out on a tour of inspection, and Saturday

THE KROPHGANZ CASE.

A True Statement of the Facts. Mr. Krophganz was found by a reporter at his residence, No. 144 South 11th street, who furnished the following statement of facts. I am by trade a cutter and work for the Simmons Manufacturing Co., having been in their employ two years. About the time I commenced working there I first heard of breathing through my nose was becoming more difficult, this trouble kept increasing until some time last summer, my left nostril got so bad that I could hardly breathe through it, and only partially through the right one. This compelled me to breathe almost entirely through my mouth, and sometimes when I would wake up my tongue and throat felt as dry as a chip, and rising I would start in to work and spit until my throat would get partially cleared, but this would not last long, and I would accumulate there during the night. On placing my finger into my left nostril, I could feel a hard projection just inside, which seemed to be the cause of some of my troubles, my throat felt great relief and my time and I had still pain over my eyes and the bridge of my nose. I felt that something had to be done, having read of the success of Doctor Jordan in cases which I appeared like mine, I concluded to give him a call. He told me I had catarrh, and that the septum or middle partition was bent over so as to stop up the left nostril. His price to see seemed very reasonable and I decided to give him a trial, and I am glad I did, for now the nostrils are open, my breathing free, the pain in my head gone. The accumulation of mucus has ceased, and in fact all of the troubles I have spoken of are at an end.
